Global Outcry Aimed at U.S.

Times News Services

Australian seamen are refusing to handle U.S. shipping, the Italian government has protested strongly and Chinese premier Chou En-lai has warned of a deterioration in U.S. relations with China as the global outcry against the rain of death on Hanoi and Haiphong continues to grow.

And protests inside the U.S. itself are mounting, with one Republican Senator, William Saxbe of Ohio renouncing his support for the war saying that President Nixon "appears to have lost his senses."

Saxbe said the president's order to resume bombing exhibited "arrogance and irresponsibility."

Meanwhile, the air blitz on Hanoi and Haiphong continues with the Swedish embassy there saying Thursday's raids were the "heaviest yet" and a Soviet correspondent reporting that the North Vietnamese capital was rapidly becoming "a city of ruins."

Marilyn Berger of the Washington Post asked Chou whether the bombing onslaught would interfere with relations between the two countries when she was introduced to him in the receiving line at a state banquet in Peking.

"Surely," Chou replied, adding a moment later: "I hope you will convey my answer to the American people."

When Miss Berger went on to ask how the breach the bombing has opened between Peking and Washington could be closed, Chou replied emphatically: "Stop the bombing."

At the banquet, Chinese foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei delivered one of the strongest denunciations of policy in Indochina to be heard here since before the Nixon visit.

"The U.S. government," he said, "committed a breach of faith, fabricated pretexts, set up various obstacles and deliberately delayed and sabotaged the signing of the peace agreement."

Chi also accused the United States of carrying out "barbarous bombing raids" and "committing unforgiveable new crimes against the Vietnamese people." He accused the United States of committing "shameless military blackmail."

Chou, Chi and other top Chinese leaders also took part in a mass rally in Peking today to show support for the North Vietnamese against U.S. aggression and Chi said:

"If the U.S. continues to drag on the war then no matter how long it may do so the Chinese people will definitely go on supporting the Vietnamese people until complete victory is won."

The Italian cabinet meeting in Rome couched its protest in an order to Foreign Minister Giuseppe Medici to "renew insistence" with Washington that the U.S. stop the bombing immediately and get back to the bargaining table.

In Sydney, the federal secretary of the Australian Seamen's Union, E. V. Elliott, explained to reporters that under the boycott no tugs will be available to U.S. ships and in some ports there will be no facilities for them to take on pilots.

Other Australian waterfront unions were contemplating action against U.S. vessels, he said, but added that it would be up to these unions to reveal individually what they planned.

If they did join the boycott, however, U.S. ships would be denied waterfront labor to help them berth, load and unload.

GREATEST FRAUD EVER?

TORONTO (CP) — If peace negotiations to end the Vietnam war are not concluded, the United States and the world will have been victims of "one of the really great frauds of history," economist John Kenneth Galbraith said Thursday.

President of the American Economic Association and U.S. ambassador to India during the Kennedy years, Dr. Galbraith told a news conference the resumption of U.S. bombing in Vietnam and continuation of the war means "more inflation, more diversion of resources."

But the economic effects were not so important, he said, as "the barbarity of the action."

He called the war "barbarous and insane."

"I haven't entirely given up hope that residual sanity will prevail and that the peace talks will be resumed," he said.

"If, as Henry Kissinger and President Nixon have said, they were 99 per cent complete, then one can only hope the other 1 per cent will be resolved. If this isn't true, we've been victims of one of the really great frauds of history."

Dr. Galbraith and other leading members of the association signed a statement protesting the resumption of bombing. He said he did so in his personal capacity, not as president of the association since it does not comment as an association on political issues.

Court Rules Deposit Illegal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice W. R. McIntyre of the B.C. Supreme Court ruled Thursday that B.C. Hydro's security deposit for residential customers is illegal.

He ruled that Hydro is a public utility and as such is required to treat all its customers alike and cannot demand security deposits from some customers and, in effect, decide who is going to get power and who is not.

The ruling throws into question at least part of a $1 million fund of collective security deposits held by Hydro.

The ruling was made in the case of Philip Rankin, Alistair Waddell and Karen Chasin who challenged the right of Hydro to charge some would-be customers security deposits and not others.

They contended the requirement for a deposit was illegal because it was discriminatory.

Hydro argued it had the right to require deposits, claiming it did not come under the general law relating to public utilities since it was not a public utility but a superpower authority created by statute for a special purpose.

McIntyre, in ruling that Hydro is a public utility, said "the mere fact that the defendant is not subject to the provisions of the Public Utilities Act does not alter its essential character."

Aid Plan Inked

OTTAWA (CP) — Agreements to provide federal subsidies for legal aid systems in Quebec and British Columbia and for a crime compensation plan in British Columbia were signed by representatives of the three governments here Thursday.

MOSCOW (AP) — Hundreds of people were cut off for a week by an avalanche in the Caucasus that buried whole villages and blocked roads, the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda reported today. It made no mention of any deaths.

Teen-agers Killed

BELFAST (AP) — Bombs exploded on both sides of the border between Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic Thursday night, killing two teen-agers and shattering the centre of two small towns in the republic.

Rembrandt Stolen

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (Reuter) — Police said Thursday a painting by the Dutch Master Rembrandt insured for $250,000 was stolen from an art gallery Tuesday night. They said the painting, St. Philip Baptizing the Eunuch, was cut from its frame by thieves who made a hole in the roof of the gallery.

NO QCs FOR B.C. SAYS A-G

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald says B.C. lawyers "should not be in an expectant mood" for Queen's Counsel appointments, traditionally announced New Year's Day.

"I'm sending Christmas cards instead of QCs this year," Macdonald said Thursday.

Birds Banned From Nixon Parade Route

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Bird experts started spraying trees today along President Nixon's inauguration route here. A plastic substance will make sure birds do not drop any uninvited offerings on Nixon or the people lining the route.

The substance will give the birds a "hot foot" if they land on trees along the ceremonial route Nixon will take Jan. 20 to be formally sworn in for his second term as president.

In the past, government buildings and institutions have used firecrackers, supersonic hawk, scarecrows and even stuffed owls to try to scare away birds.

18-Inch Snowfall

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP) — A record 18-inch snowfall with 70-mile-an-hour winds hit central Newfoundland Thursday. The storm was the worst in December since Dec. 2122, 1961, when 219 inches fell in a 24-hour period.

More Immigrants Than Jobs: Prof.

TORONTO (CP) — Since 1967 Canada has had more immigrants than the working force can cope with, William R. Dymond, a University of Ottawa professor, said Thursday.

He said the federal government's Canadian Manpower Centres (CMC) are not as successful at finding jobs for the unemployed as other job-locating methods.

Dr. Dymond, a former official of the department of manpower and immigration, told a meeting of the Allied Social Science Association here that while CMC was approached by 76 per cent of all job hunters, only 11 per cent were successful, compared with ratios of up to 27 per cent by other means.

Canada's manpower policy had been influenced by political and institutional pressures, he said.

"In the early '60s, immigration certainly contributed to meeting labor market pressures. Since 1967 there has probably been more immigration than the labor market would absorb and so it may very well have added to unemployment while playing only a marginal role in meeting job shortages."

Dr. Dymond, now an economist and manpower specialist, said federal manpower policies should be integrated with over-all social and economic policies for the 1970s.

He claimed that millions of dollars are being spent on adult retraining for jobs that exist for only a small proportion of the graduates.

He was speaking at one of the meetings of the American Economic Association conference which about 8,000 government, business and academic economists from all areas of North America are attending.

'What's Up, Doc?'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An airline passenger, sitting bleary-faced and bored between flights, turns suddenly to stare into the smiling face of a tall carrot-chomping rabbit towering above him.

"Eh, what's up doc?" the rabbit asked.

Yosemite Sam holds up a gaping grandmother with his mock cannon. Another youngster tugs at Bugs Bunny's cotton tail.

This is the kind of scene that can be found at San Francisco International Airport almost any day — and which an enterprising young man hopes will soon be a common sight at airports everywhere.

The characters, hired by the airline to entertain its passengers, are the brainchildren of Bob Clampett, president of Cartoon Characters, Inc., of San Jose, Calif.

He rents his cast of 12 Warner Brothers cartoon characters to airlines, claiming they relieve boredom and nervousness of airport waits and "unsnap people from all their problems."

Self-Medication Probe Planned

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Individuals must continue to have the right to self-medication for minor ailments, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said today, but the government will begin this spring a public education program related to the safety of self-medication with over-the-counter drugs.

As well, his department is "commissioning a major study into factors influencing consumer buying behavior in the drug field," he said in a prepared eight-page news release on criticisms against patent medicines made by the Quebec College of Pharmacists.

In the release, the minister commented on actions demanded recently by the college which had called for a "massive cleanup" of food and drug legislation.

The college wanted prohibition of all drug advertising, he said, and this presently is under study by the health protection branch.

Lalonde also commented on claims made by the college that many of the patent medicines available are "dangerous."

Drugs permitted in patent medicines are not unsafe under normal use conditions.

It is important to realize that the examples of danger raised by the Quebec pharmacists exist only in abuse situations over which regulation has only a limited effect."

The minister also ruled out requests by the pharmacists that all medicines should be sold only on prescription.

"A physician would have to be consulted every time the simplest of remedies was needed with the inevitable delays and increased costs," he said.

For example, he said that if aspirin was needed for a headache, its cost could rise to $8.29 from 29 cents. The additional cost would be for a doctor's visit — at $5 to $6 — and a pharmacist's dispensing fee of $2 to $3.

On Thursday, a spokesman in Lalonde's office said stringent controls on the prescribing by doctors of amphetamine-like drugs that come into effect Jan. 1 may be just the beginning.

He said that the government is already considering similar controls for barbiturates and tranquilizer drugs, two other classes of drugs that many experts regard as overused and overprescribed.

'God Wanted Us to Live'—Crash Survivors

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (Reuter) — The survivors of an air crash in the Chilean Andes Mountains have admitted eating the flesh of their dead colleagues in order to keep alive.

The young Uruguayans, most of them members of a rugby team called the Old Christians, spent 10 weeks isolated on a remote mountain side before they were rescued last week.

Ten of the 16 survivors returned here Thursday night and a group spokesman told a news conference their means of survival was comparable to Christ's Last Supper.

"If Jesus, at the Last Supper, offered His Body and blood to all the disciples, He was giving us to understand that we must do the same," said the spokesman, Alfredo Delgado.

The meeting was attended by about 500 people, including the Roman Catholic archbishop of Montevideo, Msgr. Carlos Partelli, as well as relatives and friends of the survivors.

Of the 45 persons on board the plane, 29 died.

The survivors were discovered Dec. 21, after two of them struggled for 10 days across mountains and rivers, eventually to toss a message wrapped around a stone across a torrent to a lone muleteer.

The 10 survivors later flew over the scene of the tragedy where they prayed for the souls of the dead.

When their chartered Chilean plane landed here, the wife of Uruguayan President Juan Bordaberry welcomed them, and 2,000 people on the airport terrace cheered, clapped, wept and waved Uruguayan and Chilean flags.

The Bonn newspaper Bild Zeitung published an interview with one of the survivors who said he and his comrades ate the flesh of their dead colleagues because "God wanted us to live."

Antonio Vizentin, 22, told the mass-circulation daily: "We did it because we had to. We swallowed the little bits of flesh with the feeling that God demanded it of us. . . . We felt like Christians."

Vizentin said in the interview in Santiago that the survivors had chosen a medical student, Roberto Canessa, 19, as their leader.

"He told us we needed protein to survive. After two days he convinced us that we would only find enough protein in the human brain.

"To keep our strength up, we also needed the muscle flesh of the arms and legs.

"There was nothing criminal about what we did. It was a communion for us, like a ritual. We Christians see the body of Christ in the host."

The 16 men marked out a gigantic cross of footprints in the snow to justify themselves before God, Vinzentin added.

Vizentin told the newspaper that shortly after the plane crashed, the group had attempted to hunt down animals, but had only sighted one bird "which was probably as hungry as we were."

They had found it impossible to survive on melted snow water because it did not contain salt. The herbs beneath the snow were too deeply buried, Vizentin said.

Cannibalism Not New

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The 16 Uruguayans who survived 70 days in the Chilean Andes by eating meat carved from the bodies of their dead travelling companions were far from alone in the dramatic step they took to sustain life.

The historical record offers repeated accounts of disasters, usually shipwrecks, in which the survivors were able to sustain life only by eating the flesh of the dead.

Perhaps the most famous example in American memory is that offered by the experiences of the covered wagon travelling party led to California by the brothers Robert and George Donner and James F. Reed. Of the 81 persons stranded on the shore of Donner Lake in the Sierra Nevada mountains during the fierce winter of 1846 only 45 survived.

ATE OXEN

The survivors described how they ate first their surviving oxen, hides, bones and all, suc hfew field mice as they eculd catch, then their leather boots and a small hoard of tallow. But finally no food at all remained and the hoped-for rescuers from Sutter's Fort, now Sacramento, had still not arrived.

Elizabeth Donner Houghton, daughter of one of the trekkers' leaders, recounted how one of the men of the group, knowing himself to be dying, urged the others to abandon their repugnance to heating human flesh. "He begged that his body be used to sustain the famishing," she wrote, "and bidding each farewell, his spirit left its bruised and worn tenement."

During the night a second man also died and the two bodies were laid out side by side. Mrs. Houghton continues: "The crucial hour had come. Food lay before the starving, yet every eye turned from it and every hand dropped irresolute . . . with sickening anguish the first morsels were prepared."

ETHICAL IMPLICATIONS

Several moral theologians who discussed the ethical implications of surviving by eating the flesh of the dead in the aftermath of the disclosure of the Andes incident are in agreement that no real moral issues are involved.

The Rev. Richard A. McCormick, a Jesuit who teaches at Bellarmine School o Theology, said in a telephone interview that "so long as no disrespect is done to the body, I find no objection to it."

Father McCormick stressed the necessity of distinguishing the extraordinary circumstances in which the Uruguayans found themselves from any ordinary state of affairs.

Recognizing the horror that induces most people to recoil from the idea of consuming human flesh, Father McCormick traced the revulsion to sources other than specifically moral concerns. He suggested that one drew back more because the prospective food to be taken from one who was known to have been a living, thinking person.

Both Father McCormick and another moralist, the Rev. Charles Curran of Catholic University, drew a sharp distinction between eating the dead and killing selected members of the group to ensure the survival of others.

"When human beings are together in desperate straits, it is a situation of 'the last days'," Father Curran said.

Father McCormick expressed similar reservations about killing off members of a survival party although he then said that ultimately he had no right to program an ethical crisis in which he was not a participant.

"Sometimes no course of action is going to be right in the fullest sense," he said.

Trade Outlook Optimistic

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie predicts that stronger export markets and increased business spending will speed economic growth in 1973.

But, in his year-end review and outlook for the new year, he says Canada "will still be confronted with problems and uncertainties of challenging proportions."

The minister based his optimism mostly on prospects for higher spending by businessmen.

Gillespie said "the principal set of problems will continue to be those concerned with the means of providing a growing number of jobs for Canadian workers and reducing unemployment, while at the same time containing inflation."

Also, "Canada will have to make further adjustments to changes in international trade that will result from the enlargement of the European Economic Community."

In foreign trade, Gillespie noted that growth of imports has outstripped the rise in exports, halving the 1972 merchandise trade surplus from its level of more than $2 billion in 1971.

He estimated that the overall balance of foreign transactions including non-merchandise items such as interest dividend and tourist spending, would show a $1-billion deficit in 1972.

Hotel Fire Arson

A fire that broke out early this morning in the Churchill Hotel was deliberately set, Deputy Chief Carl Coates said today.

Firemen were called to a bathroom on the hotel's third floor at 5:19 a.m. and found $100 damage to the wooden framework of a shower enclosure.

Investigation by both fire and police departments is continuing, said Coates.

Terror Raid on Embassy Termed a Total Failure

CAIRO (CP) — Four Black September guerrillas, who seized the Israeli embassy in Bangkok for 19 hours and held six Israelis hostage, arrived here by air today with apparently none of their aims achieved.

The guerrillas, accompanied by two Thai cabinet ministers and the Egyptian ambassador to guarantee their safety, freed their hostages — four Israeli diplomats and two of their wives — and surrendered their arms before flying back to the Middle East.

The plane, a DC-8 of Thai International Airlines, made a refuelling stop at Karachi, Pakistan, en route to Cairo.

What sort of reception awaited them in the Egyptian capital was uncertain, but some Arab newspapers have already called the operation in Bangkok a failure.

The Israeli government made clear today that it had not made any concessions to obtain the release of the Israeli hostages. Foreign Minister Abba Eban told reporters in Tel Aviv that the government never had considered making concessions to the guerrillas, who had demanded the release of 36 Arab guerrillas held in Israeli jails.

Their other demands included the return of the bodies of two guerrillas killed in the abortive hijacking of a Belgian Sabena airliner last May.

The Arabs had vowed to die with their hostages if Israel did not release 36 Arab and Japanese terrorists it holds prisoner.

The Israeli government rejected the demand, maintaining its position that any concession to terrorism breeds more terrorism.

Ruth Hadass, a hostage along with her husband, Nitzan, the embassy's first secretary, clutched a wine glass and danced as she shouted in Hebrew: "I didn't know it was so good to be alive."

CN MUST CONTINUE LOSING B.C. RUNS

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has ordered the Canadian National Railways and the Ontrio Northland Railway to maintain service to remote centres in the northern areas of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Runs ordered continued in B.C. are: Jasper, Alta.-Prince George, Prince Rupert; McBride-Prince George.

The commission said many of the lines are essential. They serve about 200 communities not accessible by roads.

Other communities are on lines essential to other points and so should continue to be served, the commission said.

Bombing: World Protests Swell urged a countrywide campaign to mobilize public opinion in the country against the bombing.

In a letter to party chairman Robert Strauss, the 18 asked him to convene a special session of the party's national committee to organize the campaign.

The group also wants the Democratic caucus in the House to go on record against the bombing and in favor of a peace treaty when the caucus meets Tuesday before the opening of the new Congress.

A number of anti-war resolutions are being prepared for presentation to the caucus, ranging from expressions of disapproval of President Nixon's policies to demands that Congress cut off U.S. funds for the war.

The caucus is being held for the primary purpose of electing party officers and adopting rules for the 93rd Congress, which starts Wednesday.

In Saigon Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh, the best known figure in South Vietnam's non-Communist opposition, said Thursday for the first time that he is prepared to participate actively in post-ceasefire politics.

In an interview with the Washington Post the general spoke out with uncharacteristic verve on the plight of his country and made what was for him an unusually forthright statement of his intentions.

Asked if he would join the political struggle certain to follow a ceasefire, the general replied, "if necessary."

Minh volunteered however, that he does not believe peace is "so near." And when it does come, he said, the peace will not be genuine because it will have been "imposed by the Paris talks" rather than agreed among Vietnamese.

Aside from an occasionally guarded and vague public statement, Minh has been virtually inactive in politics since August, 1971, when he withdrew as a candiate in the presidential election charging that president Nguyen Van Thieu had rigged the results in advance.

The U.S. command announced today the loss of four more planes, including another B-52 and 12 more flyers over Hanoi and Haiphong.

The command's announcement raised acknowledged U.S. losses in the air attack to 27 aircraft and 93 airmen missing, killed or captured in less than two weeks.

Fifteen of the downed planes were B-52s.

The command maintained its blackout on other information concerning the raids and also refused to say whether there would be a repetition for New Year's of the 36-hour Christmas halt in air operations against North Vietnam.

The Viet Cong has declared a 24-hour ceasefire in South Vietnam beginning Sunday, but there has been no such announcement from the U.S. or South Vietnamese commands.

The North Vietnamese Communist Party newspaper Nhan Dan said in an editorial today that the United States is using the biggest air armada ever, "including hundreds of B-52s . . . in an attempt to force us to accept their absurd terms" for a peace agreement.

"We have goodwill," said the paper. "We want peace, but only peace in independence and freedom. Brutality represents weakness, and it will not intimidate us. Bombs and shells will not subdue us. The more the United States escalates the war, the more miserable defeats they will take upon themselves."

'SOME COMPENSATION'

Resources Minister Robert Williams said Thursday he expects some compensation will be paid to cover damages to property during this week's heavy rainfall.

There will be no definite statement of payments until assessments are complete however, he said.

"We expect some compensation will be paid," Williams said.

A Post-Mortem On the Count

STRAY FEATHERS

Another Victoria Christmas bird count is now history and the time for post mortems is at hand.

While details are still incomplete, this much we know about the Boxing Day efforts of members of the Victoria Natural History Society to assess our winter bird populations:

That more than 40 bird-watchers — some of them working from before dawn to after dusk — recorded nearly 130 different species of birds in a 15-mile circle centred on the corner of Burnside at Douglas.

BEST WEATHER

That they worked under the best Christmas count weather conditions experienced in several years; that despite their efforts, Victoria must still bow to Vancouver as the leader, in Canada, for the number of species seen.

And finally that there exists a distinct impression among the participants — an impression still to be confirmed by the final tally — that the number of small birds seen was down from previous years.

Still to be assessed is the effect on bird populations, if any, of the two weeks of bitter cold we had early in December, or the record-breaking rains of Christmas Day.

The most immediate and obvious consequence of the rainfall was to disperse waterfowl over a wide area, making counting difficult. Places where ducks were usually found in large numbers — such as the lower Gorge — were almost devoid of waterfowl. Only double-crested cormorants and bufflehead seemed able to cope with the murky, flood-swollen waters of this scenic waterway.

On the other hand, normal winter flooding in the fields along Martindale Road in Central Saanich was so extensive this year that the task of tallying the thousands of ducks scattered over the vast expanse of water was almost beyond the capacity of the watchers assigned the area.

So, ducks were certainly scattered and not in their usual haunts; whether their numbers were up or down remains to be seen.

Evaluation of the effects of the early-December cold snap is just as difficult. While there is a strong feeling that the cold caused a heavy die-off of small birds, it is always possible they simply moved farther south ahead of the advancing cold.

Which of these hypotheses is right, if either is, may be proved by an examination of Christmas counts in Washington and Oregon. If counts of small birds in these areas are up, we might then assume that birds from here moved south.

LOSS FEARED

If, on the other hand, there is no corresponding increase in birds south of here, we must accept the possibility of a tragic — but not irreparable — loss of many of our most familiar wintering birds.

At present, there is no evidence to indicate that such a kill did take place.

But, in trying to provide a solution to the mystery of why our small bird populations are down, we discover the real value of Christmas bird counts. Far from being a simple social outing, as they are occasionally branded, Christmas bird counts are in fact one of the few available ways of measuring bird populations on a continental basis.

After an inauspicious beginning more than 70 years ago, they have become an essential tool in revealing changes in bird populations, changes which might otherwise go unnoticed, with tragic results.

SAMPLE ONLY

Frequently-expressed claims to the contrary, no effort is made to count every bird in an area; an obviously impossible task. What the bird count organisers hope to do is sample the populations in a consistent way so that long-term comparisons can be made.

The Victoria count area, for example, is divided into 10 sectors, each with its assigned team of counters. Ideally, the same people are assigned the same areas each year in an effort to ensure consistency.

Considering the time available and the area to be covered, each team selects the best sampling areas in its sector. These samples built up over the years eventually become the basis on which trends can be measured.

So, while the sudden, and so far unexplained drop in the numbers of some of our birds may be cause for concern, only time, and future Christmas bird counts will tell if there is reason for alarm.

Public Apathy, Lack of Money Stunt Culture Growth in B.C.

British Columbia's cultural growth has been stunted by financial hardship and community apathy stemming from the low priority given the arts by the former Social Credit government, according to a government report.

The report, commissioned by the B.C. Centennial Cultural Fund and prepared by York University arts administration director Paul Schafer, was completed last January but not released until Thursday.

Victoria is not as badly off as most B.C. communities, the report says, but its cultural activities are much below those of Vancouver.

"A far fewer number of smaller and progressive arts organizations exist in Victoria" than Vancouver, Schafer says.

In B.C. generally, Schafer found that since 1968 the amount of money spent by the government on cultural development was diminishing in relation to gross expenditures.

Performing and creative artists are therefore subsidizing the province's cultural development by accepting "low salaries and inadequate working conditions."

The report states B.C. "is capable of cultural achievements and accomplishments that may be unparalleled throughout North America and could place the province in the forefront of international cultural development."

But, because of lack of adequate funding from all levels of government, development has been fragmented and "lags well behind economic, social, educational, recreational, touristic and athletic development."

"Culture has almost been forced to go underground," Erika Kurth, president of Victoria's Community Arts Council, said today.

She agreed that Victoria is not as badly off as smaller communities in B.C., but added that the city's symphony and art gallery are functioning with little community support.

It's difficult to get people to realize that arts are as important as sports, and political support has not reflected the involvement of the public in the arts," Kurth said.

She agreed that public apathy as much as lack of funds had curbed B.C. cultural development.

"Ever since the Chant Report when so much cultural activity was taken out of schools we've had a hard time," she said.

The report recommends there be an arts panel made up of people in cultural pursuits and a full-time executive office to administer the cultural fund, which Schafer said should be increased to $30 million.

New ways to raise funds from municipal and non-government sources should also be devised and there should be a system of awards and commissions open to more opportunities for artists.

Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall was not available for comment on the report today but said in a prepared statement the New Democratic government is carefully considering the report's recommendations.

Bylaw Back to Drawing Board

Heeding an alderman's warning against hasty, ill-considered action, Victoria city council Thursday scrapped a public hearing on a zoning bylaw before it had even begun, tabled the proposed amendments and referred the whole matter to the Victoria Advisory Planning commission.

The bylaw would have rezoned — for the second time — a parcel of land in James Bay from highrise density residential to limited commercial use.

The land in question, at Simcoe and Menzies, is owned by Yennadon Holdings Ltd. and located across the street in a competitive situation with the proposed Bay Village apartment-shopping complex of developer J. A. Mace.

Following legal action by Mace, the B.C. Appeal Court recently quashed the original 1971 bylaw on grounds of illegality, but two weeks ago council started the rezoning process all over again by giving first readings to that same bylaw.

Returned from a recuperative holiday, Ald. Mike Young, chairman of the planning committee, told council Thursday his main reason for suggesting more care and less haste was to "avoid the prospect of further unnecessary litigation."

He pointed out that the current application had not been considered by the planning committee, the APC nor any other group of council. No thought had been given as to design standards of the proposed Yennadon complex.

"The present council has not indicated by its past actions that it is prepared to accept all decisions of a former council. But on the face of it, at least, we are proposing to do that now."

He said the application should be carefully considered by the APC prior to any public hearing, and particularly in relation to the James Bay study now before council.

Young also noted that the decision two weeks previously to give first readings to the bylaw was on "a bare majority," with two council members (himself and Ald. Ove Witt) absent.

Ald. Harold Olafson, who urged council at the earlier meeting to challenge the court ruling, said he was in total disagreement with Young, but Mayor Peter Pollen ruled the matter was not debatable as a tabling motion was involved.

Olafson and Ald. Clyde Savage opposed the decision to refer the proposed rezoning to the planning commission, and as the hearing which had never really begun came to an end, some 30 James Bay residents filed out of the council chamber.

Smashes Kill 1, Injure 9

One woman died and nine persons were treated in hospital following three separate car crashes Thursday.

Dead after a noon-hour crash on the Malahat Summit is 58-year-old Judith Ryan, of 736 Windfall. The woman was travelling to see her son in Nanaimo when she collided with a southbound car in the middle lane of the highway, half a mile north of the Summit.

Mrs. Ryan died shortly after arrival in Victoria General Hospital.

Injured in the Malahat crash were Clifford Young, 67, and his wife Janet, 60, both of Willowdale, Ont., Charles Rutherford, 43, of Coquitlam and his wife Gwen, 42, and their sons Carter, 9, and Kent 5.

In a Thursday evening accident at Douglas and the Trans-Canada Highway, Elsie Birtwhistle, 50, of 235 Cadillac, wife of the driver of one vehicle, suffered knee abrasions. Damage to the two pickup trucks involved totalled $2,500.

A two-car Esquimalt Road accident at 7:30 p.m. Thursday sent Jack van Rooyen, 28, of HMCS Terra Nova to Victoria General with internal injuries. He is in fair condition. A hospital spokesman said he is likely to be transferred to Naden Hospital today, where his companion, Bob Milesnvic, was treated for face cuts.

Driver of the other car, Marie Wiedemayor, 783 Esquimalt Road, was uninjured.

'Whom the Gods Destroy . . .'

The mounting public protest, both at home and abroad, is presenting President Nixon with a serious challenge to his Vietnam bombing policy. News reports tell of massed demonstrations before United States embassies and consulates in a dozen foreign cities. The domestic opponents of the bombing are being joined by scientific and economic and other professional organizations as well as the labor, student, church and other groups which long have protested the war.

The bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong has been intensified, and if reports are to be believed, large areas of these cities resemble European ruins of the Second World War. Regardless of official insistence that only military targets are being hit, it seems clear that considerable civilian damage is being done. In the harsh terms of military logic, the bombing is being directed only at targets of military importance — which include power plants, fuel tanks, water mains and other facilities on which civilians also depend. Northern reports of casualties speak of "thousands," but there has been no neutral assessment of persons killed in the latest bombing campaign. It would be unrealistic to believe that there are not many.

If the Second World War provided any criteria, heavy bombing such as is now being poured on North Vietnam has little effect on the determination of a population to resist. Not until an area and its people are completely obliterated can the bombing be said to have succeeded in its objective.

Coventry, Rotterdam, Hamburg, Berlin — these and many other cities suffered heavily in the air raids of thirty years ago, but there is general agreement that the tactic failed to produce appeals for peace, or, in fact, that the product was anything but greater hatred and determination. The total eradication of Hiroshima and its population was, of course, a different story, but American policy so far has stopped short of the nuclear attack.

What then, is the present deluge of death and destruction achieving? The Paris peace talks have been halted by the North Vietnamese. The world, including America's friends, is becoming increasingly incensed at this demonstration of ruthless destruction which it was thought mankind had relegated to the past as a considered policy. The North Vietnamese continue to issue declarations of intention to maintain the fight despite anything the United States can do. And Peking and Moscow look with growing concern at the extremity of force to which the United States is resorting.

The cordiality which was created a few months ago between the United States and the two great Communist powers is being rapidly eroded and may take long to repair. The United States is approaching a critical point, for if the present onset fails, what further can be done to win "peace" in Vietnam?

The whole situation is increasingly nightmarish in view of the relative sizes of the combatants. The world has never seen a military spectacle like that of today. The United States is losing international credibility that it could take a generation to regain. And above it all stands the fact that Mr. Nixon is using a principle that was proven a failure in the greatest war of all. Who are his advisers?

Considerably Overdue

Provincial government plans to prevent building on flood plains seem somewhat tardy, in the light of damage done by recent high precipitation and heavy run-offs, though the present administration should not be faulted for the omissions of its predecessors. The post-war problems of the Braefoot properties were a case in point.

Changes in natural flow, some arising from man-made projects, can contribute to flooding, as can inadequate drains. Usually, however, congestion of housing and inexpert selection of sites are basic causes of the trouble. The attractive low-lying meadow of summer too frequently becomes the swamp of fall, winter and spring. If it is chosen for a new home, the unsuspecting owner may be buying himself serious problems.

Whatever the cause of flooding, the government takes proper precautions when it restricts construction to well-drained land — thereby forestalling future grief for uninformed families.

Jettisoning Affinity

Early replacement of the so-called affinity charter by the advanced-booking system promises to eliminate at least one of the unreasonable limits formerly imposed on overseas group airline travel originating in Canada. The affinity rule, by which a person could join a club or association for a small fee solely to derive the benefits of lower fares, has been recognized by the Canadian transport commission for the farce that it became.

In addition to causing serious hardship to travellers stranded in foreign lands using stricter interpretations of affinity, the regulation invited deception and subterfuge. Unethical agents traded on the passenger's small fraud to provide what proved on occasion to be an unreliable service.

No doubt further changes will be made in charter flight provisions as the competition for business increases. It is gratifying that at least one unjustifiable rule is being eliminated. Future dealings should be less susceptible to improper manipulation as a result.

Changes in the Pension Plan

TORONTO — The Ontario government has given Ottawa and the other provinces a "preliminary review of the issues" which indicates that the proposed changes in the Canada Pension Plan, up for approval in early 1973, are in for a rough time indeed.

The main thrust of the Ontario argument is that if the Plan is changed as the federal government has proposed, then those provinces who borrow from the Plan's investment fund (all except Quebec, which operates its own pension program) will find the fund exhausted in a relatively short period of time.

The provinces would then have to borrow in the regular money markets, paying higher interest rates and creating strong inflationary pressure on the money supply.

Ottawa's proposed changes were set out in the 1970 White Paper, "Income Security for Canadians". Since the pension legislation requires that three years' notice of major changes be provided, January, 1973, is the earliest that the changes can be effected. Amendment requires the consent of two-thirds of participating provinces representing two-thirds of the participating population.

Conference Soon

A federal-provincial conference on the matter is to be held in the next few months, although no date or format has yet been set. One pressing problem is the need to reconcile the revised Quebec Pension Plan, which applies on Jan. 1, with the national program. The Quebec Plan has a lower ceiling on earnings for the purpose of contributions, and pays significantly lower retirement benefits than those proposed by Ottawa, although somewhat higher than those currently in effect.

The federal government is very anxious to maintain "comparability" between the Canada and Quebec Pension Plans, so that benefits are portable across the country, and no one will be surprised if Ottawa now drops its White Paper proposals in favor of the revised Quebec plan.

In its White Paper, Ottawa proposed higher income ceilings for the purpose of contributions ($6,300 annually in 1973 compared to $5,600 under the current plan), higher benefits and a new benefit for the wives of disabled beneficiaries.

The following table compares the major maximum benefits under the existing plan, the federal proposals and the Quebec plan for the year 1975, taking inflation (the schemes have escalation clauses in them) into account:

	Current CPP	Proposed CPP	Revised QPP
Retirement pension	$1,467	1,925	1,584
Total disability pension	1,459	2,944	2,232
Widow's pension	909	2,463	1,644
Orphan's pension	358	358	348

In its review of the situation, the Ontario government makes no suggestion that the Quebec scheme is preferable to the federal proposals, or vice versa. The point it emphasizes is that, according to its computer runs, the net impact on the pension investment fund if the Quebec plan were applied nationally would be virtually identical with that of the federal proposals.

To Maintain Comparability

The Canada pension fund, derived from employee and employer contributions, has become a major source of provincial financing. Each participating province may borrow, in effect, what it contributes at the long-term Government of Canada bond rate, which is cheaper than market interest rates, and substantially reduces provincial demands on the capital market, thereby helping to keep interest rates down. Ontario, for example, is borrowing $550,000,000 this fiscal year from the fund — an amount which would have a highly inflationary impact if it had to be obtained from the regular bond market.

In its White Paper, the federal government contended that the proposed pension changes would still leave substantial sums available in the fund for provincial borrowing for the next 15 to 25 years. But that's not how the computer at the Ontario Treasury figures it.

According to the Ontario calculations, contributions to the fund under the current plan will outweigh benefits and expenses until the year 1990, after which the reverse will be the case and the fund will be exhausted by 2020. But under the proposed federal plan, the break-even point will be reached in 1980 and exhaustion will occur in 2007.

Half the Story

This, however, is only half the story. When provincial interest payments and repayment of principle are added in — that is, when these repayments exceed the amount of new capital funds available — the break-even point occurs in 1982 under the new proposals, against 1988 under the current plan.

The Ontario calculations have been examined by federal officials and have not been found wanting. Indeed, a federal challenge to one set of statistics ended with the admission that Ottawa had been in error.

There are, of course, several ways in which the pension fund could be maintained as a major provincial capital resource: the ceiling on earnings for contribution purposes could be raised still further, the rate of contribution could be increased, or benefits could be cut from the proposed levels.

The Ontario analysis does not, at this stage, take a policy position on these points. Its objective is to alert other provinces to the financial implications and to show there is cause for provincial concern. In Ontario's experience, some provinces — the Maritimes in particular — are too prone to leave Canada Pension Plan issues to the federal government to decide.

Pompidou, the European Man

PARIS — President Georges Pompidou can be viewed from three angles: as a European, as a Frenchman and as a politician. While these approaches should be taken together as a whole, it is the first that probably holds the most historic interest.

Some traditional Gaullists criticize Pompidou for being too "European," since he withdrew de Gaulle's veto of British admission to the Common Market. Others criticize him for being insufficiently "European." He prefers to regard himself as a realist.

On the one hand, he considers it necessary for the European Community to assert itself sufficiently to prevent any superpower deal tending to divide the world into spheres of interest or neutralizing this continent. On the other hand, he doesn't believe any true "European" policy yet exists.

Happenstance

He accepts the fact that both Washington and Moscow deny any intention of such a private accord and he is not sceptical about their avowed intentions. What concerns him is that development of such neutrality might gradually come about by happenstance. That would produce not only disaster here but a major loss for the U.S.A. and a huge gain for the Soviet Union.

But the European Community is not yet in a position to express its views effectively. Despite the Common Market's enlargement, no real "European" policy can yet be made — except, as it were, despite Europe. What the President means is that European unity can only be developed by necessity.

That necessity could perhaps be produced in forthcoming trade and monetary negotiations between the members of the Community and the United States. The tougher the U.S. shows itself in bargaining, the more such an attitude would force the European nations to draw together. If Washington is very rough in talks that start next year, that might oddly be the best way of promoting West Europe's unity.

To date, there is more shadow than substance to unity. Even on defence there is no European approach. France's own doctrine remains based on bilateral military contacts, first with the United States and secondly with the North Atlantic Council. Paris considers NATO, from which it has withdrawn, only a cover for American armed strength, above all nuclear power.

He seems to regard the "temptation" in NATO's Eurogroup to talk of a "European" nuclear force based on those of France and Britain cannot even be contemplated for years. The British are still tied to the U.S.A. by accords requiring observance of American secrets. And the Germans prefer sheltering under an American nuclear umbrella rather than a smaller Anglo-French umbrella.

PRESIDENT OF FRANCE
. . . self-termed realist

Pompidou concludes France must make its own military preparations. This country's defence budget in 1973 will therefore see a sizable increase. Moreover, Paris resolutely opposes all thought of reducing allied strength in Europe.

It dislikes any idea of a mutual and balanced force reduction. While Paris does endorse the proposed European Security Conference it doesn't consider political detente should hinder development of Western defence; it hasn't hindered development of Eastern defence.

Such caution shouldn't indicate any alarm about the prospects for peace. The more immediate major problems are economic. Thus, Pompidou acknowledges that unless inflation is curbed, a serious crisis is inevitable. The real value of money cannot be allowed to decline six or seven per cent annually.

Fixed Parity Rate

One step that should help ease monetary problems would be establishment of a fixed parity rate for the pound sterling before Britain enters the European Community Jan. 1. That would be "normal" although it isn't sure it will be done. But the forthcoming trade and money talks between the Europeans and Americans are paramount.

The tentative accord worked out in the Azores between Pompidou and Nixon was a practical success although differences in viewpoint continue. The U.S. has done well. The dollar is no longer disputed and foreign transactions are calculated in its terms.

But this is provisional. There will have to be a definitive trans-Atlantic accord within two or three years. Each side will have to accept certain modalities. And, as a monumental by-product of these negotiations, a far more coherent "Europe" might emerge.

Women

Mr. Douglas Fisher's denigration of women because they do not express as much disapproval of Mr. Trudeau as men is typical of his mentality.

Because they do not fit the pattern of the male he is disappointed in their thinking and prefers to blame it on some strange sexual behavior.

I would suggest he bear in mind that men have not done too well with the management of affairs in Canada or elsewhere. Women know instinctively what is right for the human race but men never will.

As someone who aspired to the leadership of the NDP his efforts are more reminiscent of a frustrated candidate for dog catcher. — Disgusted.

Carnage

The most powerful nation the world has ever known is steadily, systematically destroying a little primitive country thousands of miles away. And the rest of the western world goes calmly on ignoring the carnage while the Communist world scolds the Americans and goes busily on arranging trade pacts and cultural and sports exchanges.

This is 1972 civilization? I'll take jungle law. There at least there is not wholesale killing of one section of a species by another.

And I can't help wondering: If all those corpses were white instead of yellow, wouldn't we of the West be screaming? — A. F. Davies, 4611 Vantreight Dr.

School Costs

In a prepared statement (Times, Dec. 23) Greater Victoria teachers' spokesman Mr. Bob Mitchell, in collaboration with Mr. Longmore, superintendent of instruction, District 61, has estimated that the four-mill increase in the school rate following the inflationary teacher salary award will cost rather less than 35 cents per month for a $25,000 home owner.

Such a considered statement can only confuse the taxpayers, unless, of course, it illustrates the degree of competence in simple arithmetic at the higher level of instruction.

The actual cost, as any fifth-grade pupil would easily determine, will be close to $2.75 per month.

Mr. Mitchell suggests that as Victoria teachers, for their "qualifications," are among the poorest paid in the province, ratepayers start asking a few questions.

Such as, how long is this empire-building eduational ripoff going to continue?—F. E. Wright, 993 Karen Crescent.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of Dec. 29, 1912:

VANCOUVER — That Simon Gun-a-noot, the Indian outlaw who for years has successfully defied the police in northern British Columbia, recently considered the question of giving himself up at Hazlefon, is the information brought by a recent arrival from the north country. Curiously enough, the question of voluntarily handing himself over to the authorities was put up to Simon Gun-a-noot not more than a fortnight ago. Told he might be sent to the penitentiary only for a short time if he gave himself up, Simon said "I don't want to go to New Westminster. I hear it rains a great deal there."

Quebec Losing Control Of Giant Hydro Project

By RONALD LEBEL
The Toronto Star

MONTREAL — When he unveiled the James Bay development plan, Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa bravely predicted that it would "liberate the Quebecois people from its status of economic inferiority."

Eighteen months later, more and more professionals and academics fear that the $6 billion hydro project will actually increase the degree of foreign control over the Quebec economy. They point to several recent decisions that have combined to give James Bay a fast-rising "foreign content."

Most of the shock waves emanate from an unpublished contract between Hydro-Quebec, symbol of the "maitres chez nous" dream, and Bechtel Corp. of San Francisco, largest construction management firm in the world.

Hydro commissioners insist that they will retain final say over the 12-year construction program, but Bechtel executives keep arriving from the United States to take over key posts in the publicly owned James Bay Energy Corporation.

Privately, high-ranking Hydro informants complain that they were not consulted or even informed before the Bechtel contract was awarded. They say the commissioners decided to call in the multi-national firm by a 3-2 vote only after coming under pressure from Paul Desrochers, who doubles as chief organizer of the Quebec Liberal party and as Bourassa's executive assistant in charge of James Bay planning.

Hydro sources say the Bechtel deal calls for a flat fee of about $30 million, plus sliding fees based on the number of engineers, draftsmen, administrators and other specialists that the firm will see fit to recruit later. Engineers familiar with large Hydro projects like Manic 5, on the Manicouagan River northeast of Quebec city, estimate that the package could work out to about $250 million.

Smaller contracts for various aspects of the construction projects scattered along La Grande River, 600 air miles north of Montreal, have been awarded to four local firms of consulting engineers for undisclosed amounts. None of the contracts involved a competition between interested firms.

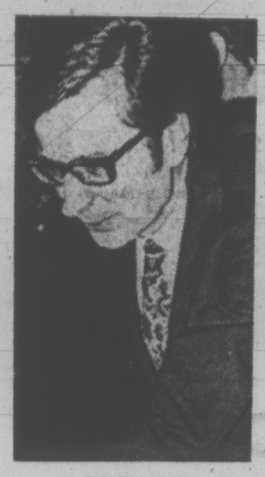
Fernand Keroack, assistant to the president of James Bay Energy Corp., said in an interview that the wholly owned Hydro subsidiary does not intend to yield control over the "largest construction project in Canadian history" to any private company.

"Bechtel will play an important role, certainly, but we will remain the project managers."

The multi-national giant currently manages about 100 construction projects around the globe worth a total of $12 billion and has a reputation for ruthless cost-control methods. Hydro-Quebec's cost-control performance has been poor in the past decade, with capital expenditures exceeding estimates by an average of 48 per cent.

"We did not invite Bechtel here just to reassure American money lenders, but that obviously was one of the factors in our decision, an interesting factor," Keroack said.

Robert A. Boyd, president of the James Bay Energy Corp. and one of the five



BOURASSA
. . . liberation?

Hydro commissioners, says the utility's technical staff could not cope with the James Bay complex because construction projects worth $2 billion are planned elsewhere in Quebec for the next eight years.

"It was necessary to go beyond our borders to find what we needed," argues the 54-year-old electronics engineer, who joined Hydro-Quebec when it began operations in 1944 and rose through the ranks.

Quebec's engineering community disagrees hotly.

"Quebec engineers pioneered in the transmission of high tension energy over long distances and their achievements won world-wide recognition during the Manic project. Why does the government invest millions in our universities if the graduates are not allowed to participate in our development?"

A union representing Hydro's staff engineers and middle management charges that Bechtel and the four Montreal engineering firms got lucrative contracts because of their "connections with the party in office."

Simon Pare, chief spokesman for the union, adds that Bechtel has been overrated for its ability to complete a project under budget. Cost estimates at Churchill Falls, Labrador, where Canadian Bechtel Ltd. is project manager, rose from $700 million in 1964 to $950 million four years later, he says.

The University of Montreal Alumni Association protests what it calls "Bechtel's stranglehold over the James Bay project" and the resulting "loss of prestige" for Quebec engineers.

A new group of economists and ecologists called the James Bay Defence Committee recently sent an open letter to Bourassa stating: "We warn you that this project will end in disaster."

The committee denounced Hydro proposals to increase its residential power rate by 22 per cent over the next three years and to borrow about $500 million annually on foreign capital markets.

"Once the tax burden becomes intolerable in Quebec, foreign financiers will be in a position to dictate their terms to the province," the letter said. "The end result could be long-term exports of power to the United States at low prices subsidized by Quebec taxpayers and Hydro consumers."

Bourassa recently announced a 15-year export agreement with Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, with a five-year renewal option, starting in 1977. A similar deal is being negotiated with the New York power pool, which takes in all utilities in that state.

Hydro-Quebec already exports power to the U.S. indirectly through its long-term sales contracts worth $225 million with the Hydro commissions of Ontario and New Brunswick, which have interconnections with U.S. utilities and long-standing export permits from the federal government.

Bourassa's enthusiasm for the James Bay "project of the century" seems to grow in inverse proportion to the volume of public criticism.

At the Liberal party convention last month, he hailed the regional plans as "the new frontier of modern Quebec" and the spawning ground of "a purely Quebecois civilization."

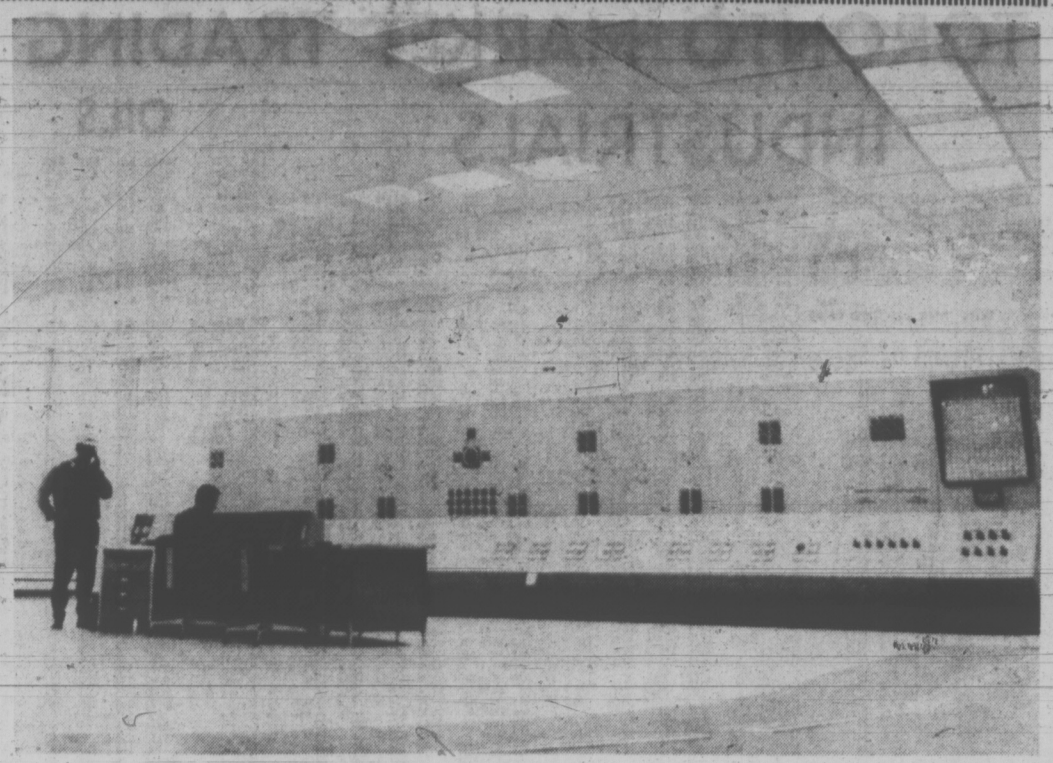
His only regret was that foreign financiers knew more about the region's economic potential than the people of Quebec. After meeting British and continental investors in London earlier this month, the premier said he has received so many credit proposals from bankers around the world that all he has to do now is to pick the "best ones."

Earlier this year, Bourassa suggested in an interview that the Bank of Canada should help to finance the project but federal authorities demurred. Since then, the premier or some of his cabinet colleagues have opened talks with investment houses or equipment manufacturers in the U.S., Japan, most countries in the European Common Market and even the Soviet Union.

Foreign-controlled firms have already landed contracts worth about $75 million for construction of roads, bridges and other "infrastructure services" in the James Bay region. Giant turbines worth about $70 million likely will be imported from foreign countries as part of financing arrangements, rather than being ordered from Canadian plants.

Foreign-owned mining, petroleum and forestry companies are being wooed by the publicly owned James Bay Development Corp. to invest in resource projects.

Meanwhile, James Bay Energy Corp. quietly appoints more and more Bechtel executives as "movers and shakers."



CONTROL ROOM of Quebec's Manicouagan power station. The province's thirst for electrical power was not sated by that huge project of sixties and $6 billion James Bay development is under way.

Mystical Monks Who Help 'Cleanse the Mind'

Buddhist monk leads war protesters.

By SYDNEY H. SCHANBERG

PNOMPENH, Cambodia — There are nearly 70,000 monks and priests in Cambodia, and only 400 doctors — a good indication of the importance that Buddhism, with its mysticism and fortune-telling and magic omens, plays in the everyday life of the Khmer people.

Especially now, in wartime, when Khmers, or Cambodians, need all the blessings and good luck they can get just to stay alive, the Buddhist monk and his less formally educated colleague, the priest, have become even more venerated and besieged by the public.

Before taking any major step, and often before minor ones, a Khmer will visit his monk or priest to find out if the signs are right. No marriage is ever arranged, no business deal consummated, no move made to a new house or a new job without the soothsayer's approval.

President Lon Nol is said to consult his private oracle before every important decision. Soldiers, on being drafted, immediately visit a monk or priest for holy water and "magic" scarves and amulets. Even the cynical modernists admit their fealty to the mysticism.

"I know intellectually, that it's all ridiculous," a Western-educated government official said, "but I can't help myself. I have to go to the monk to read my future. If I didn't I wouldn't feel right."

Though Westerners tend to snicker at the Cambodia addiction to religious magic, the practices are really little different from the holy water, sacred objects, talismans and ritual promises of Western religions.

Khmers go to their monks and priests for the same reasons that Westerners seek out their priests, ministers and rabbis — for reassurance, solace, advice and blessings.

"I am like a doctor," said Kuch Duch, a 68-year-old priest here in the capital. People come to me, their minds are troubled. I bathe their faces with holy water and say special prayers. This cleanses their minds and makes them peaceful."

Kuch Duch and the approximately 5,000 other Buddhist priests in Cambodia are of lesser order than the more than 60,000 monks. This is largely because, unlike monks, they do not undergo formal training or ordination, nor are they required to practice celibacy or abstinence. Self-taught and self-appointed, they attain their position by virtue of being trusted and respected elders.

Monks wear the traditional saffron robes; priests wear white pajama-like costumes. Monks shave their heads and eyebrows; some priests shave their heads, but most simply cut their hair short.

Kuch Duch, a lean spectacled man with a crew cut that is almost fully grey, has many gold teeth and wears a gold Omega watch. A television set, several electric fans and a small shrine littered with ritual objects adorn his ramshackled middle-class wooden house.

Once a successful businessman, 18 years ago, at the age of 50, he had a dream in which, he says, a voice told him to go and help his country. This was when Cambodia was struggling for independence from France, and he interpreted his dream as a call to the priesthood.

Most of his priestly work involves praying for the sick, telling fortunes and trying to solve problems, particularly marital ones.

Unfortunately, he was unable to resolve his own domestic problems. His wife divorced him 20 years ago and went off with another man. "She wanted to be happy and have fun and I could not give her fun," he explained.

Current government lists show 61,514 monks, in monasteries attached to the 3,334 pagodas, serving Cambodia's seven million people.

Much of their time these days is spent with soldiers, and they often go to or near a battle scene to provide comfort and blessings.

Needed: A New Work Philosophy

A mechanical grape harvester, which replaces about 50 human cutters. This was an item described in an article the other day on the disinclination of Canadians to undertake hard, low-paid, temporary jobs on the farms.

It is merely one item in a long, long list that delineates the changing labor market in Canada—and the lack of long-range policies to meet the changes.

We are in an extended period of heavy unemployment, with few of the experts seeing an early end to it. Governments at all levels have been producing both useful and useless makework programs to cut the unemployment figures. Ottawa has made unemployment insurance more generous, so that the difficulties of those out of work will be less painful.

But both work and insurance programs have to some degree enhanced the problem, by attracting into the work force—at least temporarily—people who otherwise would not be there.

The crash programs to provide jobs are necessary, because the jobless are here now. But they do nothing to solve the long-term problem, which might be said to have two branches: sophisticated machinery is reducing the number of jobs in traditional areas; a more educated (and more tenderly treated generation of rising young Canadians) is rejecting hard, humdrum jobs.

We will not be successful in holding back progress. Indeed, the one prong of the problem—the rejection by a part of the work force of unattractive labor—has its share in speeding the production of machinery that will do it instead.

The Globe and Mail
An Editorial

What we will need, and need soon, is a long-term philosophy, given practical expression by government, industry and labor, which will determine who will do the work that must be done.

There are one or two governors—treasury Board President Charles M. Drury has been heard on the subject—who would embrace the idea of a self-appointed leisure class; but in the great majority, we think, neither governors nor governed are prepared to let the leisure go, at public cost, to those who, by inclination and an obvious talent for it, do nothing.

Leisure has never been despised for the rich, although it has always been a relatively small part of the rich who have had the skill or talent or application to use leisure to advantage. Leisure should not be despised, either, for those of middle- or low-income. Leisure should be a reward, in the new world we face, for doing or having done one's share of work.

The most obvious way of making provision for this is to move increasingly toward early retirement, at first at least on a voluntary basis. This would require not only that government-controlled pensions become available at an earlier age; but that industry and labor co-operate to make private pension plans more realistic (in their attachment to cost of living and standard of living) and portable from company to company and industry to industry.

Those on pension worked to earn it; therefore they are more entitled to government attention, certainly, than are the young who too often are subsidized to give play the name of work.

There is also a great need—frequently admitted but seldom as yet given cash recognition—that periods of work should be interlaced, at all levels, with periods of training and retraining, of education and re-education.

By this we do not mean the one-in-seven or one-in-five sabbatical year, when the lucky worker goes off to lie in the sun and think deep thoughts which may or may not find their way to paper and may or may not be worth worth the paper.

The new periods out of the work force should be demanding of the recipient. They should be periods when he makes real plans to enlarge his capacities or develop new capacities, and does so.

For those with genuine ability or a real desire to make a contribution—however humble or great the contribution—the demanding nature of such periods out of the work force would not be oppressive. The demand with such is internal not external.

But as our present unstructured structure works, they are the last to get the opportunity of learning periods, except when business makes it essential. Their very abilities and eagerness to use them bind them to their tasks until they are drained; and all the while their taxes support in leisure more and more persons of lesser worth, when those same taxes should be used to recharge the batteries of those who make a country worth inhabiting.

If we do not plan to distribute leisure with justice, it will be gained, through default, by those who have not done their share to earn it; and that in the end would be disastrous for all. Even those most deeply imbued with the work ethic are not going to slave forever to support an increasing number of layabouts.

Balanced Growth Seen For Economy in '73

MONTREAL (CP) — Ian D. Sinclair, chairman of Canadian Pacific, said Wednesday he envisages a balanced expansion of the Canadian economy in 1973.

"Wage settlements have remained excessive in relation to prospective gains in productivity and the outcome of a heavy slate of wage negotiations in 1973 will have a strong influence on future price trends."

However, he said domestic demand was brisk in 1972 and should maintain its pace in 1973.

While foreign trade was a major retarding influence on the tempo of business in 1972, "the generally favorable business situation in Canada's major markets and reduced tension in international monetary affairs are likely to ensure sufficient growth in exports to prevent a further deterioration in Canada's trade balance."

The continued strength of the Canadian economy in 1973 indicates Canadian Pacific will achieve a satisfactory rate of growth during the year, Mr. Sinclair said.

CP Rail freight revenues should rise significantly, with export coal, potash, automobiles, pool cars and containers seen as the major growth areas.

Marketing efforts will be aimed at improving the railway's share of transport of commodities sensitive to trucking competition and energy-related commodities such as coal, petroleum and liquified petroleum gases.

There are several uncertainties which cloud the outlook for CP Air, which benefited from a "vigorous upsurge in traffic" in 1972.

The International Air Transport Association has yet to reach agreement on the tariff structure for North Atlantic services next summer.

Also, new charter regulations which do away with "affinnity group" restrictions and the possibility that airlines may be allowed to carry charter groups on scheduled flights "are certain to have a profound effect on the economics of air transportation in 1973."

CP Ships faced severe problems in North Atlantic container operations in 1972 due to port strikes.

Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. earnings increased across the board in 1972 and continued improvement is expected in 1973 earnings from timberland, real estate, hotels, oil and gas.

CP Investment's capital expenditures in 1973 will total about $88 million excluding Cominco and Great Lakes Paper, Mr. Sinclair said.

Prairie Minister Queries Test-Driving Operation

REGINA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Ed Tchorzewski said Thursday a Vancouver-based company called Cantrex International operates "a highly speculative venture of questionable value."

Vick Lang, a partner in Cantrex, said in Vancouver that the minister's statement is "definitely not true." He said the charges were "all wet."

Tchorzewski said the company has advertised in newspapers throughout Canada, soliciting applications for test drivers to drive a fully-licensed and insured 1973 automobile free of charge.

Upon receiving an application from the company, the minister said, the applicant is asked to forward a $22 processing fee which is not returnable if the company accepts his application.

"Information ... revealed that Cantrex has no new cars to give out at this time and a has not ordered any to date," Tchorzewski said.

"When Mr. Vick Lang, a partner in the company was asked who they were testing for, he replied: 'That information is private and confidential. We are not prepared to disclose who our client is'."

Tchorzewski said Lang claimed to have a licence to do business in British Columbia but that a check with the registrar of companies in Victoria failed to reveal any registration for Cantrex International.

However, the B.C. registrar of companies said Thursday the registration had been filed in Victoria Dec. 6 and that the company was licensed to do business in B.C.

The minister said he is concerned that successful applicants will pay their $22 and receive no benefits in return.

Petroleum Industry Predicts Price-Doubling This Decade

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Prices are going up everywhere, but nowhere faster than in the oil and gas industry.

For example, the price of gasoline for cars likely will rise rapidly in the 1970s.

"We believe it could double within a short time, within a matter of years," says G. B. McGillivray of Victoria, manager of the British Columbia Division of the Canadian Petroleum Association.

"It is very difficult to put a precise timetable on prices. Some projections are it will double in 10 years, others that it could double much sooner."

Reason for the tremendous upward thrust on prices is the tremendous growth of demand for petroleum products, accompanied with only a very small rate of increased supply.

A third factor in the predicted skyrocketing of gasoline costs is the lack of buyer resistance to increased prices.

In some fields, consumers can thwart price increases by refusing to buy or by seeking alternative products. But a man with a $4,000 car needs gas to run it. If a gas shortage developed he might be willing to pay any price, $5, $10 or $20 per gallon for gas, because his car is useless without it.

McGillivray said the industry is concerned about the rising demand for petroleum products and, while it is pleased that prices will rise to help pay increasing labor costs, the rapidly depleting supply is a serious worry.

The threat of depletion is forcing companies to make huge expenditures on exploration for new sources of supply. In B.C. the petroleum industry made $100 million this year and plowed back $60 million of it into exploration.

While income was rising rapidly, average wage increases, which used to be about 5 per cent, now are averaging 10 per cent to 12 per cent, he said.

Among pressures on the supply of gasoline are:

- People are moving from one-car families to a second car. Some families own three or four cars.
- A growing number of consumer goods use gasoline, especially power mowers which use a higher percentage of gas each year.
- Anti-pollution devices on new cars mean the vehicles use more gasoline to provide the same power.
- Growing demand for cars and other gas-driven vehicles in underdeveloped countries is diverting the world's supply to more and more nations each year.

These pressures will force upwards all types of petroleum products. Natural gas, at present considered a bargain for the power it produces, will also double in price very quickly.

There is an energy crisis but the first one will be the rapidly escalating costs. Later, after the turn of the century, the problem of depletion will be uppermost.

GOLD TRADE EXPERT TO HEAD EXCHANGE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Thomas Patrick Mohide, a British-born marketing executive with many years' experience in Canada and the United States, has been named president of the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Mohide, 51, succeeds G. E. McWilliam who resigned as president of the 85-year-old trading association at the beginning of 1972.

Mohide, a Canadian citizen, came to Canada in 1956 after service with the Brigade of Guards in the Second World War and eight years' business experience in England.

Operating out of Toronto, he worked in overseas sales management for 10 years. He then became a senior marketing executive in the United States. He recently returned to Canada.

Mohide is an authority on international gold bullion trading. The Winnipeg exchange in November launched the first market in the world for trading in gold futures.

Who Owns That Stock?

OTTAWA (CP) — Do you own a stock when your broker buys it for you or only, perhaps days later, when you pay for it?

When your broker buys it, the revenue department contends, although it is making a legal study to decide the question once and for all.

The department has issued a special release announcing the decision but added that, if the legal study shows it should have the option of having their assessments adjusted.

Approach of the year's end, and inclusion of a capital gains tax in the country's income structure for the first time in 1972, have given rise to a batch of queries on the situation, a department spokesman said.

If a broker buys stock for a customer Dec. 29 but the customer only pays for it Jan. 2, in what tax year did the transaction occur?

The department ruling means in a case like this it took place in 1972, when the transaction was registered on whatever exchange the purchase took place.

The day the market transaction took place is known as the trade date. Settlement date is the term for the time when the customer makes payment to the broker.

A study of property laws, laws governing exchanges and those affecting relations between broker and customer is being made but could not be completed before the end of the year, the department spokesman said. It will be completed early in 1973.

The department had been asked for opinions before and replied that, for tax purposes, the trade date was the effective one. It was restating this interim ruling because of possible confusion.

Should the outcome of the legal study show this interpretation to be wrong, the release said, taxpayers would have a chance to use the later date if they prefer and have their tax assessments adjusted.

The ruling applies as well to selling of securities.

For tax purposes, a stock is sold on the day the market transaction takes place, not when the customer collects for the sale from the broker.

So any capital gain on the stock sale would be assessed from the day the stock traded on the exchange.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FOREST PRODUCTS LIMITED

D. A. SAUNDERS | R. J. WHITTLE | D. E. LANE | W. R. STEEN | N. R. GISH

Ian A. Barclay, President of British Columbia Forest Products Limited, announces that re-organization of the senior management structure of BCFP which was started a year ago with the appointment of K. P. Benson as Executive Vice-President, Operations, and H. Dembicki as Vice-President, Logging and Wood Supply, will be completed January 1, 1973, with the following appointments. D. A. Saunders, currently Vice-President responsible for the company's Mackenzie operations, has been named to the newly created post of Executive Vice-President, Strategic Planning; R. J. Whittle, Vice-President, Administration, becomes Vice-President, Lumber and Plywood, succeeding D. E. Lane, who, prior to retirement in mid-1973, will serve BCFP in a consulting capacity; W. R. Steen, Comptroller, becomes Vice-President, Finance, and N. R. Gish, General Counsel and Secretary, assumes additional responsibilities for insurance, property, purchasing and security.

Budgie Owners In Flap

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial government has budgie bird owners in a flap.

Along with pet store operators and the owners of such pets as gerbils, hamsters, guinea pigs and canaries, they're finding out that they are breaking the law by owning these animals without a government permit.

But they needn't panic yet.

Grant Campbell, chief administrator of the fish and wildlife division, said now it may be illegal to own these pets without licences "but we're not doing anything about it."

"We're not going to have a mass roundup of the pets," he said.

An appendix to the wildlife act has classified such pets as exotic because they are not "indigenous to Alberta." And Section 17 of the act states that no one without a government licence or permit can "transport or control or have possession of any exotic wildlife or bird of prey for any purpose."

Dam Suit Started

WINNIPEG (CP) — A court action has been launched to stop Manitoba Hydro from acting on a licence to divert water from the Churchill River to the Nelson by a dam at the outlet of Southern Indian Lake.

Opponents of the plan have filed a statement of claim in Court of Queen's Bench, naming defendants as Manitoba Hydro, Premier Ed Schreyer, who is minister responsible for Hydro, and Resources Minister Sidney Green.

Passport Branch

OTTAWA (CP) — The external affairs department plans to open a regional passport office in Winnipeg to provide faster and more efficient service for those planning to travel abroad.

The branch office should be in operation by the summer of 1973, according to a department spokesman.

Veterans Protest

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — A group of Korean war veterans from Western Canada will return their war service medals to protest the United States bombing of North Vietnam.

Gerald McKinney of Portage la Prairie said about 40 Korean war veterans met Wednesday for a reunion and to determine what action to take to protest the bombing, and Canada's failure to stop supplying war materials to the U.S.

No More QCs

WINNIPEG (CP) — Attorney-General A. H. Mackling said today the Manitoba government has decided not to make any appointments of Queen's counsel this year.

He said: "The existing practice of appointing Queen's counsel no longer reflects the original intent . . . to give special recognition to exceptional, professional ability and pre-eminence at the bar."

Mr. Mackling said the New Democratic Party government is looking at provisions in the Law Society Act dealing with the appointments "to institute constructive reform of a practice that many feel has been debased."

LIP-Fund Fraud

EDMONTON (CP) — A man who received a federal grant to help the handicapped last year, pleaded guilty Wednesday to defrauding the government of more than $2,000.

Terry James Hansen, 27, of Whiterock, B.C., will be sentenced for the fraud Feb. 7.

Hansen and Georgina Slough, 32, also of Whiterock, were charged in September after government investigators discovered that a portion of a Local Initiative Program grant of $52,000 was not all used in the Helping Hand project.

Trusts Misplaced

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial government will have to reinstate several trust funds it had transferred into the provincial revenue pot according to Provincial Auditor C. K. Huckvale.

A legal review conducted by the audit department has revealed that the trust funds will have to be reinstated to proper trust account status, or else the government will have to decide whether it wants to seek legislative changes to permit the transfer, he said.

Drop Gold River Road Tolls, Williams Tells Logging Firms

The B.C. government has ordered two forest product companies to stop charging fees for the use of lumber roads giving access to the north end of Vancouver Island.

Resources Minister Robert Williams announced the move Thursday, saying the government will also push for better access to the roads for private vehicles.

The order, effective Jan. 15, will mainly affect commercial vehicles which supply the communities of Port McNeill, Port Hardy, Port Alice, Alert Bay and Sointula.

The toll gate is just north of Gold River and the road runs north through the Woss Lake and Nimkish Lake areas.

Williams said the decision was taken at the urging of Comox MLA Karen Sanford.

The minister said it is the government's belief that the lumber roads have a "private input" in the stumpage allowances and therefore should not be controlled totally by the private logging companies.

The past practice of charging commercial vehicles for use of the roads is "completely unacceptable," Williams said.

At present, the roads are open to private vehicles at no charge only when logging trucks are not in operation.

Williams said the companies are also being "advised" that the government expects them to arrange for better access to the roads during working hours.

Asked why the tolls are charged now by the companies, Williams said he believes the companies "would argue" that the money helps with maintenance of the roads.

CITY SELLS 4.3 ACRES

Victoria city council agreed Thursday to sell 4.3 acres of municipal property on McCaskill Street, in Victoria West, to the provincial government as a housing land bank.

The original price offered by the B.C. government was $275,000, based on a total development of 55 units and unit cost of $5,000.

But, council was told, the provincial authorities had agreed to the higher density envisaged for the site by council's planning department, and as a result the offer had been increased to $350,000 on the basis of 70 units.

City manager Bill Hooson said the provincial government aims to stockpile land for all forms of residential development, and not simply for subsidized rental or low-cost housing.

The intention was to avoid the type of "institutional development" as provided in the Rose-Blanshard complex, he said.

Under the sale agreement, the city will have a say in setting development standards and also the right to buy back the land if no construction has started by January 1974.

The province will pay taxes equivalent to 15 mills until development when normal taxes will come into effect.

Beacons Ordered

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department will require most Canadian registered aircraft to carry electronic locator transmitters (ELTs) to help searchers find downed planes, it was announced Thursday.

The transport department said in a news release there will be a short period before the order takes effect to permit talks with aircraft and flying club groups. Time also had to be allowed for manufacturing and installing ELTs.

Under the new rules, commercial jets weighing more than 44,000 pounds and aircraft operating with 25 miles of their bases will probably be excluded.

Two years ago
Ford Pinto started out as a strong alternative to the economy imports.

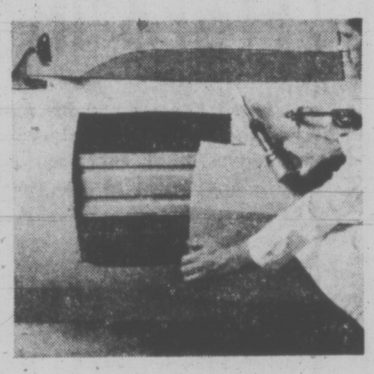
Today we believe
it's an even stronger alternative.

In the last two years a lot of things have happened which have added to Pinto's basic value.

For example: we've made over 70 little improvements since Pinto was introduced. Among other things, we added strong steel guard rails to Pinto's side doors (illustrated at the right). We put in extra sound insulation to increase Pinto's quiet ride; we put extra padding in the seats to make Pinto even more comfortable; we also made some slight technical changes to improve the transmission and suspension components.

These improvements weren't made for show. They were made to simply make Pinto a better car for you.

Another of our actions was to take some optional features and put them together in a group that offered particular value. This group was and still is priced at only $100.00* and, on the 2-door sedan, includes front disc brakes, protective bodyside moldings, whitewalls, wheel covers, and an electric rear window defroster. For the Pinto Wagon this package priced at $100.00 includes tinted glass in place of the front disc brakes, which are standard on the wagon.



Of course, if you decide not to add this value option group, your Pinto will cost you that much less. The choice is up to you. You see, with Pinto, you don't have to pay for what you don't really want.

But a nice price, and a nice choice, are only part of the value Pinto offers you.

Pinto had certain product advantages going for it from the very beginning.

Pinto has always had rack-and-pinion steering. VW, Datsun and Toyota do not. The rack-and-pinion system is used by some of the world's great racing cars because it makes for precise, responsive steering. Pinto's rack-and-pinion steering system allows you to get into tight spots — and out of them — a little easier.

Another of Pinto's advantages is a wider stance than VW Super Beetle, Datsun 510 and Toyota Corolla. That means better stability on a windy day. And it's easier to pass that big truck.

Since Pinto was introduced as an economical 2-door sedan, we've added a handy 3-door Runabout, a Pinto Wagon, and a Pinto Wagon with an attractive Squire Option.

The various improvements we've added to Pinto's basic value in the last two years—from the extra sound insulation to the new choice of models—really all add up to the fact that we think we've made our Pinto an even stronger alternative to the imports. See if you agree. At your Ford Dealers.

Sharp Sabres Cut Up Hawks

By The Canadian Press

If opposing teams thought they finally had Gerry Meehan's number, they're about to change their minds after Thursday night.

The lanky Buffalo captain went scoreless for three games, ending a 17-game string in which he scored 18 goals as the Sabres took dead aim at the upper-bracket teams in the National Hockey League's East Dvision.

They were cut short, as was Meehan's scoring streak, on a two-game trip to the west coast last week, losing to Los Angeles and California.

The Sabres recovered their winning ways back east, against New York Rangers, but Meehan's touch appeared to have vanished until the third period Thursday night when he beat Chicago goaltender Gary Smith three times en route to an 8-2 win over the Black Hawks.

UNBEATEN AT HOME

The win at Buffalo stretched the Sabres unbeaten home ice string this season to 19, including 16 victories, and moved them into a third-place tie with the Rangers, four points behind Boston and five back of the leading Canadiens.

The Sabres were held in close check in the opening 40 minutes by the West Division-leading Black Hawks and led only 3-2 heading into the final period.

Then the Buffalo offence, that had held a 21-16 shot advantage in the first two periods, turned on the firepower with 23 shots at Smith to four by Chicago and beating the Black Hawk goalie for five unanswered goals.

HAWKS HAD LEAD

Rene Robert scored twice for the winners with Tracy Pratt, Larry Mickey and Steve Atkinson adding the others. J.-P. Bordeleau and Lou Angotti beat Dave Dryden to give the Hawks a 2-1 first-period lead.

Meehan, a former Toronto chattel, had a mediocre career with the Leafs and Philadelphia until Punch Imlach took him in the 1969 expansion draft and appointed him captain early in the 1971-72 season.

A few eyebrows were raised at the time in view of the then 25-year-old centre's erratic play.

Meehan, however, has responded to the leadership burdens. His 22 goals in 37 games is just two shy of his career high in Buffalo's first year when he played in 77 games.

Sale to Pats Worth Chuckle To Rearguard

Flueri Perron didn't exactly have the last laugh when Regina Pats and Edmonton Oil Kings tangled in a Western Canada Hockey League contest Thursday night. However, he did get a little chuckle.

Perron, the defenceman traded for cash by Edmonton earlier this season, assisted on Regina's second goal as the teams skated to a 2-2 tie.

When Perron arrived in Edmonton for Thursday's game, he had a lot to say about the differences between the two clubs. Discipline wasn't as strict in Regina and he was given a chance to play as a regular. In Edmonton, he usually was the fifth man on the defensive squad.

"Maybe it's a coincidence," he said before the game, "but we've only lost three games since (he joined the Pats). It makes me look good."

Whether it was all Perron or not, the Pats did look good Thursday. Down 1-0 after the first period, they went into the third with a 2-1 lead which lasted until Oil King Darcy Rota evened it up with his 43rd goal of the season.

The tie left Edmonton in first place in the west division and Regina in fourth place in the east.

In other league action Thursday, Calgary Centennials dumped Swift Current Broncos 10-3 to move into a second-place tie with New Westminster Bruins in the west and Saskatoon Blades edged Vancouver Nats 4-2.

Blades' win put them into a first-place east division tie with Brandon Wheat Kings.

On the coast, Nats watched a 2-0 first-period attack crumble under the Blades' polished attack. The Saskatoon squad has the best won-lost record in the league, dropping only six games in 33 outings.

John Senkpiel, traded by Centennials this season, scored twice for Vancouver. Don McLeod got two for Saskatoon and Garty Dietrich and Byron Jackson had one each.

Victoria Cougars, meanwhile, have again grabbed off more "beef" from their farm in preparation for Saskatoon's visit to Memorial Arena Saturday night. Blades are considered the biggest team in the WCHL, if not in Canada.

Cougars recalled winger Jim Van Camp and returned Mel Bridgeman to Nanaimo Clippers. Van Camp started the season with the Cougars.

Also returning to Victoria's lineup is defenceman Cliff Bast. The 18-year-old's return from a Christmas holiday at home was delayed because of snow conditions on the Rogers Pass and Best missed Wednesday's 8-4 romp over Vancouver Nats.

Softball King Here in June

Eddie Feigner and his four-man softball team The King and His Court—will appear in Victoria next June for an exhibition game against Victoria Bate Construction of the Northwest International Fastball League.

Bate business manager John Oster included the date among several announcements made at a press conference Thursday.

Oster also announced that catcher-outfielder Les Barber has arrived from Edmonton and recently-signed pitcher Stan Kern is due here Feb. 2. Both are expected to join the team next season.

Barber, 25, who weighs 205 pounds and stands six-foot-four, batted .315 last season with Edmonton Playboys and was voted the team's most-valuable player. Kern, 30, a six-foot-three righthander, is rated as one of the top pitchers in Canada.

A league meeting is scheduled for Victoria on Feb. 11 to discuss possible inclusion of teams from Seattle, Everett and Yakima.

The loop now consists of five clubs — Seattle Pay 'N Paks, Tacoma Ruth Realty, Blaine Pastimes, Vancouver Canadians and Bates.

If all three teams are accepted into the league the schedule may be expanded to 42 games with playoffs.

Oster said that Victoria will be pushing for a rule change, eliminating the throwing of four balls for intentional bases on balls. The Victoria proposal met with favorable responses at an earlier meeting.

Hawkeye Hits With Whalers

By The Canadian Press

Two years ago they were hailing Tom Webster in Detroit as the Red Wings' saviour, a gifted young shooter who could thread the eye of a needle.

Now, two teams and a near-crippling back injury later, Webster continues to display the knack for scoring that has earned him the nickname, Hawkeye.

The 24-year-old winger from Kirkland Lake, Ont., scored two goals Thursday night to lead New England Whalers to a 5-3 win over Quebec City Nordiques.

The two goals gave Webster the World Hockey Association goal-scoring lead with 30.

In other games, Chicago Cougars trimmed Philadelphia Blazers 6-3 in a contest of division tailenders and Minnesota Fighting Saints stopped Los Angeles Sharks 4-2.

MARLBORO STRING ENDS AT 25 GAMES

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Petes, with rookie goaltender Frank Salive stopping 31 shots, blanked Toronto Marlboros 4-0 Thursday night to snap the league leaders' undefeated streak at 25 games in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

It was the first defeat for the Marlboros since Oct. 15 when they dropped a 4-3 decision to London Knights.

It was the fifth win in a row for the third-place Petes who now have 45 points, one behind Ottawa 67s and 11 back of the Marlboros. Salive has been a big help in Peterborough's winning streak, allowing only five goals in four games since being called up from Pembroke of the Central Junior A League.

New Brooms Sweep Clean

NANAIMO — Victoria's Steve Skillings changed his rink personnel but the result was the same Thursday — another Vancouver Island title in the Pacific Coast Curling Association junior (under 19) bonspiel.

The Mt. Douglas High School student, who curls out of the Racquet Club of Victoria, retained his Island title by winning the "A" event of the double-knockout competition with an 8-6 victory over Nanaimo's Rick Neff.

Skillings and Neff will represent the Island in the PCCA final here next Saturday.

Skillings won the event last year with Murray Walker, Bruce Coulter and Bill Okell. This year he had Charles McDairmid, Craig Toby and Rob Cummings with him.

Neff, with Jeff Wilson, Bob Smiley and Cam Foster, took the "B" event crown with an 11-7 decision over Walker, also a Racquet Club regular.

Under-16 qualifiers for the PCCA finals were Jon Foster of Nanaimo and Dave Hunt of Sidney.

The PCCA final, each four-rink, round-robin affairs, also will involve representatives from the Lower Mainland and Fraser Valley.

Dallas Choice Doesn't Faze Allen

WASHINGTON (AP) — "If you do the right things on defence, anybody can be playing quarterback and it won't much matter," Washington coach George Allen said.

Allen said Thursday he believed his Redskins would be facing Craig Morton Sunday in the game to decide the National Conference's entry into Super Bowl VII. But he figured wrong.

A few hours after the Redskins finished their closed workout, Dallas Cowboys announced they would go with quarterback Roger Staubach in the National Football League game at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

The fact that Staubach, more of a threat to run, would start in place of Morton, prone to stay in the pocket, didn't concern the Redskins' coach.

"We are not preparing differently for either of them," Allen said.

Allen, who sprung a five-man front line on Green Bay to negate the Packer's running game, also said he didn't expect any surprises from the Dallas defence.

"We've played them twice this year and we pretty much know what they've got," he said. "It's just a matter of dealing with it."

Morton, who took over Dallas' signal calling when Staubach suffered a preseason injury, directed the Cowboys to a 10-4 record, one game back of Washington in the East Division, and into the playoffs with the NFC's wildcard berth.

But it was Staubach who got Dallas past San Francisco and into Sunday's game. He replaced Morton in the fourth quarter last Saturday and, trailing by 16 points, brought the Cowboys within range of a Toni Fritsch field goal, then passed for two touchdowns to beat the '49ers, 30-28.

"You can't go into a game thinking 'we've got to prevent the pass' or 'we've got to stop the run,'" Allen said, "or you're going to get burned."

TERRY BRADSHAW

PITTSBURGH (AP) "We'll beat the Miami Dolphins," Terry Bradshaw said, a glucose tube dangling from his left arm at Divine Providence Hospital.

"Miami's a heck of a team, but there's no reason they should beat Pittsburgh Steelers."

That kind of confidence abounds in Pittsburgh and Steeler players already talk of their trip to the Super Bowl. The Dolphins' 15-0 record seems to scare nobody.

With Bradshaw, the Pittsburgh quarterback, there's nothing but victorious thoughts even though he was flattened temporarily Thursday by a 24-hour virus.

The Dolphins, champions of the Eastern Division, meet Central Division king Pittsburgh Sunday for the National Football League's American Conference title at Three Rivers Stadium.

Bradshaw said he "spent the whole night (Wednesday) in the bathroom, sicker than a dog." Then, at 5 a.m., his wife called the Steelers' trainer.

Terry was in the hospital by noon.

"I'm not missing a thing," he said.

"Wednesday was D-Day (offence) and I got in all my work. Thursday is D-Day (defence) and they didn't need me, anyway."

Low Temperature Nights Yield Good Steelheading

A few more nights of freezing temperatures should seal up excess water in the higher elevations, bring stream levels down and provide some excellent steelhead fishing just about anywhere on Vancouver Island.

In fact, some steelhead have been caught despite the high water levels, which bring the fish upriver but make it tough to get a line out.

A few steelies have been taken in the Sooke River as well as the San Juan-Harris Creek system.

Both the Koksilah and Cowichan Rivers are flooding but could be in prime shape this weekend. Further up-Island, the Nanaimo and Big Qualicum Rivers are yielding the odd steelhead.

"Not much doing" was the word from Port Alberni and even last week's flurry of steelhead returns from China Creek seems to have fizzled out.

The Quinsam River is the hottest up-Island spot and other good catches were noted in the Campbell, Oyster and Gold rivers.

Oscar Peterson of Courtenay proved that trout anglers shouldn't be giving up quite yet. While fishing Lower Campbell Lake on Boxing Day, Oscar picked up a four-pound, nine-ounce cutthroat along with some smaller catches by dangling a worm right on the bottom.

Salmon fishing continues to improve.

Bluebacks may be found almost anywhere in Saanich Inlet and some are being landed on pink bucktail flies.

Springs and jacks are coming in from the vicinity of Goldstream Island and from around 150 feet down close to Bamberton, around The Boulder and near Sheppard Point.

Super-strip is the favored bait off Oak Bay, where fishermen are hauling in springs up to 15 pounds near Fiddle Reef, The Gap and "Jimmy Chicken" Island.

Pedder Bay waters are yielding springs in the six-to eight-pound range along the kelp bed. Some fishermen have been using buzz-bombs with success and others have been striking it lucky with strip, 1½ pounds of weight and about 80 feet of line.

Blues still are providing the main action around Bold Bluff, the Power Line and Crofton — but be sure to have a ruler in the boat. Some are just over the legal size limit.

Strip-casters and cannon-ballers are picking up springs as heavy as 18 pounds off Jacks Point near Nanaimo and the vicinity of Five Fingers is reported to be swarming with blues.

Spots near Union Bay, Hornby Island and Little River have produced springs up to 14 pounds.

Springs up to 16 pounds are being caught on deadly-dicks, buzz bombs and live herring in Duncan Bay while fishermen jigging in Kelsey Bay with buzz bombs have come back with catches weighing up to 24 pounds.

NIBBLES: Council Lake, which has an access problem, received the second largest transplant of trout made on Vancouver Island during the month of September ... Fish and wildlife branch figures released recently show that 5,000 one-inch rainbows were dropped by aircraft into this lake, which is located in the vicinity of the Greater Victoria watershed ... One wonders why such a large transplant was made there when the main access road is blocked by a locked gate and the alternate route is a dicy proposition for anyone without a pickup or four-wheel drive vehicle.

Island lakes stocked in September with one-inch rainbow trout (one exception is noted) ... Lizard (7,000), Council (5,000), Boomerang (3,200), Fuller's Lake (2,800), Westwood (2,400), Cottel (2,000), Sutton (2,000), Hidden (2,000), Barsby (2,000), Father and Son (1,000), Divers (1,000 two-inch cutthroat), Off (800), Chemainus (800).

Fishermen working Sooke to Victoria waters during late July and August next year can expect a bountiful catch of pink salmon ... John Roos, assistant director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, says the 1973 pink run through Juan de Fuca Strait to the Fraser River is estimated to range between four and six million fish, although fry from the 1971 escapement had the potential to produce a much larger run.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Esquimalt Shouldn't Forget Louie

This is the time for making New Year resolutions and Esquimalt could never make a better one than to name some nook or cranny in the municipality after Louis De Costa.

In the 60 years he lived in Esquimalt, Louie, as his friends called him, built up a reputation as a man's man when it came to grappling with the sea's challenges.

Ashore, he worked just as hard for community projects. It was he and his pals who put together the community hall on Fraser that now houses a senior citizens' centre.

Louie served seven years before the mast before he decided to make Esquimalt home. Even then, 'swallowing the anchor' was not for him.

He became a diver, earning a reputation along the whole Pacific coast for his salvage work, which often had him looking death square in the eye.

Sometimes there were compensations. Such a time was when Louie salvaged the wreck of the Alaska-bound Prince Rupert. When she went down she was carrying a passenger list of actors and actresses. Louie came home with armfuls of intriguing pretties salvaged from the women's cabins!

But those on the waterfront remember him best for his guts and initiative and the underwater feats that he pulled off in spite of heavy odds.

Mayor Art Young agrees he'd like to see Esquimalt honor its own waterfront hero.

"When Louie died," he says, "the church was crammed and people lined up outside."

That was a long time ago, in 1961 to be exact, when Louie had turned 82.

One of his aldermen, out of prejudice, may have to excuse himself when it comes down to the vote. He's Ed De Costa, one of Louie's three sons, who took up working for Esquimalt where his father left off.

Whaler sailing will be the name of the game in Esquimalt Harbor on New Year's Day with five-man crews racing the traditional lifeboats.

Host for the event, which gets the start gun at 2 p.m., is the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association. CFSA's two crews (one of executive types and the other of general members) will be joined by crews from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, Elk Lake Sailing Association, Canoe Bay Sailing Club, Turkey Head Sailing Association and the naval ships in port.

AROUND OUR SHORES

By Pat Dufour

Frostbiting enthusiasts at Royal Vic. will also be getting their fill of racing at Cadboro Bay this weekend.

There will be series racing, beginning at 1:30 p.m., Saturday and the New Year's Day race, set for the same time on Monday.

Tony Rose's OK dinghy was the first boat home and, of course, first of her class, in a Boxing Day race around Flower Island and back.

Humphrey Golby led the Davidson dinghy fleet, Tim Roots was first in El Toros and Bruce Kenning showed the rest of the Laser fleet how to finish in fine style. John Malleson's Minto was the first in the small boat section.

Twenty-five boats competed in THSA's Boxing Day rum race with Jack Foster's Cal 20 finishing in first place, winning her skipper and crew a handsome helping of grog. A more moderate portion went to the second-placer, Bud Waite's Golden Rod.

A quart of eggnog was given as a booby prize to the crew of Sea Fax III, who with Jan Olsen at the helm, gave quite a demonstration of how not to jibe a spinnaker!

SHORT TACKS — Shades of Ahab! Lol Killam, of Royal Van., skippering his ketch Graybeard, at last report, was lying second in the race from Sydney to Hobart, entered by 70 boats. With only American Eagle ahead of her she's maintaining her position in spite of hitting a whale Tuesday.

Hornets Stung By Czech Rally

GALT (CP) — Czechoslovakia scored five third-period goals to come from behind and defeat Galt Hornets, 8-5, in an international exhibition hockey tournament game Thursday night.

The Hornets, leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league, held a 2-1 lead after the first period and a 4-3 edge after two periods.

The expertly-conditioned visitors including 12 members of the Czechoslovakian national team, pulled ahead scoring two goals 31 seconds apart in the third period.

Czechoslovakia now has won two games without a loss in the 15-game tournament that includes teams from Moscow, Sweden and three OHA teams.

Galt was playing its first game in the tournament.

Julius Haas and Richard Farda each scored twice for Czechoslovakia with the other goals going to Josef Horesovsky, Bedrich Brunclik, Milan Kajkl and Bohuslav Stastny.

Sonny Pennington in the Hornets' nets faced 45 shots, 21 in the second period. Galt managed 28 shots on goal.

Riley Park Tops Peewee Tourney

Vancouver Riley Park won the third annual Fuller's Lake peewee pup hockey tournament at Chemainus and Saanich Braves posted their third win in four starts in the Cranbrook bantam invitational tournament Thursday.

At Chemainus, Riley Park dumped North Vancouver 14-2 to complete a four-game sweep in the 14-team peewee event. The defending champion earlier beat Port Alberni 9-2, North Shore 14-0 and Victoria 16-0.

Nanaimo downed Victoria 6-1 in the consolation final to finish with a 3-1 mark. Nanaimo's lone loss was to North Vancouver, 5-2.

Victoria's Daryl Giebelhaus was named the tourney's most valuable goaltender. Most valuable forward was left-winger Gary Duncan of Riley, while Nanaimo's Lenny Dawes was the most valuable defenceman. Most valuable player for host Fuller's Lake was goalie David Hollands.

At Cranbrook, Wayne Larsen was chosen star of the game after scoring five goals for Saanich in a 16-2 romp over Kimberley Elks.

Braves, defending provincial bantam champs, outshot kimberley 71-10 and got additional goals from Bill Adkins with three, Ron Vincent and Larry Wright with two each, and Scott lang, Tom King, Murray Slezak and Cam Bertrand. The winners scored 10 times in the third period.

Fuller's Lake Flyers dropped a 9-7 verdict to Lethbridge ATC. Fuller's Lake broke a 3-3 deadlock in the final period to give Esquimalt the win.

Ross McKinstry and Mike Briggs were the other Esquimalt scorers while Ray Stubbington, Lee Clackson and Doug Clark scored for Flyers.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The South stormed to a 27-15 win over the North all-stars Wednesday in the annual Blue-Grey college football game.

MANCHESTER UNITED ON A SPENDING SPREE

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — Tommy Docherty, Manchester United's new manager, signed Scottish international fullback Alex Forsyth for £100,000 ($235,000) Thursday — his second big purchase within 24 hours.

Docherty recruited midfielder George Graham Wednesday from Arsenal for £125,000 ($294,000).

Totems Cut Down By Helsinki Club

HELSINKI (Reuter) — British Columbia Totems were overwhelmed, 9-4, Thursday by the Helsinki IFK team in their opening contest in the Ahearne Cup hockey competition.

The all-amateur Finnish team looked much stronger than the Canadian entry, from the Western International Hockey League.

The Canadians fell behind by 4-1 in the first period, fought back to leave the score 6-4 for the Finns after two periods and gave up three goals in the final 20 minutes.

A fine performance by goalkeeper Wayne Doll of Cranbrook Royals kept the score from going even higher as IFK, last year's Finnish League champions, delighted the 6600 home-town fans.

Gary Ferro of Trail Smoke Eaters, Bill Martin of Cranbrook and Bob Trembecky and Bob Stokyko of Spokane Jets were the Totem scorers.

Esa Peltonen had three goals for the Finns, two of them in the first period. The other scorers were Juhani Bostrom, with two, Vaino Kolkka, Matti Murto, Jorma Immonen and Jarmo Koivunen.

Spartak of Moscow, last year's Ahearne Cup winner, trounced Soedertaelje, a Swedish major-league team, 12-8, in Soedertalje. Djurgaarden won its second victory of the tournament by beating archrival AIK, 5-2, in an all-Swedish clash.

A 984 Tops Times Series

Bowlers on the southern portion of Vancouver Island will resume the chase for laurels Saturday after a two-week break for Christmas festivities in the 10th Annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Eleven weeks of the 26-week competition elapsed before the holiday pause.

Open to all bowlers competing in league play on southern Island lanes, the contest offers weekly awards in four divisions—men's and women's fivepins as well as men's and women's tenpins.

Pin-spillers rolling the highest three-game scratch series in their divisions each week receive Bowler-of-the Week crests and a berth in the Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs April 29 (fivepins at Gibson's Bowladrome) and May 6 (tenpins at Mayfair Lanes).

Unforeseen circumstances forced a change in the tenpin rolloffs, originally scheduled for April 22.

Each rolloff winner will receive a Times Trophy and any year-end champion who is also a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times also will collect a bonus award of $100.

Only three women managed to break 900 during the pre-Christmas portion of the contest.

Dorothy Krimmer was the leader with a 984 series rolled in the 10th week. Others to break the barrier were Marg Vickery, with a 907 series in the eighth week and Donna Bridgen, who rolled a 902 series in the second week.

John Broste was the pacesetter among male fivepinners with a 953 series in the last week before the intermission. Jack Scott was second highest with a 951 series.

Nixons Are Back On Victory Track

Victoria Nixons appear to be back on the right track.

Nixons won a second straight game by blanking Racquet Club Kings 14-0 at Memorial Arena in one of two South Island Junior "B" Hockey League games played Thursday night.

The Victoria club went unbeaten through its first 16 games, fell into a five-game losing streak and then recovered with a 12-3 win over Lake Cowichan Bairds Trucking on Tuesday.

In the other Thursday encounter, Esquimalt A and W topped Fuller's Lake Flyers 5-3 at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Larry Hansen and Lorry Gloeckner led Nixons with four goals each. Norm Allen had three goals and four assists while Tom Dohan, Jamie Robertson and Dave Pederson added singles. John McArthur made 23 saves to preserve his shutout for Victoria, which regained league lead with the win.

John Entzminger and Dave Scott, with his second goal,

Casals Marks 96th Birthday

SAN JUAN — Pablo Casals, the world's greatest cellist and a life-long activist for peace, celebrates his 96th birthday today surrounded by friends and the music he loves.

Casals, an exile from his native Spain since Gen. Francisco Franco's victory in the Spanish civil war.

His wife Marta said: "We never know exactly how many people will come to see us but we expect at least 200. There will be a number of musicians — there always are — and once again there will be a home concert with my husband playing the cello."

BROMWICH, England — Baby Derek Steel didn't take kindly to sitting on his new plastic toilet-training seat. Instead he rammed it over his head. Local firemen cut him free.

"Now he knows what a loo seat is really for," his mother said. "We don't want any repeat performances."

ASHEBORO, N.C. — Jake Newton has a burglar-proof safe, but isn't happy with it.

Newton has been trying to open the safe since he found it in an old bank building in 1964, but hasn't had any success and is now offering to sell the battered box for $1,000.

Two safecrackers, a representative of a safe manufacturer and Newton himself have bored into the four-foot-high safe, cut at it with welding torches and twisted its dials. Nothing has worked.

Newton admits he doesn't know if anything is inside.

ITHACA, N.Y. — What do you do when your name is Achilles and you report to sick bay with a sore heel?

If you're a marine recruit, like Daniel L. Achilles of Ithaca, your first problem is to convince the sergeant at the dispensary that it's no joke.

Then — like the Grecian hero — you bow out of the military scene.

Luckier than his Grecian namesake, whose vulnerable heel removed him from the ranks of mortals forever, Achilles is recuperating at home from a case of stress fracture, involving minor injuries of the heel.

MONTREAL — Four persons have taken up Montreal Rotary Club's offer of providing a free grave to anyone intending to drink and drive over the New Year holiday weekend, a spokesman for the Montreal Memorial Park said today.

Two of the persons registered are from Montreal. The other two phoned in their registration from Denver, Colorado.

"One of the guys from Denver was really anxious," a cemetery spokesman said. "He phoned three times to make sure he was registered."

MONTREAL — Edmund G. Littler Sr., former chairman of Walter M. Lowney Co. Ltd., was sentenced Thursday to five years in penitentiary for defrauding three Montreal firms of more than $1 million.

He also was ordered to pay $107,000 to McConnell Investment Trust, J. W. McConnell Foundation Inc., and Starlaw Investments Ltd.

Littler's lawyers said after sentence was imposed that an appeal has been launched.

Judge Henri Masson Loranger, who pronounced sentence, said Littler had engaged in "unfair and dishonest dealings" involving Lowney shares prior to the sale of the Sherbrooke, Que., candy and ice cream firm to Standard Brands of New York in 1968.

HONG KONG — North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung was elected head of state Thursday, consolidating his already powerful position.

Kim, 60, who as premier is head of the government, also is secretary-general of the ruling Korean Workers' Communist party.

First Hints of Spring End Post-Yule Blues

No post Christmas blues are possible for gardeners who take time to go into the garden on a quiet observation tour.

The day after Christmas, the garden was not silent, far from it, but it was peaceful and quiet.

Other visitors to the garden were robins, in a flock of close to a hundred by actual count; Oregon juncos; and perhaps a dozen cedar waxwings. The most quiet of the visitors were two tiny wrens, no bigger than mice they seemed, darting with their incredibly swift movements. All were busily feeding on either the berried shrubs provided for their and our enjoyment, or on the insect life emerging in the mild temperatures.

Cleaning up on a few thousand ground and sod grubs, starlings swarmed, travelling back and forth over the rough grass.

Not always do robins allow other birds to feed in their area, but at Christmas, all was peace and harmony.

Among the plants, plenty of early spring activity was to be seen by looking for it.

Peonies showed scarlet growth buds at soil level. Don't make the mistake of covering these, for they are seldom damaged by frost, and they normally grow at soil level.

An inch of green shoots adorn every patch of daffodil bulbs. This is also quite normal, for every Chrismas I look for this hopeful sign. It never fails.

Winter crocuses are a matter of routine appearance, as are the prolific buds and flowers on the winter heathers.

At that time, the lovely pinky lavender goblets appeared without leaves, but now the new foliage starts feeding the huge underground bulbs, manufacturing food even in the weak winter light.

Their need for food is so great, that the leaves persist through the long spring season until June. If you cut them away too early the bulbs will not produce the beauty we expect from them in the last August days and all of September.

Chickweed is bright green. Pull up a handful, clip the leaves from the main stems and use the leaves and flower buds for a green salad. Combine with the cleaned top crowns of dandelion which contain young leaves and incipient flower buds, and you have a real sign of spring that you can taste.

We shall have another cold spell, more snow to plague city dwellers, and more rain to wash away the thin coating of Vancouver Island's soil.

Meanwhile, we take courage from these sure signs of the season's revival, resolving to make more soil from the degradable waste products of daily living.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Poland has for several years been recognized as the strongest bridge-playing nation of Eastern Europe, not only by virtue of its bright performances in the annual European Championships, but also because Polish players have won several major tournaments in France, Britain and the Baltic countries.

An example of the ability of the Polish players can be seen in today's deal. It arose in the match between the United States and Poland, which Poland won by a score of 19-1. The hand came up in the 1971 World Olympiad.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

NORTH

♡ J 8
◇ 6 5 3

◇ Q 10 9

SOUTH
◇ A K 2
♣ A Q 7 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♣.

Against Poland's four-spade contract, West selected the four of clubs as his opening lead. Dummy's ten-spot was put up, and East followed suit with the nine.

It was rather obvious to South that East's nine was a singleton. It was equally obvious that since East was short in clubs, he, rather than West, rated to be long in trumps. Accordingly, at trick two he led dummy's king of spades, and then followed up by leading a low spade, and finessing his jack when East played low. The ace of trumps now felled East's queen. Declarer then exposed his hand, conceding a heart, a diamod and a club. Thus he fulfilled his vulnerable game contract.

When the deal was replayed with the United States holding the North-South cards, the same four-spade contract was arrived at, with South again the declarer. But the Polish defender did not lead a low club originally. Instead, he cashed the ace of hearts, after which he led a low heart, South ruffing East's queen.

With no clues to guide him (i.e., East's possession of a singleton club), our American declarer now made the normal play in a nine-card trump suit headed by the ace, king and jack: he cashed the king and ace of spades, hoping to fell the queen. And so East's queen of spades was promoted into a winning trick, and South ended up going down one, losing a trick in each suit.

Thus Poland gained 620 points at one table for making a vulnerable game, and another 100 points at the other table for defeating a vulnerable game.

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"No skidoos!" Ron chuckled. "What happened?"

"Well, the chap had six days start, and they figure he made nine miles per day. The two cops had a new dog team that took some days to break in. They did seven miles the first day, nine the second, 11 the third, and so on until they caught up."

Ron thought a moment. "Quite a chase. How many days did they take?" he asked.

What do you think?

Words of Inspiration For the Year Ahead

Some dictation if you please, Miss Blodgett:

First a letter to Ms. Janice Burch, at this James Bay address. Make sure you address it as "Ms." because that's the lady's choice. Dear Ms. Burch: The poster you sent to me containing the inspiring words of The Desiderata was not only the most unexpected of my Christmas gifts, but one I'll treasure. By the way, the inscription "Found in Old Saint Paul's Church, Baltimore, Dated 1692" isn't altogether factual. Muriel Mixon, our Librarian, who knows everything about everything, tells me it's been documented that the words were actually written within the last 50 years. Whenever they were written they were written by someone with a beautiful philosophy. I'm glad to take your suggestion that I reprint it as a New Year's column.

Desiderata

Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story.

Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans.

Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself. Especially, do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass.

Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself.

You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul.

With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.

Now, Miss Blodgett, a note to Chuck Davis, care of CBC Radio, Vancouver. Dear Chuck: A friend phoned me that Bob Hunter was in full voice on your program and so I did not hear the whole of your interview with the Sun's columnist. What I did hear, apart from the most self-appreciative giggles I've monitored since my youngest daughter's last pyjama party, caused me some distress.

I won't argue with Hunter's shotgun defence of his right to wear blue jeans in the Empress' Bengal Room and I have taken the pellets in the backside without a whimper. But since I was not invited to defend my own case I naturally expected that you, Chuck, would at least give a sense of balance to the program and not simply provide a cheering section of one for your articulate and amusing guest.

When, for example, Hunter said that barring a man from the Bengal Room for wearing blue jeans was the same as barring a man because of the color of his skin I'd have expected you to make my position clear since you know darn'd well that I would be among the first to holler in a case of discrimination.

Just to keep the record straight there is no such discrimination at the Bengal Room and there is not, as Hunter suggested, an economic discrimination since any man who can afford a Bengal Room drink presumably can afford an ensemble in keeping with the decor and style of the place.

Finally, Miss Blodgett, a note to Louis Finamore, general manager of the Empress Hotel. Dear Louis: My thanks for your Christmas note and kind compliments. Believe me, it's more in sorrow than in anger that I write now to tell you I had the worst Christmas Day dinner in my entire life at your hotel, a culinary disaster of the first magnitude.

Normally I might not complain about this, but our hostess was a dear young thing who had arranged the dinner for 10 persons near and dear to her, she had trusted in the Empress reputation and tradition and its advertising which I now suggest you examine for misrepresentation.

We were served this ghastly dinner in a mess-hall cafeteria style with your staff casting nervous glances at the poor souls in the hallway waiting for the second sitting. We weren't seated before the mock turtle soup, if that's what that tinted water could be called, was shoved under our noses.

We might have accepted this, accepted the paper napkins and the cream in little plastic cups and the sugar in paper satchels and even the cranberry sauce packaged in plastic, and the 400 per cent mark-up in the wine, but, oh, my lord, Louis, that dinner to come was simply beyond belief.

Those thin, flawless strands of turkey draped limply over a wedge of dressing, those pellets that were once brussels sprouts, the mashed potatoes that had been cannelled on the top presumably because the whole awful mess had been in a deep frozen state for several weeks — well, if we hadn't taken it as a huge joke we couldn't have taken it at all.

I suppose the people upstairs in the dining room were making out a little better, but we peasants in the Garden Room, at $5.95 a head, were simply being had and, Louis, that's not a nice thing at all at Christmas.

Contracts Awarded Without Tender

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The provincial government has awarded $5,600 in contracts without competition to H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd. of Victoria for emergency renovation work in the Legislative Buildings.

The contracts involve $5,000 to prepare offices for production of Hansard reports and $50,000 for renovations to five offices of the deputy minister of lands.

A spokesman in the department of public works said the contracts were awarded to Fowler on a cost-plus basis because the projects were considered to be of an emergency nature.

Most future contracts will go to tender.

The provincial government is producing Hansard reports for the first time, going into second printing on its special fall session and gearing up for the January session.

The Hansard offices are being constructed in the basement of the Legislative Building and will consist of from seven to eight rooms where stenographers will transcribe and proofread the reports.

A dustproof and quiet area was needed where tape-recorders and other reproduction equipment could operate away from the main building functions so the basement was selected.

A third contract for a three-room complex in the library was not considered an emergency and went to public tender. Low bidder was Farmer Construction at $17,000. The company was awarded the contract.

During 1973 much of the Legislative Buildings will undergo renovations.

The work will be done mostly by public tender and will be aimed at improving electrical wiring and heating as well as repairs.

The over-all aim is to restore the building to its original appearance but with modern facilities. For example, new lights will be installed in various offices but period light fittings will be sought to blend in with the traditional architecture.

With the emergency projects completed prior to the January session, no new work will begin until about April, after the session.

Then more projects will go to tender and projects will continue until the fall session of the legislature.

The government likely will try for a two-month session in winter and two-month session in fall to replace the single three-month session in winter.

The program of renovations will involve considerable shifting in offices.

Premier Barrett has already announced he will try to move all his cabinet ministers into the main building. Several are in the Douglas Building across Government street.

Moving them in will mean other functions will have to be moved out. With new purposes for the office space, much spending is anticipated during 1973 on renovations.

The department, however, has not been able to estimate the total cost.

Pollen Advised To Abandon His 'Vendettas'

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

After one year of Mayor Peter Pollen's regime at city hall, a senior city alderman today issued a strongly-worded appeal to the mayor to cease his attacks on personalities and the business community, exercise more restraint and work with council for the general good of Victoria.

Ald. Clyde Savage said he feels compelled to air his concern at Pollen's misplaced priorities, and emphasized that his remarks are not a personal attack on a man he likes and admires.

The city administration should be concerned with "controlled progress, not vendettas," he said.

Savage said Pollen received a mandate from voters to control highrise and development generally, and he had moved ahead with that task in 1972.

"The mayor is very capable and his driving force combined with the guts to follow through could make this city everything we would wish it to be. He could have the complete support of council and of business in these endeavors.

"However, unfortunately his intense desire to control the environment at any cost has created an unhealthy climate and atmosphere in which it is impossible to live — not only in council but throughout the city," he said.

Savage claimed that retiring Ald. Harold Olafson had refused to run for office again this year "because he could no longer put up with the conditions in which he had to work."

Olafson, he added, had given him full permission to make such a statement as to his reasons for withdrawing from council.

As a senior alderman on council, Savage said he was making his views known now to try to "bring some semblance of public confidence in city council." In answer to a question later he said he hoped his appeal to Pollen would also bring about a new spirit of harmony and co-operation on council in 1973.

In his prepared statement, Savage said the mayor's "unnecessary remarks about downtown business people, castigation of the Advisory Planning Commission, derogatory remarks against the Chamber of Commerce and constant sniping at big corporations" is no way to establish proper communications with those sections of the community.

SAVAGE
. . . 'controlled progress'

"The uncomplimentary remarks about aldermen, both in committee and in public, by the mayor certainly do nothing for good working conditions on council," he added.

Savage charged that council spends far too much time dealing with "past problems" over which it has no control, instead of tackling far more urgent problems in the city.

He said development is essential for the city to keep the tax base fluid, essential for employment, for downtown living "to keep our city alive," and also for Victoria to be a centre for cultural as well as business activities.

Savage said he supported council's 14-storey restriction on downtown construction "under pressure," on the understanding that developers could still exceed that by coming forward with applications for special development permits.

But, as far as he was aware, no applications had been made "simply because they are discouraged by the mayor and the chairman of the community development committee (Ald. Mike Young) without discussion with council, who are unaware of the tentative proposals."

Another aspect of the past year which he deplored was the increasing amount of council business conducted at in-camera meetings.

"This has to stop," he said, adding that the only real justification for closed meetings is when personalities or sensitive property matters are being discussed.

Savage claimed that Pollen's personal opposition to such projects as one-way streets prevents council from acting in this direction, even when a one-way system such as Government and Wharf is proposed on a trial basis and with the strong backing of the downtown business community.

Asked if he feels that Pollen's articulate and brisk conduct of meetings has the effect of dominating the rest of council, Savage replied: "Very much so."

He added, however, that he at least will stand up and oppose Pollen wherever and whenever necessary in the coming year.

CUPE Rejected at College

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has turned down a bid by the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 947, to represent employees of Camosun College.

In a decision disclosed today, the board said the bargaining unit applied for, which excluded instructors, was "not appropriate for collective bargaining."

The board also said it was satisfied that less than a majority of employees were members of the union when the application for certification was made Nov. 21.

Alex Markides, CUPE staff representative in Victoria, said the certification application was to cover employees of Camosun College at Lansdowne Road, View and Quadra and at Interurban Road. It included people working in laboratories, book stores and a kitchen but could not include a number of people who are direct employees of the provincial government and are excluded from the Labor Relations Act, he said.

Markides said the union is considering whether or not to submit a new application.

American Inspectors Used On B.C. Elevators—Union

Strike-hit elevator companies in British Columbia have been using some American supervisors to do maintenance inspections, the International Union of Elevator Constructors said Thursday.

"We feel there are from five to eight in B.C.," said Rudy Kennedy, president of the union's Local 82 which covers B.C.

He said one union member normally would look after 40 elevators a month. This work has been done by Canadian and American supervisors since the strike started 15 weeks ago, he said.

Kennedy said the union reported to the immigration department the presence of one American supervisor working "without a permit in Canada and he was asked to leave the country and did."

In another case, in Victoria, he said a Seattle supervisor "left the country abruptly" when the union began inquiries.

He said the difficulty in reporting the presence of Americans working without landed immigrant status is that they have to be identified as Americans "and if we follow people it can be classed as harassment."

Kennedy said the five elevator companies are using office personnel, such as draftsmen and engineers, with only a short course in elevator maintenance, to do work normally performed by union members with three to five years training.

But he added that some of the management people are "duly qualified mechanics who have come up through union ranks."

The five elevator companies, Turnbull-Dover, Otis, Montgomery, Armor and Westinghouse, have launched court action against the union claiming the strike in B.C. is illegal. The case is due to be heard next month.

While the elevator constructors strike has had little effect in Victoria, some major developments in Vancouver and Toronto have been stalled because of lack of elevators.

Meanwhile in Toronto informed private talks have resulted in new hope for a breakthrough in the strike, a union spokesman said.

James Hughes, president of the Toronto local of the International Union of Elevator Constructors, said the union is considering "a new approach" to the main issues.

He said that the five struck elevator companies are also reassessing the situation after meeting Tuesday with mediator Jack Spezzanni of the Ontario labor ministry.

The union will take a few days to work out its new bargaining position which Hughes said "could be a breakthrough."

SIDNEY FIREMEN RE-ELECT LONEY

Sidney volunteer firemen re-elected Hugh Loney as unpaid chief for a two-year term on Thursday.

Loney has been chief for nearly seven years and was elected by acclamation when nominations closed at noon.

Meanwhile, the position of Sidney's fire marshal is still vacant although Sidney council completed job conditions and wages at a closed committee meeting Wednesday.

Council now is waiting for a decision from Don Facey, the man who has been offered the newly-created position, in lieu of a paid fire chief's job. Facey asked to have the job conditions in writing.

The Central Saanich man's appointment as paid fire chief was rescinded by council one week ago after disagreement over hiring procedure was voiced by Sidney volunteer firemen.

Meetings with the firemen culminated in the decision by council to rescind the resolution to hire a full-time chief and offer Facey the position of fire marshal.

COATES

Wharf Jam Worries Deputy

A fire at congested Fishermen's Wharf in Inner Bay could result in major damage, Victoria Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said today.

"The mooring facilities are not adequate for the number of boats. They're moored in such a manner that if a boat caught fire near the main float it would be impossible to release the lines and many other boats would be in danger," he said.

Coates commented after firemen were called to extinguish a fire aboard the 36-foot trailer Triana, at 2:40 p.m. Thursday. It was the second fire at the wharf this month.

The boat, owned by Keith Notte, is moored directly opposite the 25-foot trailer, Marauder King, owned by Oliver J. Powell, 2512 Kenya Place.

On Dec. 14 fire gutted the galley and cabin of the Marauder King causing $10,000 damage.

Thursday's fire aboard the Triana began when two "poorly insulated wires" touched, causing a short circuit which burned the main electrical wire "back to the battery," said Coates.

"An axe was used to open the inner shell of the hull to get to the fire" which charred part of the hull, he said.

"I just went to get some groceries and when I came back there was smoke coming out of the hatch," said Notte.

Damage was estimated at $500 to the electrical system.

"The fire department has emphasized the danger to the management and we find this situation continually prevails," said Coates.

New Keyboard Speeds Typing

TORONTO (CP) — If Bob Parkinson had his way, secretaries would stop using their qwerty and switch over to a Dvorak.

Mr. Parkinson, a 30-year-old computer company employee, feels so strongly about this that he has already spent $10,000 of his own money promoting use of the Dvorak.

Qwerty is the name given the standard typewriter keyboard. The name is derived from the first six letters on the left-hand side of the top row of letters. That arrangement has remained virtually unchanged since it was worked out in 1873.

Mr. Parkinson, a native of Texas, said in a recent interview that the qwerty keyboard is an unqualified disaster. Originally the keyboard was designed to slow down the typist.

"Since the keys had no springs on them, they fell back into place by gravity," said Mr. Parkinson. "This meant their action was very sluggish and if two keys were struck rapidly, one after another, they would jam.

"To overcome this problem, C. Latham Sholes, the inventor of the typewriter, moved the keys around experimentally until the machine seemed to operate with a minimum of jamming.

What he actually did was to make many commonly-used letter sequences awkward and slow to execute."

Mr. Parkinson said that this meant that by anti-engineering his typewriter from a human point of view, Mr. Sholes was able to slow it down so it would function to his satisfaction.

Now, of course, typewriters have keys that spring back.

But they still have Sholes' keyboard.

Forty years ago, August Dvorak, an educational psychologist at the University of Washington, decided there had to be a better way and came up with the Dvorak Simplified Keyboard — or DSK to his friends.

While still a university student, Mr. Parkinson read about DSK, modified his own typewriter and taught himself the simplified method.

He said Dr. Dvorak analysed 38 million different letter sequences and frequencies. He studied slow-motion films of people typing. He came up with 60 different keyboard arrangements and eliminated them one by one until he arrived at DSK.

The most important change is that most of the really common letters are all on the home row — the most-easily-used middle row on which the fingers rest. The vowels rest under the left hand and the frequently-used consonants — d, h, t, n and s — are under the right.

Using the new arrangement, a typist does 70 per cent of his work on the home row, compared with 32 per cent on the qwerty home row.

Twenty-two per cent of the work on DSK is done on the next easiest row — the one above the home row, compared with 52 per cent on the qwerty keyboard.

On DSK, this is cut to 44 per cent, which means in a righthanded world that fatigue and mistakes are reduced.

One Dvorak student was clocked at 165 words a minute in one unofficial test. The world record on a standard qwerty is 149.

Mr. Parkinson says he believes a "vicious circle" exists. Typewriter companies seem reluctant to change their machines because there hasn't been enough demand.

Gift to Women

Appointment of Senator Muriel McQueen Fergusson of Fredericton, New Brunswick, as speaker of the Senate, will be described by many as merely a year's-end gift to Canadian women from Prime Minister Trudeau.

In a way the appointment is such a gift. One in which we can be justly proud. For she is the first woman to be named speaker in either the House of Commons or the Senate.

At the same time there is not a woman who knows Senator Fergusson or who is familiar with the work she has done, who will not stand up and tell you this is no token appointment merely to please women.

Rather it is recognition of her work and the accomplishments that have accrued from it.

Dynamic Speaker

Senator Fergusson is seventh in seniority now in the Senate of Canada, and the senior woman senator. She has always been a dynamic speaker in senate debate — doubly so when the subject under consideration has had anything to do with women's rights.

Her legal training and clear thinking have earned her a place on the most important committees, including those of poverty and the constitution.

Into the bargain (as the Prime Minister noted in making the appointment) she has the ability to get along with both sides of the Senate, a trait that should prove invaluable in her new role.

She has been interested in welfare, working with the aged — she is patroness of the New Brunswick federation of senior citizens — also with promoting women's rights and in helping women "to get ahead" as she puts it.

She is given credit for a federal bill passed in 1971, that gave women the same responsibility for jury service as men.

It was also through her efforts that female pages were hired for the Senate — there are still none in the House of Commons.

The honorable senator has been a delegate on many parliamentary missions and commissions and a member of U.N. seminars that have all taken her to distant places in the world.

She has received honor degrees from Mount Allison and New Brunswick universities and she is either a past or honorary president or an active or honor member of national organizations and voluntary boards.

Other parliamentary committees on which she was working at time of her new appointment (two weeks ago) were foreign affairs; health, welfare and science; library; restaurant and legal and constitutional affairs.

Now, as speaker, Senator Fergusson cannot serve on Senate committees. Although she is a Liberal her position from now on must be strictly neutral.

Much of the time she spent on committee work will now be spent in studying Senate rules, making decisions based on those rules and in entertaining. As speaker she is hostess for the Senate when foreign visitors and other V.I.P.s are its guests.

At Opening

Parliament will open next Thursday (January 4) in Ottawa. On that occasion Senator Fergusson will sit at the right of the Governor-General, near the Prime Minister. When regular sessions of the Senate commence, she will sit in the centre front of the Chamber, just ahead of the Governor-General's chair.

Senator Fergusson will be speaker of the Senate as long as Parliament lasts. In the present political situation that could be a few weeks, a few months, or a year.

It is conceivable however, with her known ability to make friends on both sides of the Senate, that she could be re-appointed by the next Prime Minister, whether his name be Trudeau or Stanfield.

If this were to happen it would be another proud moment for Senator Fergusson and an even prouder one for the women of Canada.

'Bonus Room' Benefits All

A true 'family room' offers multi-purpose space.

Although the popularity of family rooms has reached a new high, they have become so well accepted, that most have lost the function for which they originally were intended, as a room for the whole family. Television has supplanted the multiple uses. So, back each member goes, to his own room, for hobbies and crafts.

Shown here is a room in which every member of the family has a finger. In many developments, the builder offers a "bonus" room, usually an unfinished room on the second floor. Older houses could produce space in an attic or above the garage. This happens to be a "bonus" room. Sheet panelling covers the walls, and vinyl is on the floor, and the room is about as multipurpose as a room can get. There is something for everyone.

For instance, a sewing machine stands against the wall, a dressmaker's figure beside it. The irregular placement of shelves creates an alcove for the sewing centre, and holds boxes and baskets for materials and patterns. Shelves hold sports equipment, too, and they leave plenty of wall space for signs and pictures.

60th Anniversary Marked

Mr. and Mrs. George Greenwood, 216 — 1184 Esquimalt Rd. will mark their 60th wedding anniversary with an open house at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Martin, 755 Craigflower Rd. from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 31.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago a married couple we know split up. The wife sold all the furniture, so we bought their large new refrigerator, and I let her have my older, smaller one.

Five weeks later this couple went back together again. The wife had told her husband that we had agreed to return their refrigerator if they ever decided to reconcile. (This is not true.)

Well, we didn't want to make a big stink, so we agreed to return their refrigerator and take our old one back.

I had theirs delivered, and when ours arrived I was horrified! The wife had painted, "I AM UGLY" on the door of the refrigerator in bright blue enamel!

I called her up and asked her about it. She said, "Go to h—, you fat b—!"

Abby, we didn't have to sell her refrigerator back to her, we did it as a favor to her. Now, we've been getting vulgar letters and crank phone calls from her, and when we pass her on the road she makes obscene gestures. (She's 22 years old.)

The police suggest we sign a complaint against her. We are easy-going people and don't want to cause trouble. We just want to be left alone. Don't say, "talk to the husband." He's henpecked.

Any suggestions?—Mrs. M.

DEAR MRS. M.: If she's annoying you, by all means sign a complaint. The poor woman sounds disturbed to me.

DEAR ABBY: I have an experience I would like to share with other frustrated parents.

When our kids were in high school we were quite strict. There were places they couldn't go, and things they couldn't do. They gave us the old line, "Everybody else is." We spent many uneasy hours wondering if perhaps we were depriving them of some harmless fun, but we stuck to our guns.

Now our children are grown and have families of their own, and each of them has come to me and said, "I'm glad you held us down when we were kids. If we didn't go along with the other kids we were chicken, but if Pop said "No." that settled it, and we were off the hook."

I asked, "Then why did you gripe so much because you couldn't do what the other kids could do?" They said, "Well, sometimes we didn't think we ought to, but we half wanted to. We would have done it if you had let us—and if we got in trouble, we would have blamed you, because you let us do it. Thanks, Mother, for not letting us get in trouble." — Mrs. C.

DEAR MRS. C.: Well said.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S. J.: Some wives insist that their husbands wear rings because they think it will stop the circulation.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Morning-After Cures . . .

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Combining New Year's Day with Monday morning may seem a low blow to those who have had a belt or two the night before.

But the holiday will at least provide some sufferers with what medical authorities claim is the best hangover cure: sleep.

For other unfortunates — mostly parents with hungry children, dogs wanting in and cats wanting out — The Times has compiled a collection of morning-after remedies.

Users swear by them, but most of these cures seem to operate on the same principle as the traditional mustard plaster. They give the victim something else to think about instead of the pain in his head.

PICKLED PANACEA

Six ounces sweet pickle juice;

Dash of: catsup, salt, pepper, paprika, mustard;

One raw oyster;

Combine and drink as quickly as possible.

Anyone who can assemble the above ingredients let alone swallow them is obviously going to live.

CHICKEN LITTLE

One raw egg;

Worcestershire sauce;

Salt and pepper to taste.

Place egg in a juice glass and add sauce, salt and pepper. Swallow at one gulp.

BLOODY MARY

One and one-half ounces vodka;

Six ounces tomato juice;

Dash of Worcestershire sauce and tabasco;

Squeeze of lime juice.

Tabor also recommends a "Gloom Chaser" — a glass of port topped with brandy.

A local pharmacist says sufferers who make it as far as his drugstore usually buy non-prescription pain killers and anti-nauseants. Some swear by vitamins B and C.

However, Cathie Perkins, supervisor of the Vancouver Island region of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C., says vitamins don't really help cure a hangover.

She explained that most heavy drinkers don't eat properly and often have a vitamin deficiency. "They feel better after taking vitamins because the dificiency is corrected."

Miss Perkins says time is the only cure for a hangover because "alcohol needs time to leave the system." She advises New Year's revellers to keep an eye on the clock and avoid morning-after symptoms by timing their drinks.

She suggests drinkers limit themselves to one and a half ounces of spirits, one bottle of beer or five ounces of wine per hour.

. . . But Maybe the Best Is Brunch

For habitual "morning people" who tend to fold long before midnight, a New Year's Day brunch is the ideal alternative to an all-night party for greeting friend and 1973.

Brunch-time may also be the earliest hour that victims of the previous night's revelry may feel ready to face a meal.

SUNSHINE HEALTH NOG

Four eggs.

One-quarter cup liquid honey.

Three cups milk.

One can frozen orange juice.

Place all ingredients in a bowl or blender. Beat with a rotary beater or blend until all ingredients are combined. Serve while cold and frothy.

CHERRY CHEESE BLINTZES

One cup milk.

Three-quarter cup cold water.

Four eggs.

Three tbs. rum.

One-half tsp. salt.

One and one-half cups unsifted all-purpose flour.

Three tbs. granulated sugar.

Beat eggs, milk, water, rum and oil until thoroughly mixed. Mix flour, salt and sugar and add to egg mixture. Beat until batter is smooth. Batter will have the consistency of heavy cream.

Batter should stand for at least 30 minutes. If it becomes too thick add 1 tbs. milk.

Heat a small heavy skillet five to seven inches in diameter, or a crepe pan, until very hot and pour in enough vegetable oil to coat the pan.

Remove pan from heat, tilt it and pour in 2 to 3 tbs. of batter. Tilt and rotate the pan quickly so that batter runs to the edges and coats the bottom thinly and evenly.

Return pan to heat and cook until the bottom of the crepe is golden brown. Brown one side only. Slide the crepe onto a wire rack or absorbent paper. Cool.

FILLING
(enough for 24 crepes)

Three-quarter tsp. grated lemon rind.

Two tbs. granulated sugar.

One-half tsp. ground cinnamon.

One-quarter teaspoon salt.

One tbs. sour cream.

One egg, beaten.

One cup cherries, drained and cut in small pieces, margarine or butter.

Mash cheese and combine with lemon rind, sugar, cinnamon and salt. Add egg and sour cream. Mix well. Fold in drained cherries. Place 1 tbs. of filling in the centre of the cooked side of each crepe and roll up, folding in the ends.

Brown in hot melted margarine or butter and serve with sour cream and drained whole cherries.

CELERY POACHED EGGS

One 10-ounce tin of celery soup.

Parsley sprigs.

Eggs.

English muffins.

Dilute soup with water according to directions on the label. Heat to simmering in a shallow pan. Gently slip eggs from a saucer into the soup mixture. Cook until whites are set. Serve on a toasted muffin half. Spoon 1 tbs. of soup over egg and garnish with parsley sprig.

Set out warmed coffee cake, muffins and scones and offer a choice of jams or honey. Serve with coffee, tea or hot chocolate.

MARRIAGE AID EXTENDED

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

"Group facilitators and potential actualization" is the heavy-handed jargon used in the application for extension of a Local Initiatives Project grant.

The work at the Greater Victoria Citizens Counselling Centre however, is as down to earth as the phrase "human problems."

Mona and Roy Hundleby — co-ordinators of the centre, started in 1968 — use a homey atmosphere to drive their counselling home.

The operation — which Wednesday received a $12,166 LIP grant to finance four workers and special projects scheduled for December to May, 1973 — began as a marriage counselling centre operated in the Hundleby's home at 1520 McRae Ave.

"That was when middle-class people had nowhere to go with their marriage problems," explains Hundelby.

"Upper class could afford to take their problems to psychiatrists and doctors and lower class people seemed to have enough avenues open to them. It was the middle-class counselling that was missing."

He said it took about two years to get the centre off the ground. In the beginning, it was financed by fees and donations.

"It's not an easy thing, not like crippled children or anything dramatic. When we started getting a bit of success we couldn't spread it around or we'd be talking about somebody's neighbor."

Those with marriage problems began contacting the Hundleby's who were operating a part-time almost volunteer basis, and they were ushered into the Hundleby home to sit around the fire and start communicating. The fee is based on ability to pay.

"In most cases," said Hundleby, "they would call their problems money or sex or anything, but a lack of communication is usually the main problem. So we'd get them talking.

"When people have an impartial third person, they seem to be a lot more honest in saying what they feel."

There are a few problems however. "Most people don't come until a last resort and by the time they walk in the front door they've at least made an effort.

"They're half-way there if they've already made the first step toward solving the marriage problems.

"It's good for your self-respect to do something about any problem," said Hundleby, explaining that first interest in counselling has led he and his wife to attend many seminars on the subject.

The centre, now with a total of 27 counsellors, has found that more women look for counselling than men. "We're also finding an increase in the number of single parents who need some form of help," added Mrs. Hundleby.

More recently the centre — advertised as a helping and learning centre for any kind of human problem and governed by a board of directors composed of representatives from the community — has gotten into a wider spectrum of counselling.

The centre hosts family life conferences, co-ordinates group lectures and seminars and tries to help in the ares of personal development, family life education and referrals.

Group seminars — based on methods of Dr. Herbert Otto — seem to hold the biggest interest.

One counselling method goes something like this: Each individual is asked to list what they consider the formative events in their lives and their happiest moments.

"It gets down to real communication in a group and is very helpful to most people," says Hundleby.

Coffee breaks have the important purpose of letting each group member "really get to know" at least one person in the group.

And later participants are asked to list their strengths, a list that is added to by others in the gathering, and helps to build up self image.

"One of the real failings of most people is that they underestimate themselves and it helps when they realize others have the same difficulties."

The LIP grant will be used to finance four positions; that of co-ordinator, assistant co-ordinator, family life education director who is involved in planning and presenting programs for Grade 12 students on marrige and family life, and a stenographer.

The following special programs are planned; group seminars for community residents looking forward to retirement; training workshops in personal development for youth leaders; evening sessions on parent effectiveness for home and school groups and day long workshops on developing potential.

A counselling seminar workshop is planned for June 6, 7 and 8 at the University of Victoria for doctors, ministers and other professionals. June 9 is reserved as an all-day workshop for lay counsellors and June 10 for church worper workshops.

Mrs. Hundleby said the main emphasis will be to train leaders "so they will be able to train others and continue with groups in their particular interest area.

In addition, a winter training session program — held each Monday night beginning January 8 at 7:30 p.m., at Metropolitan United Church — will feature guest speakers on topics ranging from Human Needs to Listening Awareness.

For more information residents can contact the Centre at 592-1566.

New Recreation Courses Set

The Saanich indoor recreation program will focus on wide-ranging subjects from puppetry to Latin American dancing in its new year's courses starting January at Royal Oak Junior Secondary School and Gordon Head Recreational Centre.

Supervisor of the indoor programs, Marie Bradshaw said this season is "a first in making dual use of school facilities during after-school hours from 4 to 6 p.m."

Children can stay at the school and attend the classes without the usual transportation worries for parents, she said.

About 560 youngsters are expected to take part, Mrs. Bradshaw said.

A gymnastic program — "one of the real drawing factors" — offers fitness routines for grace and balance, strength and co-ordination, are offered for children between the ages of 6 and 12.

Puppet theatre classes offering the basics in making puppets, designing sets and developing dramatic effects, will also be offered.

A sew-in class in preparation for Victorian Days — held in the late spring — will feature demonstration of costumes and designs.

Recreational drama which teaches story dramatization for children, teenagers and adults will also include instruction on mime, movement and improvisation.

For times, prices, location and dates, please contact the Gordon Head Recreation Centre at 477-1871.

In recent weeks you have been hearing and reading a lot about Telesat (telecommunication via satellite). But you may nevertheless like to have some authoritative information at your finger tips that tells you what Telesat can and cannot do.

The illustrated folder Introducing Telesat will help you to a better understanding of Telesat, how it works, how it will be financed and who are its customers and potential beneficiaries.

As the folder points out, throughout Canada's history, communication and transportation have played a vital role in the growth and development of our country. Communication via satellite will continue this role.

In densely populated southern Canada, conventional communication systems are economically sound. But in the northern parts of our country where population centres are widely scattered, they are not practical. This is where satellites will prove useful, because the cost of satellite communication is the same across 3,000 miles as across 30 miles.

Test-Tube Baby Engineering Worries Scientists

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Scientists meeting here are expressing growing concern about the potential for misuse of biomedical engineering, a field which has involved trying to produce a test-tube baby and to modify genetic material.

Many participants in panels on biomedical engineering at the American Association for the Advancement of Science convention here feel research has reached the point where advanced countries may need to consider rules to prevent abuses, inadvertent or otherwise.

Reports at the panel discussions involve a broad range of biomedical engineering possibilities: Producing test-tube babies, Scrutinizing and treating a baby in the womb and Modifying man's genes and chromosomes.

They also involve possible applications of methods already available: for example, making early screening for many diseases compulsory, of making examination of all babies in the womb compulsory, to prevent birth of defectives.

Reports have included a whole set of scientific papers on "imporved breeding technology" in farm animals.

In cows, sheep and pigs, chemicals are now being used to bring on puberty earlier, to regulate female reproductive cycles for fertilization at will, and to produce groups of identical quadruplets by splitting a newly-dividing egg cell into four parts.

Agricultural scientists are also removing calves from wombs to bring them up in foster mothers, so an original, "super mother" breed can be made to produce a far greater number of calves. All future calves, then, might be super calves from super mothers artificially inseminated by carefully meted out bits of sperm from a few super bulls.

"I would think that early human application of many of these methods is not only possible but highly likely," said Dr. H. D. Hafs, professor of physiology at Michigan State University.

"Genetic manipulation in humans is a big wide-open field that is just coming of age" he said.

Reports like this made Prof. Harold B. Green, authority in technology and the law at George Washington University law centre say, "it is time for our society to ask itself whether we want to go through the door to the brave new world: to potentialities so unsettling that it is difficult even to think of them in a meaningful way.

"I oppose federal legislation. But I would pull out the plug on some of the money for research in the very sensitive areas."

These, he said, might include work toward fertilizing female ova or egg cells in the test tube; in "cloning" or trying to produce large numbers of genetically identical twins, and in what he called "the possibility sometime in the future of developing new forms of life which are superhuman or subhuman."

Because research on test tube babies is international — with the greatest push towards human results being made in England — Green conceded that any effective restrictions would have to be multi-national.

Several speakers said, in one phase or another, that if practitioners of medical science can learn to do something, they will do it, no matter what restrictions are set.

Thus the "rules," say some speakers, should not be government rules at all, perhaps, but rather professional and moral ones that emerge from discussions by all ranks of society.

"Enormous good will come from further genetic research," argued Dr. Robert G. Martin, biochemist and specialist in DNA — the chemical that carries the genetic code — at the national institutes of health. The "good," he said, will include aid for affliction like cancer and heart disease, as well as strictly genetic diseasess.

"I would continue the research at a slow but steady pace," he said, "in the hope that possibly some day our society will come to grips with its technology."

But he, like Green saw the dangers, not only in the earlier and easier forms of biochemical engineering, but in farther off, true genetic manipulation — alteration of a developing baby's or future parents' genes (chemical units that carry the hereditary material) or chromosomes (strings of genes).

"Will future parents demand that all their first born offspring be white, blonde, blue-eyed males, just because the technology is available to make it so?" Martin asked.

"Optimists, I would think, would argue that man can control his technology. Pessimists like myself look at the way in which society handles relatively simple problems like housing, poverty, schooling and war."

Martin and Dr. Neil A. Holtzman of Johns Hopkins pointed out that what amounts to genetic therapy already is being carried out in many ways. One is in using modern medicine to keep more and more people alive who would otherwise die, thus letting their disease-prone genes to enter the gene pool for future generations.

NO WEDDING BELLS, NO VISITS—JUDGE

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Parkinson has asked the Ontario Court of Appeal to overthrow a Supreme Court judge's ruling that he cannot visit his two children by a previous marriage until he marries the woman he now is living with.

Mr. Parkinson and Aurora Melli, 21, who have a daughter of their own, say they want to marry when it suits them and not as a prerequisite to Mr. Parkinson seeing his other children under the decision of Mr. Justice Peter Wright.

"The judge's order has put me in a position where I can't marry Bob," Miss Melli said Thursday. "He's condemned me to marry whether I want to or not."

Marguerite Parkinson, the wife, was granted a decree nisi from her 35-year-old husband in September, getting sole custody of a boy, 13, and a girl, 8.

After the husband applied for visiting rights, Mrs. Justice Wright issued his marry-or-no-visit ruling Dec. 13.

"The judge did say that in today's society we don't look upon things in the same way as 30 or 40 years ago," Mrs. Parkinson's lawyer, Herbert Fruitman, said. "However, we pointed out to him that the children were very impressionable and that the visits had an effect on the daughter."

The judge held that Mr. Parkinson would have right of access to the children every third weekend, starting Jan. 5, if the marriage proviso was met.

Mr. Fruitman said he feels the judge was being "very liberal-minded in the light of all the circumstances."

"It's an order a judge can make at his discretion in the best interests of the children," he added.

Charles Mark, Mr. Parkinson's lawyer at the visiting application hearing, said it was "silly" for his client to dispute the ruling. Mr. Parkinson has obtained another lawyer to carry the case higher.

Hughes' Death Fear Nearly Confirmed

Times News Services

MANAGUA — The earthquake that devastated Nicaragua's capital last Saturday caught Howard Hughes in his tightly guarded half of the seventh floor of the Intercontinental Hotel, where the billionaire recluse had been staying since August.

The pyramid-shaped hotel cracked and the ninth floor moved to one side and tilted. Power went out throughout the city and Hughes, who has a fear of death by natural disaster, had to descend a darkened stairway to leave the building.

His aides put him in a rented car and drove him about a mile to the home of Gen. Anastasio Somoza, Nicaragua's strongman and a close friend.

Somoza said Hughes' prime concern was to leave the country; that he offered no assistance in the earthquake emergency.

"He was fairly disturbed," said the general. "He's used to living in places where they don't have earthquakes." Somoza checked with the airport and was told the runway appeared undamaged. So Hughes left and apparently was driven directly to his Lear jet parked there, but the plane did not leave immediately.

The speculation is that Hughes waited until he saw other aircraft take off safely.

"Hughes still hasn't sent a damn thing here," said one friend of Somoza. "I doubt if he will ever come back, and besides I don't think Somoza will let him back in now."

Meanwhile, experts began a study today of the feasibility of rebuilding earthquake-shattered Managua on its present site.

Teams of geologists and seismologists arrived from the United States Thursday as specialists from Mexico and Venezuela announced preliminary findings.

Although Managua has been hit twice in 40 years of murderous earthquakes, a group of Mexican experts led by Dr. Cinna Lomnitz reported to Nicaraguan authorities that there was no need to relocate their capital city.

"Most of the city is located on hard volcanic tuff — solid stuff," said Lomnitz, director of the department of seismology at the University of Mexico. "It's subsoil is sounder than that of Mexico City, for instance." Tuff is fragmentary volcanic rock.

He said the damage was so great because the epicentre of the quake was right underneath the city.

"It was like a direct hit by a bomb," he explained.

The Mexican experts suggested that the damaged area be turned into a park of "green zone."

Shooting was heard Thursday as national guard patrols tried to drive off looters, but it appeared that mostly they were shooting over their heads. Unofficial reports said 32 persons had been treated for bullet wounds since Saturday. There were rumors of looters being killed, but no confirmed reports.

About 100 looters were detained in army camps.

Col. Jorge Barker, security chief of the 6,000-strong national guard, said the looters had to beheld in army camps because all the capital's jails were destroyed.

Assassins Kill Argentine Officer

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A team of assassins killed the Argentine naval intelligence chief in a supermarket lot Thursday. It was the second incident of what police called politically-inspired violence in two days.

Police sources said the murder of Rear Adm. Emilio Berisso, chief of the navy's political and strategy division, and the kidnapping Wednesday of a business executive may mark the beginning of a new round of terrorism by militant leftists.

Berisso, 50, was shot twice in the back as he loaded grocery packages into his automobile trunk.

NO FEAR IN 'FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Officials who poo-poohed a forecaster's warning of a large shaker here on Jan. 4, have committed nearly one-third of San Francisco's earthquake emergency supplies to Managua, Nicaragua.

Mayor Joseph Alioto said 10,000 cases of high-protein food — roughly 30 per cent of his city's disaster supply — is being shipped to the earthquake smashed Central America city.

N.Y. Police Cry 'Foul' At Corruption Charges

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A furious New York City police force cried foul today after an official report alleged that a sizable majority of the 30,000 men in uniform had indulged in corrupt practices.

The report, prepared by a commission headed by former Wall Street lawyer Whitman Knapp, alleged that high police officials ignored the corruption which ranged from rifling through dead men's pockets to acting as armed guards for dope dealers.

Mayor John V. Lindsay praised the report, even though it was highly critical of two of his former aides and his city council president, but the head of the association representing policemen denounced the document.

Robert McKiernan, president of the Policemen's Benevolent Association, called Knapp a "liar" and said his report was "a fairy tale concocted in a whorehouse and told by thieves and fools."

One of the tales which had New Yorkers talking today was an allegation that some police had the habit of going through dead men's pockets looking for money and their house keys. Once the key were found, the report said, it was not uncommon for the police to rob the victim's homes.

McKiernan called this and other Knapp revelations "the wild ravings of a sick man with a sick mind." He said that Knapp should be disbarred if he could not name the policemen who allegedly robbed the dead.

Also furious at the commission was City Council President Sanford Garelik, accused by the report of accepting gifts from businessmen while a police field officer.

Garelik, an unannounced candidate in next year's mayoralty election, said the report also "almost smacks of being a cheap political shot."

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court approved Thursday the sale of Danny's Cabaret Ltd., and the Vancouver nightspot Oil Can Harry's, controlled by Danny's cabaret.

Mr. Justice R. P. Anderson approved the sale for $500,000 to a new company to be known as Oil Can Harry's Cabaret Ltd. Frank Hook, who made an offer to purchase Danny's Cabaret, is a principal in the sale of the business formerly owned by Danny Baceda.

Danny's Cabaret went into receivership in October this year and Anderson was told that total indebtedness appeared to be $746,686.

I try to be brave and content, but
My dreams have turned to ashes.
The wound is very deep, it will not heal.
O thus are taken too soon, I know.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and frequently when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

CHRISTMAS TREES TURNED TO DUST

Project Recycle thinks it has found a better end for discarded Christmas trees than simply burning or dumping them — turning them into sawdust.

As a trial project, the recycling depot at 4026 Borden St. will accept Christmas trees except cedar on Saturday, Jan. 6 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The trees will be shredded into coarse sawdust which will be available free to anyone.

Gardeners can make good use of the sawdust, says Project Recycle — as a mulch or acid-loving plants like rhododendron, to put between rows of vegetables to keep down weeds or to mix with peat moss to make it go farther.

The sawdust can be used to fill in mud puddles in driveways, and can even be composted if a nitrogen source is added.

Project Recycle is hoping the municipalites will help with the Christmas tree project next year, if it proves successful.

Warm Freeze Farm Subsidies

Agriculture Minister David Stupich said Thursday the public will subsidize losses to farmers because of the government's policy on preserving agricultural land.

Last week the government moved to prohibit all subdivision of farm lands until further notice.

Stupich explained Thursday that where farmers suffer losses because of the freeze on subdivision, the government will compensate them for the losses.

The minister said he will meet Jan. 10 with the B.C. Federation of Agriculture to discuss the freeze.

He expected that each case of losses to farmers would be judged on its merits, but the government will not allow individuals to suffer because of the policy.

Trudeau Stresses Family, Children

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau places special emphasis on the family unit and children in a New Year's message which tells Canadians they have a great deal to be thankful for.

His statement:

"If any one season of the year is more Canadian than any other, surely it's the Christmas season. Even the snow and the cold climate which are associated with Christmas are part of us, part of our consciousness as Canadians. But more important still, these days at the year end evoke many of the values and virtues and attitudes that Canadians hold very dear.

"The Christmas season gives us opportunity to be present with our families and our loved ones from whom at other times of the year we are too often separated by work and circumstances. We are able to consider how fortunate we are to live in a country which protects the family unit as a very precious element, which regards it as one of the cornerstones in our way of life. It is in a family setting that so many of our national characteristics are best understood, and appreciated.

SEEK BETTER LIFE

"And it is at New Year's that most of our hopes and resolutions, our good intentions and bold plans relate to our children. The future for which we work, the accomplishments we seek, the improvements we desire, all take on fresh meaning when they are associated with the better life which we have promised to our young.

"This is a generous time of the year, full of good wishes and high spirits. It's a time of year when spontaneously and sincerely, we wish the best of everything to others.

"And this, too, is the way of Canada. Our success as a society, our very existence as a country, have depended upon an understanding that here there is room and opportunity for everyone to pursue his own dream. Nothing is so alien to this openness and to this kind of brotherly love than an attitude of envy or annoyance at opportunity given to others.

"In Canada on this first day of 1973, we have much to be thankful for—the florious scenery and rich land which is present in every region of this vast country, the freedoms which we enjoy as an automatic part of our heritage, the peacefulness which is ours in our homes and in our communities. But more than all this, we are thankful that the future of Canada is ours to choose according to our own design, ours to shape in harmony with those deeply cherished principles which have provided the strength of Canada through generation after generation.

"On behalf of my wife and myself, I wish Canadians a Happy New Year."

Carpark Tax Protest Sent to Councillors

A delegation protesting municipal taxation of a parking lot at Victoria General Hospital will be sent to city council, it has been decided by the board of management of the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society.

Victoria city council refused an earlier request to exempt the 156-car lot from taxation which amounted to $1,115 in 1972.

The board made the decision at their monthly meeting despite a recommendation by acting executive director John Murray that the matter be dropped because the board might risk costing other hospitals their exemption.

Parking space at the Royal Jubilee, Gorge Road and Veterans' hospitals is tax-free.

"This isn't to be a belligerent move," board member Edith Gunning said today "and we don't want to hurt the other hospitals. But we want council members to understand the situation."

Ecology Reserve Study Supported

A detailed study of the Tsitika watershed on Vancouver Island is necessary before any decision is made to set it aside as an ecological reserve, according to Professor Peter Larkin of the University of B.C.

Larkin, a member of the ecological committee which recommended that the 125,000-acre area be set aside as an ecological reserve, said he agreed with Resource Minister Bob Williams that a careful study of the area should be made.

The area 70 miles north of Campbell River, is the last untouched watershed on the island's east coast. All other creeks and rivers have been or are in the process of being logged.

"I didn't expect the minister to jump at the proposal right away," he said. "All aspects should be carefully studied."

Williams said Wednesday the matter is so complex he did not wish to express any firm opinion.

"But the very fact that it is the last untouched watershed on the east coast of the island means that it deserves careful consideration," he added.

Williams also said the government plans to start developing sophisticated management plans for all watersheds.

Larkin, who in the past has expressed concern at the way land is being mis-used in the province, said the minister is taking a step in the right direction in advocating management plans for all watersheds.

"All over North America this is being considered," he said. "But managements plans are of little use unless the regulations governing them are enforced. This is what is needed in B.C.

"At the moment the government is short of trained personnel to carry out necessary land-use studies and to see that the land is properly managed."

'PURE' ORANGE JUICES NOT 100%

MONTREAL (CP) — The Federation des Magasins Co-ops, a Quebec consumer group, says independent laboratory tests show that none of the 13 top-selling brands of orange juice is 100 per cent pure as advertised on the labels.

The group said in a statement a breakdown of an analysis carried out at the University of Montreal's Applied Sciences Research Centre also showed none of the juices met federal food and drug specifications of a minimum of one-half gram of total acidity per litre.

Actual amounts varied between .20 and .38 grams while another key ingredient of orange juice — amino acid — also fell short of federal requirements.

The brands tested were: FBI, Dominion, Orange Maison, Steinberg, Orchard King, York, Cudney, Minute Maid, Libby's, Kraft and Union as well as two co-op brands.

Analysis showed one 32-ounce container held only 29.7 ounces and two others contained 30.4.

Group spokesman Gilles Robert said the tests did reveal one thing in the producers' favor however: Most of the 13 samples had a higher vitamin C content than required.

Robert said the results were obtained by comparing two testing methods — an older, official method still used by the federal government and a widely-adopted newer method.

He said the older test is commonly known to be less accurate.

Results of the analysis were published in a monthly magazine distributed by the group at outlets of its food store chain.

U.S. Clamps Hinted On Multi-Nationals

TORONTO (CP) — Congressional and other United States restrictions may be placed on American-based multi-national corporations, including international banks, U.S. delegates to the American Economic Association convention said Thursday.

C. Fred Bergsten of the influential Brookings Institution in Washington said opposition to some features of multi-national corporation behavior has grown to the extent that Congress is likely to act against them in its coming session.

And Andrew F. Brimmer, a governor of the Federal Reserve Board — the U.S. central bank — said the board generally is agreed that some restraint needs to be imposed on a score of American banks which are so powerful internationally they can by-pass the Fed's monetary policies.

The remarks were made at a conference session on The Multinational Firm, Bane or Boon? As Sylvia Ostry, head of stasticis Canada and chairman of the meeting said, there was no decisive answer to the question.

OPPOSITION GROWS

But Bergsten said the multinational corporations were neither a bane nor a boon, so far as can be ascertained from present economic research on the subject. The fact is, however, that there is growing opposition in the U.S. and in Congress, to some of their operations even though the big firms are American-based.

Several fears have been expressed about them he added.

Labor opposes them because they "export" jobs, tax reformers oppose them because of the tax loopholes they enjoy, and there is a general suspicion that they employ foreign capital and technology to the detriment of the U.S.

The opposition to them now goes beyond the question of the drain on U.S. dollars, he added, and told the convention:

"There will be a major effort in the coming session of Congress to sharply curtail the foreign activities of U.S.-based multinationals, and in my judgment these efforts are almost certainly likely to succeed in part."

Lost Pilot's Wife Clings To 5 Dreams

EDMONTON (CP) — The wife of one of the few Arctic pilots still unaccounted for this year after his plane was reported missing has dismissed the hope of a miracle.

All she has to turn to now is the supernatural —and five dreams.

On July 12, in the northern Yukon town of Mayo, Shirley McRea said goodbye to her husband, Ed.

The 33-year-old storekeeper and pilot was off with a friend for a 180-mile "Sunday drive sort of flight" to Snake River.

It was a warm, sunny day in Mayo and only the clouds of smoke from three large fires to the North spoiled perfect visibility.

McRea was due to return six hours later but was never seen again.

About a month later, after Canadian Forces aircraft, private planes and even an old prospector on foot had scoured a 200-mile long and 100-mile wide area twice, searching was suspended.

By October, Mrs. McRea had sold her fresh meat store at Mayo and moved her house trailer and six children, six to 16, to a few miles north of the Edmonton city limits.

In the months since her husband disappeared three people approached Mrs. McRea telling her of dreams they had.

Two of them had virtually the same dream, which occurred twice to each but on different nights.

SAW HILLS, BRIDGE

In the dream, McRea was seen in an area that had two hills, a road, a wooden bridge, a valley in the background and far in the distance, a mountain range.

There was only one difference in the first two dreams. The second person also saw two cabins.

A third saw in his dream the same general area. There was one major difference. He saw a plane.

"It had crashed into the side of a hill, just above the tree line," Mrs. McRea said.

When earlier this month Martin Hartwell was found alive near the wreckage of his Beechcraft 18 after 32 days in the Arctic, Mrs. McRea said her husband's disappearance was "brought back so vividly."

HOPE REVIVED

Among the various stories on Hartwell's rescue was one that interested Mrs. McRea. A clairvoyant was reported to have described the terrain in which the Beechcraft crashed. That was a few days before the wreckage was spotted.

The clairvoyant's description fitted the terrain around the lost plane.

The clairvoyant, however, asked authorities not to disclose his identity and Mrs. McRea's attempts to speak with him have been unsuccessful.

Now Mrs. McRea is writing to the University of California, carrying out experiments with extrasensory preception.

"Even a miracle doesn't seem reasonable now," she says. "But there always will be a little thread of hope. We still have to have an answer to where he is. Just for peace of mind we have to to have an answer."

U.S. Tried To Halt Brazil Loan

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The United States has refused to back a World Bank loan to its close ally Brazil because the loan did not encourage the redistribution of wealth, informed sources said Thursday.

The U.S. abstention from a board of directors vote Dec. 19 was believed to be the first time the U.S. representative on the board had refused to back a loan on those grounds.

In the past the United States has opposed loans to countries which have expropriated U.S. holdings without adequate compensation.

The abstention on the loan to Brazil was expected to have great impact in Latin America because Brazil's military government is considered something of a favorite of the Nixon administration.

A Latin diplomat complained recently that while his country, which had expropriated some U.S. holdings, had difficulties obtaining loans from the international lending institutions, Brazil could get a loan "in a matter of months."

Challenging the Nixon administration's policy of opposing loans to countries that have nationalized U.S. property, critics have remarked that some of these same countries are most dedicated to carrying out social programs, such as income redistribution, which the world bank says its supports.

Brazil on the other hand, has not given high priority to social reforms.

Despite the fact that the United States has 23 per cent of the voting power at the bank, the loan was approved, reportedly by an unusually narrow margin.

LOOMING GATINEAU HILLS protect the now snow-covered cemetery in the tiny village of Wakefield, 30 miles north of Ottawa, where former prime minister Pearson will be buried in a plot he purchased for $10 more than 30 years ago as a result of a pact with two friends when all three of them were civil servants in the infant external affairs department. Pearson's two comrades are already buried in the graveyard. Bulldozers and snowplows today are clearing the winding country lane leading to the church and cemetery in preparation for Sunday's state funeral.

Pearson Last of Trio To Keep Burial Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — It was while strolling through the rolling hills around Wakefield, Que., about 30 years ago that Mike Pearson and two colleagues made a pact to be buried together there in the hills under the trees.

"They were impressed by the beauty of it," recalled James McCook, a retired member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery who knew Pearson well.

Pearson, Hume Wrong and Norman Robertson, all colleagues at external affairs and old friends, each paid $10 for a plot in the small cemetery on the brim of a hill near Wakefield, about 30 miles north of Ottawa.

"The strange thing is they kept their compact," McCook said. Wrong was the first to die about 11 years ago. He was followed by Robertson about four years ago.

The two men are buried near each other in a quiet corner of the cemetery, beneath the trees. The graves are marked by simple stones.

Wrong was a colleague of Pearson's in his history department of the University of Toronto. Both men went to the fledgling external affairs department where they met Robertson.

Besides their graves is the plot bought by Pearson.

"It's so much like him," McCook said. "Just in the trees, real rural Canada, so far from Westminster Abbey or anything like that."

The cemetery is on land donated about 100 years ago by the Maclaren family, which still owns a mill in the area. It is a peaceful spot, off a sideroad rarely travelled by visitors.

In summer the area is a lush green, and, standing near the spot where the remains of Pearson will lie, one can look down upon hills densely treed and the broad expanse of the Gatineau River.

About two feet of snow now covers the cemetery. A work crew and a bulldozer were at work Thursday plowing and sanding the road which winds up the steep hill to the cemetery gate.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday night Pearson will be missed by Canadians and people around the world "mainly because of his human qualities."

In a statement recorded here for nationwide television and radio use, Trudeau departed from a previous statement released by his Ottawa office to praise Pearson as a man who led Canada well into the "difficult 60s."

But the tone of the prime minister's recorded statement was the same as his previous one — that Canada is poorer for the loss of Pearson.

"He has left a very rich heritage, and will be missed, I think mostly because of his human qualities," Trudeau said.

"He was a Canadian politician, public servant, who had led Canada in the difficult years of the post-Second World War, and who, as a prime minister, led our country into the difficult 60s — a decade of confrontation, alienation — and he led us well into this decade."

Mini-Rebellion in Vote

Washington Post

MOSCOW — The prestigious Soviet Academy of Science, the dominant organization in Soviet intellectual life, apparently staged a small rebellion last month, refusing to fill six vacancies in its ranks.

The Minister of Education, the chief of the government metereological service and two hard-line party ideologists were among the candidates who failed to win a place in recent elections, according to sources in Moscow's intellectual community.

Some of the unsuccessful candidates had strong backing from the Communist Party and other official quarters, according to these sources. But the academy's elections are by genuinely secret ballot, and the scientists demonstrated that they knew how to take advantage of this procedure.

They also failed to fill eight vacancies among the academy's 500 corresponding members.

The academy has both practical and symbolic importance in Soviet life. Its members are the most honored — and most pampered — intellectuals in Soviet society.

A full member of the academy receives a stipend of 500 rubles ($600) a month for life, in addition to any other salary he may earn. (An average worker's salary is about 135 rubles monthly.)

If he lives in Moscow, an academician also has use of chauffeur-driven academy cars and special shops closed to most citizens.

The academy's corresponding members have a stipend of 300 rubles monthly.

Intellectuals here said the refusal to fill so many openings at one session of the academy appeared to be unprecedented. The academy has refused before to fill vacancies, though.

Indeed, the two hard-line ideologists voted down this year had both been rejected previously, according to these sources.

They were Mikhail Iovchuk, of Moscow's Institute of Philosophy, and Viktor Chkhikvadze, a Georgian lawyer and expert of military law.

New Group Opposes Commercial Interests

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

Do television commercials teach consumers a false set of priorities?

Should there be some kind of propaganda to "balance" out commercials and provide useful comparative information about the marketplace?

Is it right that a private company should make profits out of public airwaves?

These are some of the questions a new provincial association has been formed to publicize and present to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission at its hearings next February.

The Association for Public Broadcasting in British Columbia, officially incorporated in November, wants to block the licensing of commercial television stations for new licences in Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Instead, they want the CRTC to authorize a system of publicly-owned stations which would carry no commercial propaganda and which would form the third national broadcasting system after the CBC and CTV, both of which carry heavy quotas of commercial programming.

Membership in the association is open to everybody who favors the association's aims, says president Herschel Hardin, Vancouver broadcaster and playwright.

At CRTC hearings in late February, the association intends to use a formal intervention procedure under the Broadcasting Act to block the expected applications from powerful commercial Eastern concerns.

Hardin says he and his board of directors, which he described as "excellent", are eager to receive the opinions of members about how to organize public broadcasting stations.

Three methods are under review, he says: subscription, "which is not working too well in the U.S."; government revenue, "perhaps from local levels too"; and licence fees, "they were used to set up CBC radio."

"There has been no real discussion of this issue since the 30's," Hardin says. "We're trying to get the dialogue going."

HONOLULU—Elvis Presley says he will steer clear of ideological promotions on a worldwide television concert he plans to originate from Honolulu Jan. 14.

"I won't try to push any messages or anything," he said Monday. "I'll just offer good entertainment."

Rocco Laginestra, president of RCA Records, said the concert will be carried by Satellite to at least 34 countries, reaching an audience of an estimated 1.5 billion persons.

Cabot: Resident Alien Stays Close to Work

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD — Sebastian Cabot is a British subject who has a home in North Saanich but is everlastingly in forming one and all that he lives in Hollywood.

Hardly anyone believes him.

With a three-acre estate right on the water, clean air to breathe, the best salmon fishing at his doorstep and an 18-foot runabout power boat none of his friends are willing to concede he would choose Hollywood as home base.

"So help me, it's God's truth," said Cabot. Fervor filled his voice. His eyes were pleading.

"We have to strike down this abominable rumor that I make my home in Canada. I am a resident alien there."

Cabot likes Canada. He may even love it. But he can't afford to have producers, studios and directors think he lives more than a thousand miles away from where he earns his Chateaubriend and Dom Perignon.

"With the widespread belief that I live in Canada when my name crops up for a role in a film or a television movie, the producer is apt to dismiss my availability because he thinks I'm lost in the north woods.

"You can understand my distress," Cabot said pressing his hands together in a gesture of futility.

If he is a resident alien in Canada, is he not also an alien residing in the United States.

"Quite true," he acknowledged. "But I pay all my taxes and obey all the laws quite religiously. Still, I remain a British subject because I see no reason for being otherwise."

Others are merely hokey. The actor is scheduled to star in two or three of the episodes if the show is renewed.

"There are difficulties," he said. "It doesn't seem quite right for me as host to introduce myself as the star, now does it?"

He stroked his beard and ruminated over a cup of lunchtime soup. Cabot is independently wealthy having starred in four previous series: The Three Musketeers, Checkmate, Family Affair and Stump the Stars.

"Fortunately I'm in a position where, economically, I could move full time to British Columbia and not work again. I might have to cut back on some of the luxuries. But I could do it.

"However, that is not my intent. I take pride in my work and would like to appear in some feature films.

"In movies you have an opportunity to do some real acting. I'm not blaming television, but there's hardly time to do more than cram a load of lines into your head for a run-through. You're lucky if you get your lines out in the proper sequence during filming.

"I'm certainly not the worst actor in the world, but I'll never have a chance to be the best in television."

ADIEU ALOUETTE is the title of a new film series from the National Film Board dealing with various aspects of French Canadian life which is being shown on the CBC-TV network starting Wednesday. The series leads off with a look at the role of the Catholic church in Quebec and how it is changing to meet new circumstances.

WALTONS EXTENDED

The Waltons, highly-acclaimed family drama series, has been extended on the CBS Television Network for the full 1972-73 season, it was announced by Fred Silverman, vice-president, programs for the network.

The weekly, hour-long series starring Richard Thomas and based on novelist Earl Hammer's heartwarming reminiscences of growing up in the bosom of his large and affectionate family in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia during the Depression days of the 1930s, made its debut in September of this year (Thursday, 8:00-9:00 p.m.).

The program received glowing reviews from most of the nation's critics who applauded its superb production qualities and the believeablility of its scripts and characters. In recent weeks the audiences built steadily and, as a result, the network made its decision for a full season's presentation.

Black Beauty Replaces Anna

TORONTO — The CBC and CTV television networks have lost only one prime-time program apiece as a result of cancellations of programs supplied by United States sources.

The CBC, which lost Anna and the King, will replace it with Black Beauty, a British series based on the classic children's novel by Anna Sewell about a horse.

Goldie's Gold

By DAN LEWIS

For Goldie Hawn, all that glitters is really gold. Her contract with producer Mike Frankovich has just expired and she now has a new three-picture deal with Columbia.

Get the terms: for the first one, she'll be paid $300,000 plus 10 per cent of the profit. Her percentage remains unchanged for the next two pictures, but the fee increases to $350,000 for the second picture and $375,000 for her third.

It's a play or pay contract, and Goldie not only has all the fringe benefits of a star, such as script approval, director approval and so on, but she also gets involved in the production administration.

Pretty smart deal for a gal who made her reputation by being the empty-headed blonde on Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In television show for a couple of years. She's been far more successful than any of the other gals who got their first major attention on Laugh-In and then struck out on their own.

INSIDE THE WORLD OF DREAMS is a documentary, produced by CTV, which explores the strange and useful mystery of the phenomenon of dreaming and also recreates the dream world for television, with people participating in simulations of their dreams. British comedian Dave Allen, above, discusses his childhood dreams with children panelists. The program will be broadcast on Sunday, December 31, on Channel 8.

June Allison's Role Whole New Bag

Dick Powell, Jr., 21, and Pam Powell, 24, are not only son and daughter but June's dearest friends. The trio spends more time with each other than anyone else and by choice.

June is currently working on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's They Only Kill Their Masters, the James Goldstone-William Belasco production also starring James Garner and Katharine Ross. The film is a suspense murder mystery in which June plays a role she doesn't talk in advance about but it's a whole new bag for her.

Regarding Dick and Pam, whose famous actor father died when they were quite young, June's attitude has always been a liberal one.

"I brought them up with a sense of values and taught them to reason for themselves and face issues straight on," June says.

"Commands don't work and neither does the rule with an iron hand method.

"I never presented anything to them in a strong authoritative manner, only explained the why's as we went along.

"My authority was Louis B. Mayer," June recalls.

"I was under contract to MGM for so many years and, believe me, the chiefs looked after the Indians."

June has just completed a seven-city tour starring in No, No, Nanette and Dick and Pam went to each and every opening night.

Ambiance to Ecstasy: Loretta Loves Her Work

By RICHARD K. SHULL

Loves her career — actress.

Each word that parts her lips ranges between ambiance and ecstacy as she considers another joyous week of lovely work.

"I'm a work-aholic. They don't know it, but I'd gladly play the role for nothing, just for the joy of being in the show," she said.

Now, just a minute, Loretta. Surely a lovely girl in love with love such as yourself couldn't be totally satisfied portraying an uptight character such as Hot Lips?

"I love Margaret very much," she said, in defence of the character. "She wants desperately to be a great nurse and believe in the war, yet she has these smouldering passions. She's constantly torn between saluting or goosing someone.

"She's down to earth with Frank (her clandestine lover in the show). That's an honest relationship," Loretta said.

I suggested this was turning into a typical Hollywood interview — a variation of the Kabuki theatre in which writer asks the expected questions while actress delivers the expected answers and press agent attends to freshening the drinks.

The green-eyed blonde saw the point, but denied that was the case. "This is no cliché. I let it all hang out," she insisted. MASH means a great deal to me. I love to work, so working all the time is a great joy. And I'm working with actors, the best I ever worked with."

But in Hollywood, most girls who succeed in the business are desperately running away from some traumatic experience in their past life — and ill-founded teen-age marriage, an incestuous stepfather, or some such. So what's chasing her?

"I was blessed as a child," she said. "I always knew what I wanted to do. My family (back in Passaic, N.J.) constantly tried to discourage me, but I always knew what I wanted. I was awfully poor for a long time, but I was never discouraged."

"I have friends, most of them not in the theatre, who had horrendous childhoods, but I never considered mine unpleasant. I do think a painful childhood makes emotionally rich people — hypersensitives.

"But my drive isn't from any bad experience. It's strong because I never had an alternative. Without an alternative, you just go," she said.

"I don't believe in accidents and I don't believe in luck."

As for her life outside the studio in Hollywood, Loretta said, "I think we attract our own kind. My friends are not on drugs and they don't drink. We're happy looking deeper into our own lives.

"On the set, I'm sure a lot of people sneer when they see all of us in love with each other, but in our group, the play's the thing," she added.

Among other things, Loretta loves the idea that her TV character does have some dimension — a rarity for a woman in a TV series. Or did you ever notice that most female roles on TV consist of manipulating the coffee pot or standing in the ranchhouse doorway looking concerned?

"I'm lucky to have the role. I'm glad I didn't know who my competition was for the part or I'd have gone into cardiac arrest," she said.

THEATRE IN FOCUS

Since last January freelance drama critic Don Rubin has visited every professional theatre in the country, talking to nearly three dozen key people involved in the Canadian theatre scene. The resulting 13 hours of tape are being edited into four half hours scheduled on CBC Radio's Anthology Jan. 6, 13, 27 and Feb. 3.

Rubin calls his series The Canadian Theatre: A Status Report. In essence, it is a cross-country investigation of the state of Canadian regional theatre — past, present and future.

The first program sub-titled What's The Alternative? is a commentary on the new, experimental theatres in Toronto, Montreal, Halifax, Edmonton and Vancouver.

Part II, Jan. 13, The True North, East and West, is a report on how regional theatre has developed since 1968 when the federal government cut down on financial assistance resulting in a cultural freeze. There are interviews with Paxton Whitehead (Shaw Festival and Vancouver Playhouse); Leon Major (St. Lawrence Centre); Mavor Moore; Jean Roberts (National Arts Centre Theatre); Jean-Louis Roux (Le Theatre du Nouveau Mondel); Sean Mulcahy (Edmonton Citadel) and Christopher Newton (Theatre Calgary).

Part III, Jan. 27, The Angels and The Devils, takes a look at subsidies, the board structure of various theatre groups, and government responsibility to the arts. Jean Roberts and David Gardner, former theatre officers of the Canada Council, and David Peacock, the present incumbent, talk about money problems.

The last in the series, Feb. 3, appropriately titled, Where Do We Go From Here? involves some crystal ball gazing as playwrights, designers, critics and artistic directors express a number of diverse opinions on the future of Canadian theatre.

Debbie Reynolds Tries Broadway-Bound Musical

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK — Having mastered just about every other type of show business caper with comparative ease, Debbie Reynolds takes on the tough one when she makes her bow in Toronto in a Broadway-bound musical.

The list of Hollywood stars who have challenged Broadway, some of them with stage experience, is long, and the percentage of success has been low over the years.

This pretty, almost petite actress, has more than experience in some 30 motion pictures over two decades going for her.

"I have been doing my own show in Las Vegas night clubs for more than 10 years," Miss Reynolds said as she rested between rehearsals of Irene, which is scheduled to open the New Minskoff Theatre on Jan. 28.

"In those shows I have performed for about 140 minutes without letup. I have taken my own show on tour in various theatres. I don't think Broadway can be that tough."

Why wait so long to try the Broadway stage?

"I had children growing up for one thing," Miss Reynolds said. "Making movies, recordings, playing in nearby Las Vegas and doing a television series did not take me away from them.

"Now, they are well on the way to being adults. There also was the matter of being offered something I really felt I wanted to do.

"Harry Rigby brought me his conception of reviving that famous old musical, Irene, more than a year ago, and I felt that this was it. So, here I am."

Here also is 16-year-old Carrie Fisher, daughter by singer Eddie Fisher, who is one of the girls in the cast of Irene and who studies in a New York school for professional children.

"Carrie has worked with me in my act in Las Vegas and elsewhere since she was 13," Miss Reynolds said. "She sings and dances very well.

"My son, Todd Fisher, who is 14, will come to New York to stay with us after the show opens here. He plays guitar rather well, accompanying his sister as she sings, but he has no show business ambitions. He is interested in scientific things, in working with his hands."

Miss Reynolds has a long-term contract for annual appearances in a Las Vegas club, and she had to get a postponement of that commitment to do the Broadway show.

"I'm contracted for a year in Irene, the star said. "Then I will have to do my bit in Las Vegas for several weeks early in 1974. After that, if Irene is a success, I am supposed to do it on the West Coast that summer."

As a superstar, Miss Reynolds is reported to be getting a guaranteed weekly salary of more than $7,500 as against a 10 per cent share of the box office gross. The Minskoff can gross $147,000 weekly at capacity, which would give the star a potential of $14,000 weekly.

But Miss Reynolds pointed out that, on a comparative basis, this is less than she can make in a movie or in a Las Vegas engagement.

"Not that I regret this," Miss Reynolds said. "I've always wanted to do a Broadway show. But I mean that, if Irene is a hit, I am tied down here for a year. In movie or in Las Vegas, I work for only a few weeks for a lot of money and have the rest of the year in which to do what I want, play some theatre dates or just loaf."

But Miss Reynolds knows that, even if pinned down for a year, there is no satisfaction like being the star of a Broadway hit, which she and Broadway hope will be her fate.

A Black Seeks a New Film Environment

NEW YORK — Softly but firmly Ossie Davis, the black actor-director talks about blacks in the film and television industries.

"The rash of exploitation films creating black superheroes — Shaft, Slaughter notably — doesn't offend me, nor does it fulfill me," says Davis. "Hollywood doesn't read reviews; it reads box office. And some of those films are clever.

"I have no specific argument against the superheroes and the other outrageous cats, but my objection is that the realities of our lives are left unattended."

In fact, there are two pictures now which delve into those "realities" that Davis refers to — and one is his own film, "Black Girl," which is about to be released around the country.

It is the story of a 17-year-old girl brought up in a black ghetto surrounded by the griminess of drugs and heavy drinking, who wants to break out. Her parents don't understand her, but she fights her way out, earning her keep as a nightclub dancer.

"We filmed this picture in Venice, Calif., which is old and seedy," Davis reported. "Cops were busting cats on the street every day while we were filming. We even shot one scene in a bar that had been closed weeks before because it was a "shooting" gallery. That's the environment in which this girl was brought up in."

Last month, another picture portraying the human side of blacks in the south during the depression days, "Sounder," opened to exceptionally good reviews. The artistic success was matched at the box office in its selected run (New York, Los Angeles and Toronto the first month). But unlike "Black Girl," which had a black director, and 20 per cent black crew, "Sounder" was produced by a white man (Robert Radnitz) and directed by a white man (Martin Ritt), but written by a black (Lonnie Elder III).

Ossie Davis is totally committed to improving the lot of his people in the industry. He'll continue to direct stories of black orientation. "I'm not interested in white stories, when I think of black stories untold, black actors not working. If I have any commitment, it is to get them into the hopper."

The big problem is to break down the union barriers; built on prejudice and nepotism, which have made it difficult for anyone to break through. Blacks feel their chances are even less.

"They (blacks) have a good appetite for filmmaking," Davis declared. "They want to become involved in the technical end — sound, lights, cameras, costumes and set design. Not many are interested in being electricians, carpenters or teamsters."

Training for blacks lags, but Davis is involved in a program which hopefully will ease the path of blacks who aspire to break into filmmaking. The organization is known as Third World Cinema, and Davis is its president. "We would like it to be a production company as well as training school," Davis explained, "but we ain't got no money."

Money is the problem. Applications for federal funds have been bogged down in bureaucratic red tape for several years. "The government has its own pace," Davis said with tolerant resignation. Money raised independently to open a training centre has not come that easily, either.

"Our activities in Third World Cinema today involve helping to place young blacks interested in the business," Ossie said. When he directed "Cotton Comes to Harlem" two years ago (a very successful film about two black detectives in Harlem), Davis was able to start an apprentice program.

As for product, Davis feels there is a "tremendous unappeased hunger on the part of black folks to see themselves (on film) in things that they can identify with."

"It doesn't stop with drugs, violence and sex," he declared.

"The black family in television situations never were successful because of a contradiction in terms. Television builds success on what has been successful up to now."

"Sanford and Son" was barrier-breaker that caught on well and now Davis feels, it might establish that pattern of success for others.

An esteemed actor, Davis always considered his action as a means to build his carrer as a writer and director. "Black Girl" is his fourth feature film as director and next he hopes to direct a pet project of his own. It is a story, Davis explained, that deals with drugs from the point of view of those who fight it, rather than those who consume it, Davis explained.

But Davis' next project could bring him into television. "There's talk about making a series out of 'Purlie' (the Broadway hit show in which Melba Moore surfaced as a star) and they've asked me to direct the pilot," Davis revealed.

Youth Pose Questions For Confrontation

CBC Television begins a new series Jan. 7 in which it tries, according to its advance publicity, "to find out exactly what you young people think."

Youth Confrontation, as the series is titled, is designed to explore issues suggested by 15 to 18-year-olds.

The programs are to be produced in Toronto and in four other Canadian regions, the issues range from morals and religion to fishing rights. In each program, about 30 young people will confront a guest who is involved with the issue under discussion. Bruce Rogers presides as host.

Guests will include Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, the issue — professional sport; and Paul Zimmerman, president of Reader's Digest (Canada), the issue — Canadian cultural and economic survival.

Executive producer, Don Elder says of the show: "The roots of the program are within the youth group, but the issues are of concern to all Canadians."

Global Outcry Aimed at U.S.

Times News Services

Australian seamen are refusing to handle U.S. shipping, the Italian government has protested strongly and Chinese premier Chou En-lai has warned of a deterioration in U.S. relations with China as the global outcry against the rain of death over Hanoi and Haiphong continues to grow.

And protests inside the U.S. itself are mounting, with one Republican Senator, William Saxbe of Ohio renouncing his support for the war saying that President Nixon "appears to have lost his senses."

Saxbe said the president's order to resume bombing exhibited "arrogance and irresponsibility."

Meanwhile, the air blitz over Hanoi and Haiphong continues with the Swedish embassy there saying Thursday's raids were the "heaviest yet" and a Soviet correspondent reporting that the North Vietnamese capital was rapidly becoming "a city of ruins."

Marilyn Berger of the Washington Post asked Chou whether the bombing onslaught would interfere with relations between the two countries when she was introduced to him in the receiving line at a state banquet in Peking.

"Surely," Chou replied, adding a moment later: "I hope you will convey my answer to the American people."

When Miss Berger went on to ask how the breach the bombing has opened between Peking and Washington could be closed, Chou replied emphatically: "Stop the bombing."

At the banquet, Chinese foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei delivered one of the strongest denunciations of policy in Indochina to be heard here since before the Nixon visit.

"The U.S. government," he said, "committed a breach of faith, fabricated pretexts, set up various obstacles and deliberately delayed and sabotaged the signing of the peace agreement."

Chi also accused the United States of carrying out "barbarous bombing raids" and "committing unforgiveable new crimes against the Vietnamese people." He accused the United States of committing "shameless military blackmail."

Chou, Chi and other top Chinese leaders also took part in a mass rally in Peking today to show support for the North Vietnamese against U.S. aggression and Chi said:

"If the U.S. continues to drag on the war then no matter how long it may do so the Chinese people will definitely go on supporting the Vietnamese people until complete victory is won."

The Italian cabinet meeting in Rome couched its protest in an order to Foreign Minister Gisiseppe Medici to "renew insistence" with Washington that the U.S. stop the bombing immediately and get back to the bargaining table.

In Sydney, the federal secretary of the Australian Seamen's Union, E. V. Elliott, explained to reporters that under the boycott no tugs will be available to U.S. ships and in some ports there will be no facilities for them to take on pilots.

Other Australian waterfront unions were contemplating action against U.S. vessels, he said, but added that it would be up to these unions to reveal individually what they planned.

If they did join the boycott, however, U.S. ships would be denied waterfront labor to help them berth, load and unload.

GREATEST FRAUD EVER?

TORONTO (CP) — If peace negotiations to end the Vietnam war are not concluded, the United States and the world will have been victims of "one of the really great frauds of history," economist John Kenneth Galbraith said Thursday.

President of the American Economic Association and U.S. ambassador to India during the Kennedy years, Dr. Galbraith told a news conference the resumption of U.S. bombing in Vietnam and continuation of the war means "more inflation, more diversion of resources."

But the economic effects were not so important, he said, as "the barbarity of the action."

He called the war "barbarous and insane."

"I haven't entirely given up hope that residual sanity will prevail and that the peace talks will be resumed," he said.

"If, as Henry Kissinger and President Nixon have said, they were 99 per cent complete, then one can only hope the other 1 per cent will be resolved. If this isn't true, we've been victims of one of the really great frauds of history."

Dr. Galbraith and other leading members of the association signed a statement protesting the resumption of bombing. He said he did so in his personal capacity, not as president of the association since it does not comment as an association on political issues.

More Immigrants Than Jobs: Prof.

TORONTO (CP) — Since 1967 Canada has had more immigrants than the working force can cope with, William R. Dymond, a University of Ottawa professor, said Thursday.

He said the federal government's Canadian Manpower Centres (CMC) are not as successful at finding jobs for the unemployed as other job-locating methods.

Dr. Dymond, a former official of the department of manpower and immigration, told a meeting of the Allied Social Science Association here that while CMC was approached by 76 per cent of all job hunters, only 11 per cent were successful, compared with ratios of up to 27 per cent by other means.

Canada's manpower policy had been influenced by political and institutional pressures, he said.

"In the early '60s, immigration certainly contributed to meeting labor market pressures. Since 1967 there has probably been more immigration than the labor market would absorb and so it may very well have added to unemployment while playing only a marginal role in meeting job shortages."

Dr. Dymond, now an economist and manpower specialist, said federal manpower policies should be integrated with over-all social and economic policies for the 1970s.

He claimed that millions of dollars are being spent on adult retraining for jobs that exist for only a small proportion of the graduates.

He was speaking at one of the meetings of the American Economic Association conference which about 8,000 government, business and academic economists from all areas of North America are attending.

Court Rules Deposit Illegal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice W. R. McIntyre of the B.C. Supreme Court ruled Thursday that B.C. Hydro's security deposit for residential customers is illegal.

He ruled that Hydro is a public utility and as such is required to treat all its customers alike and cannot demand security deposits from some customers and, in effect, decide who is going to get power and who is not.

The ruling throws into question at least part of a $1 million fund of collective security deposits held by Hydro.

The ruling was made in the case of Philip Rankin, Alistair Waddell and Karen Chastin who challenged the right of Hydro to charge some would-be customers security deposits and not others.

They contended the requirement for a deposit was illegal because it was discriminatory.

Hydro argued it had the right to require deposits, claiming it did not come under the general law relating to public utilities since it was not a public utility but a superpower authority created by statute for a special purpose.

McIntyre, in ruling that Hydro is a public utility, said "the mere fact that the defendant is not subject to the provisions of the public utilities act does not alter its essential character."

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP) — A record 18-inch snowfall with 70-mile an hour winds hit central Newfoundland Thursday. The snow was the worst in December since Dec. 21-25, 1964, when 13.9 inches fell in a 24-hour period.

Rembrandt Stolen

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (Reuter) — Police said Thursday a painting by the Dutch Master Rembrandt insured for $750,000 was stolen from an art gallery Tuesday night. They said the painting, St. Phillip Baptizing the Eunuch, was cut from its frame by thieves who made a hole in the roof of the gallery.

NO QCs FOR B.C. SAYS A-G

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald says B.C. lawyers "should not be in an expectant mood" for Queen's Counsel appointments, traditionally announced New Year's Day.

"I'm sending Christmas cards instead of QCs this year," Macdonald said Thursday.

Macdonald, himself a QC as the chief provincial law enforcer, has opposed the awards for years.

Birds Banned From Nixon Parade Route

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Bird experts started spraying trees today along President Nixon's inauguration route here. A plastic substance will make sure birds do not drop any uninvited offerings on Nixon or the people lining the route.

The substance will give the birds a "hot foot" if they land on trees along the ceremonial route Nixon will take Jan. 20 to be formally sworn in for his second term as president.

In the past, government buildings and institutions have used firecrackers, supersonic howls, scarecrows and even stuffed owls to try to scare away birds.

'What's Up, Doc?'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An airline passenger, sitting blank-faced and bored between flights, turns suddenly to stare into the smiling face of a tall carrot-chomping rabbit towering above him.

"Eh, what's up doc?" the rabbit asked.

Yosemite Sam holds up a grinning grandmother with his mock cannon. Another youngster tugs at Bugs Bunny's cotton tail.

This is the kind of scene that can be found at San Francisco International Airport almost any day — and which an enterprising young man hopes will soon be a common sight at airports everywhere.

The characters, hired by the airline to entertain its passengers, are the brainchildren of Bob Claus, president of Cartoon Characters, Inc., of San Jose, Calif.

He rents his cast of 13 Warner Brothers cartoon characters to airlines, claiming they relieve boredom and nervousness of airport waits and "unwrap people from all their problems."

Self-Medication Safety Probe

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Individuals must continue to have the right to self-medication for minor ailments, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said today, but the government will begin this spring a public education program related to the safety of self-medication with over-the-counter drugs.

As well, his department is "commissioning a major study into factors influencing consumer buying behavior in the drug field," he said in a prepared eight-page news release on criticisms against patent medicines made by the Quebec College of Pharmacists.

In the release, the minister commented on actions demanded recently by the college, which had called for a "massive cleanup" of food and drug legislation.

The college wanted prohibition of all drug advertising, he said, and this presently is under study by the health protection branch.

Lalonde also commented on claims made by the college that many of the patent medicines available are "dangerous."

"Drugs permitted in patent medicines are not unsafe under normal use conditions. . . . It is important to realize that the examples of danger raised by the Quebec pharmacists exist only in abuse situations over which regulation has only a limited effect."

The minister also ruled out requests by the pharmacists that all medicines should be sold only on prescription.

"A physician would have to be consulted every time the simplest of remedies was needed with the inevitable delays and increased costs," he said.

For example, he said that if aspirin was needed for a headache, its cost could rise to $8.29 from 29 cents. The additional cost would be for a doctor's visit — at $5 to $6 and a pharmacist's dispensing fee of $2 to $3.

On Thursday, a spokesman in Lalonde's office said stringent controls on the prescribing by doctors of amphetamine-like drugs that come into effect Jan. 1 may be just the beginning.

He said that the government is already considering similar controls for barbituates and tranquilizer drugs, two other classes of drugs that many experts regard as overused and overprescribed.

Words of Inspiration For the Year Ahead

Some dictation if you please, Miss Blodgett:

First a letter to Ms. Janice Burch, at this James Bay address. Make sure you address it as "Ms." because that's the lady's choice. Dear Ms. Burch: The poster you sent to me containing the inspiring words of The Desiderata was not only the most unexpected of my Christmas gifts, but one I'll treasure. By the way, the inscription "Found in Old Saint Paul's Church, Baltimcre, Dated 1692" isn't altogether factual. Muriel Mixon, our Librarian, who knows everything about everything, tells me it's been documented that the words were actually written within the last 50 years. Whenever they were written they were written by someone with a beautiful philosophy. I'm glad to take your suggestion that I reprint it as a New Year's column.

Desiderata

Go placidly amid the noise and haste, and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story.

Avoid loud and aggressive persons, they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans.

Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals; and everywhere life is full of heroism.

Be yourself. Especially, do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass.

Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune. But do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself.

You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be, and whatever your labors and aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life keep peace with your soul.

With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be happy.

Now, Miss Blodgett, a note to Chuck Davis, care of CBC Radio, Vancouver. Dear Chuck: A friend phoned me that Bob Hunter was in full voice on your program and so I did not hear the whole of your interview with the Sun's columnist. What I did hear, apart from the most self-appreciative giggles I've monitored since my youngest daughter's last pyjama party, caused me some distress.

I won't argue with Hunter's shotgun defence of his right to wear blue jeans in the Empress' Bengal Room and I have taken the pellets in the backside without a whimper. But since I was not invited to defend my own case I naturally expected that you, Chuck, would at least give a sense of balance to the program and not simply provide a cheering section of one for your articulate and amusing guest.

When, for example, Hunter said that barring a man from the Bengal Room for wearing blue jeans was the same as barring a man because of the color of his skin I'd have expected you to make my position clear since you know dam'd well that I would be among the first to holler in a case of discrimination.

Just to keep the record straight there is no such discrimination at the Bengal Room and there is not, as Hunter suggested, an economic discrimination since any man who can afford a Bengal Room drink presumably can afford an ensemble in keeping with the decor and style of the place.

Finally, Miss Blodgett, a note to Louis Finamore, general manager of the Empress Hotel. Dear Louis: My thanks for your Christmas note and kind compliments. Believe me, it's more in sorrow than in anger that I write now to tell you I had the worst Christmas Day dinner in my entire life at your hotel, a culinary disaster of the first magnitude.

Normally I might not complain about this, but our hostess was a dear young thing who had arranged the dinner for 10 persons near and dear to her, she had trusted in the Empress reputation and tradition and its advertising which I now suggest you examine for misrepresentation.

We were served this ghastly dinner in a mess-hall cafeteria style with your staff casting nervous glances at the poor souls in the hallway waiting for the second sitting. We weren't seated before the mock turtle soup, if that's what that tinted water could be called, was shoved under our noses.

We might have accepted this, accepted the paper napkins and the cream in little plastic cups and the sugar in paper satchels and even the cranberry sauce packaged in plastic, and the 400 per cent mark-up in the wine, but, oh my lord, Louis, that dinner to come was simply beyond belief.

Those thin, flavorless strands of turkey draped limply over a wedge of dressing, those pellets that were once brussels sprouts, the mashed potatoes that had been carmelled on the top presumably because the whole awful mess had been in a deep frozen state for several weeks — well, if we hadn't taken it as a huge joke we couldn't have taken it at all.

I suppose the people upstairs in the dining room were making out a little better, but we peasants in the Garden Room, at $5.95 a head, were simply being had and, Louis, that's not a nice thing at all at Christmas.

Contracts Awarded Without Tender

Victoria Times
FRIDAY, DEC. 29, 1972 17
SECOND SECTION

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The provincial government has awarded $95,000 in contracts without competition to H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd. of Victoria for emergency renovation work in the Legislative Buildings.

The contracts involve $45,000 to prepare offices for production of Hansard reports and $50,000 for renovations to five offices of the deputy minister of lands.

A spokesman in the department of public works said the contracts were awarded to Fowler on a cost-plus basis because the projects were considered to be of an emergency nature.

Most future contracts will go to tender.

The provincial government is producing Hansard reports for the first time, going into second printing on its special fall session and gearing up for the January session.

The Hansard offices are being constructed in the basement of the Legislative Building and will consist of from seven to eight rooms where stenographers will transcribe and proofread the reports.

A dustproof and quiet area was needed where taperecorders and other reproduction equipment could operate away from the main building functions so the basement was selected.

A third contract for a three-room complex in the library was not considered an emergency and went to public tender. Low bidder was Farmer Construction at $13,000. The company was awarded the contract.

The work will be done mostly by public tender and will be aimed at improving electrical wiring and heating as well as repairs.

The over-all aim is to restore the building to its original appearance but with modern facilities. For example, new lights will be installed in various offices but period light fittings will be sought to blend in with the traditional architecture.

With the emergency projects completed prior to the January session, no new work will begin until about April, after the session.

Then more projects will go to tender and projects will continue until the fall session of the legislature.

The government likely will try for a two-month session in winter and two-month session in fall to replace the single three-month session in winter.

The program of renovations will involve considerable shifting in offices.

Premier Barrett has already announced he will try to move all his cabinet ministers into the main building. Several are in the Douglas Building across Government street.

Moving them in will mean other functions will have to be moved out. With new purposes for the office space, much spending is anticipated during 1973 on renovations.

The department, however, has not been able to estimate the total cost.

Pollen Advised To Abandon His 'Vendettas'

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

After one year of Mayor Peter Pollen's regime at city hall, a senior city alderman today issued a strongly-worded appeal to the mayor to cease his attacks on personalities and the business community, exercise more restraint and work with council for the general good of Victoria.

Ald. Clyde Savage said he feels compelled to air his concern at Pollen's misplaced priorities, and emphasized that his remarks are not a personal attack on a man he likes and admires.

The city administration should be concerned with "controlled progress, not vendettas," he said.

Savage said Pollen received a mandate from voters to control highrise and development generally, and he had moved ahead with that task in 1972.

"The mayor is very capable and his driving force combined with the guts to follow through could make this city everything we would wish it to be. He could have the complete support of council and of business in these endeavors.

"However, unfortunately his intense desire to control the environment at any cost has created an unhealthy climate and atmosphere in which it is impossible to live — not only in council but throughout the city," he said.

Savage claimed that retiring Ald. Harold Olafson had refused to run for office again this year "because he could no longer put up with the conditions in which he had to work."

Olafson, he added, had given him full permission to make such a statement as to his reasons for withdrawing from council.

As a senior alderman on council, Savage said he was making his views known now to try to "bring some semblance of public confidence in city countil." In answer to a question later he said he hoped his appeal to Pollen would also bring about a new spirit of harmony and cooperation on council in 1973.

In his prepared statement, Savage said the mayor's "unnecessary remarks about downtown business people, castigation of the Advisory Planning Commission, derogatory remarks against the Chamber of Commerce and constant sniping at big corporations" is no way to establish proper communications with those sections of the community.

SAVAGE
. . . 'controlled progress'

"The uncomplimentary remarks about aldermen, both in committee and in public, by the mayor certainly do nothing for good working conditions on council," he added.

Savage charged that council far too much time dealing with "past problems" over which it has no contrpl, instead of tackling far more urgent problems in the city.

He said development is essential for the city to keep the tax base fluid, essential for employment, for downtown living "to keep our city alive," and also for Victoria to be a centre for cultural as well as business activities.

Savage said he supported council's 14-storey restriction on downtown construction "under pressure," on the understanding that developers could still exceed that by coming forward with applications for special development permits.

But, as far as he was aware, no applications had been made "simply because they are discouraged by the mayor and the chairman of the community development committee (Ald. Mike Young) without discussion with council, who are unaware of the tentative proposals."

Another aspect of the past year which he deplored was the increasing amount of council business conducted at in-camera meetings.

"This has to stop," he said, adding that the only real justification for closed meetings is when personalities or sensitive property matters are being discussed.

Savage claimed that Pollen's personal opposition to such projects as one-way streets prevents council from acting in this direction, even when a one-way system such as government and Wharf is proposed on a trial basis and with the strong backing of the downtown business community.

Asked if he feels that Pollen's articulate and brisk conduct of meetings has the effect of dominating the rest of council, Savage replied: "Very much so."

He added, however, that he at least will stand up and oppose Pollen wherever and whenever necessary in the coming year.

CUPE Rejected at College

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has turned down a bid by the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 947, to represent employees of Camosun College.

In a decision disclosed today, the board said the bargaining unit applied for, which excluded instructors, was "not appropriate for collective bargaining."

The board also said it was satisfied that less than a majority of employees were members of the union when the application for certification was made Nov. 21.

Alex Markides, CUPE staff representative in Victoria, said the certification application was to cover employees of Camosun College at Lansdowne Road, View and Quadra and at Interurban Road. It included people working in laboratories, book stores and a kitchen but could not include a number of people who are direct employees of the provincial government and are excluded from the Labor Relations Act, he said.

Markides said the union is considering whether or not to submit a new application.

American Inspectors Used On B.C. Elevators—Union

Strike-hit elevator companies in British Columbia have been using some American supervisors to do maintenance inspections, the International Union of Elevator Constructors said Thursday.

"We feel there are from five to eight in B.C.," said Rocky Kennedy, president of the union's Local 82 which covers B.C.

He said one union member normall ywould look after 40 elevators a month. This work has been done by Canadian and American supervisors since the strike started 16 weeks ago, he said.

Kennedy said the union reported to the immigration department the presence of one American supervisor working "without a permit in Canada and he was asked to leave the country and did."

In another case, in Victoria, he said a Seattle supervisor "left the country abruptly" when the union began inquiries.

He said the difficulty in reporting the presence of Americans working without landed immigrant status is that they have to be identified as Americans "and if we follow people it can be classed as harassment."

Kennedy said the five elevator companies are using office personnel, such as draftsmen and engineers, with only a short course in elevator maintenance, to do work normally performed by union members with three to five years training.

But he added that some of the management people are "duly qualified mechanics who have come up through union ranks."

The five elevator companies, Turnbull-Dover, Otis, Montgomery, Armor and Westinghouse, have launched court action against the union claiming the strike in B.C. is illegal. The case is due to be heard next month.

While the elevator constructors strike has had little effect in Victoria, some major developments in Vancouver and Toronto have been stalled because of lack of elevators.

Meanwhile in Toronto informed private talks have resulted in new hope for a breakthrough in the strike, a union spokesman said.

James Hughes, president of the Toronto local of the International Union of Elevator Constructors, said the union is considering "a new approach" to the main issues.

He said that the five struck elevator companies are also reassessing the situation after meeting Tuesday with mediator Jack Speranzini of the Ontario labor ministry.

The union will take a few days to work out its new bargaining position which Hughes said "could be a breakthrough."

SIDNEY FIREMEN RE-ELECT LONEY

Sidney volunteer firemen re-elected Hugh Loney as unpaid chief for a two-year term on Thursday.

Loney has been chief for nearly seven years and was elected by acclamation when nominations closed at noon.

Meanwhile, the position of Sidney's fire marshal is still vacant although Sidney council completed job conditions and wages at a closed committee meeting Wednesday.

Council now is waiting for a decision from Don Facey, the man who has been offered the newly-created position, in lieu of a paid fire chief's job. Facey asked to have the job conditions in writing.

The Central Saanich man's appointment as paid fire chief was rescinded by council one week ago after disagreement over hiring procedure was voiced by Sidney volunteer firemen.

Meetings with the firemen culminated in the decision by council to rescind the resolution to hire a full-time chief and offer Facey the position of fire marshal.

Wharf Jam Worries Deputy

A fire at congested Fishermen's Wharf in James Bay could result in major damage, Victoria Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said today.

"The mooring facilities are not adequate for the number of boats. They're moored in such a manner that if a boat caught fire near the main float it would be impossible to release the lines and many other boats would be in danger," he said.

Coates commented after firemen were called to extinguish a fire aboard the 36-foot troller Triana, at 2:40 p.m. Thursday. It was the second fire at the wharf this month.

The boat, owned by Keith Notte, is moored directly opposite the 35-foot troller, Marauder King, owned by Oliver J. Powell, 3212 Kenya Place.

On Dec. 14 fire gutted the galley and cabin of the Marauder King causing $10,000 damage.

Thursday's fire aboard the Triana began when two "poorly insulated wires" touched, causing a short circuit which burned the main electrical wire "back to the battery," said Coates.

"An axe was used to open the inner shell of the hull to get to the fire" which charred part of the hull, he said.

"I just went to get some groceries and when I came back there was smoke coming out of the hatch," said Notte.

Damage was estimated at $500 to the electrical system.

"The fire department has emphasized the danger to the management and we find this situation continually prevails," said Coates.

Global Outcry Aimed at U.S.

Times News Services

Australian seamen are refusing to handle U.S. shipping, the Italian government has protested strongly and Chinese premier Chou En-lai has warned of a deterioration in U.S. relations with China as the global outcry against the rain of death on Hanoi and Haiphong continues to grow.

And protests inside the U.S. itself are mounting, with one Republican Senator, William Saxbe of Ohio renouncing his support for the war saying that President Nixon "appears to have lost his senses."

Saxbe said the president's order to resume bombing exhibited "arrogance and irresponsibility."

Meanwhile, the air blitz on Hanoi and Haiphong continues with the Swedish embassy there saying Thursday's raids were the "heaviest yet" and a Soviet correspondent reporting that the North Vietnamese capital was rapidly becoming "a city of ruins."

Marilyn Berger of the Washington Post asked Chou whether the bombing onslaught would interfere with relations between the two countries when she was introduced to him in the receiving line at a state banquet in Peking.

"Surely," Chou replied, adding a moment later: "I hope you will convey my answer to the American people."

When Miss Berger went on to ask how the breach the bombing has opened between Peking and Washington could be closed, Chou replied emphatically: "Stop the bombing."

At the banquet, Chinese foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei delivered one of the strongest denunciations of policy in Indochina to be heard here since before the Nixon visit.

"The U.S. government," he said, "committed a breach of faith, fabricated pretexts, set up various obstacles and deliberately delayed and sabotaged the signing of the peace agreement."

Chi also accused the United States of carrying out "barbarous bombing raids" and "committing unforgiveable new crimes against the Vietnamese people." He accused the United States of committing "shameless military blackmail."

Chou, Chi and other top Chinese leaders also took part in a mass rally in Peking today to show support for the North Vietnamese against U.S. aggression and Chi said:

"If the U.S. continues to drag on the war then no matter how long it may do so the Chinese people will definitely go on supporting the Vietnamese people until complete victory is won."

The Italian cabinet meeting in Rome couched its protest in an order to Foreign Minister Gisiseppe Medici to "renew insistence" with Washington that the U.S. stop the bombing immediately and get back to the bargaining table.

In Sydney, the federal secretary of the Australian Seamen's Union, E. V. Elliott, explained to reporters that under the boycott no tugs will be available to U.S. ships and in some ports there will be no facilities for them to take on pilots.

Other Australian waterfront unions were contemplating action against U.S. vessels, he said, but added that it would be up to these unions to reveal individually what they planned.

If they did join the boycott, however, U.S. ships would be denied waterfront labor to help them berth, load and unload.

GALBRAITH

GREATEST FRAUD EVER?

TORONTO (CP) — If peace negotiations to end the Vietnam war are not concluded, the United States and the world will have been victims of "one of the really great frauds of history," economist John Kenneth Galbraith said Thursday.

President of the American Economic Association and U.S. ambassador to India during the Kennedy years, Dr. Galbraith told a news conference the resumption of U.S. bombing in Vietnam and continuation of the war means "more inflation, more diversion of resources."

But the economic effects were not so important, he said, as "the barbarity of the action."

He called the war "barbarous and insane."

"I haven't entirely given up hope that residual sanity will prevail and that the peace talks will be resumed," he said.

"If, as Henry Kissinger and President Nixon have said, they were 99 per cent complete, then one can only hope the other 1 per cent will be resolved. If this isn't true, we've been victims of one of the really great frauds of history."

Dr. Galbraith and other leading members of the association signed a statement protesting the resumption of bombing. He said he did so in his personal capacity, not as president of the association since it does not comment as an association on political issues.

More Immigrants Than Jobs: Prof.

TORONTO (CP) — Since 1967 Canada has had more immigrants than the working force can cope with, William R. Dymond, a University of Ottawa professor, said Thursday.

He said the federal government's Canadian Manpower Centres (CMC) are not as successful at finding jobs for the unemployed as other job-locating methods.

Dr. Dymond, a former official of the department of manpower and immigration, told a meeting of the Allied Social Science Association here that while CMC was approached by 76 per cent of all job hunters, only 11 per cent were successful, compared with ratios of up to 27 per cent by other means.

Canada's manpower policy had been influenced by political and institutional pressures, he said.

"In the early '60s, immigration certainly contributed to meeting labor market pressures. Since 1967 there has probably been more immigration than the labor market would absorb and so it may very well have added to unemployment while playing only a marginal role in meeting job shortages."

Dr. Dymond, now an economist and manpower specialist, said federal manpower policies should be integrated with over-all social and economic policies for the 1970s.

He claimed that millions of dollars are being spent on adult retraining for jobs that exist for only a small proportion of the graduates.

He was speaking at one of the meetings of the American Economic Association conference which about 8,000 government, business and academic economists from all areas of North America are attending.

Court Rules Deposit Illegal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice W. R. McIntyre of the B.C. Supreme Court ruled Thursday that B.C. Hydro's security deposit for residential customers is illegal.

He ruled that Hydro is a public utility and as such is required to treat all its customers alike and cannot demand security deposits from some customers and, in effect, decide who is going to get power and who is not.

The ruling throws into question at least part of a $1 million fund of collective security deposits held by Hydro.

The ruling was made in the case of Philip Rankin, Alistair Waddell and Karen Chastin who challenged the right of Hydro to charge some would-be customers security deposits and not others.

They contended the requirement for a deposit was illegal because it was discriminatory.

Hydro argued it had the right to require deposits, claiming it did not come under the general law relating to public utilities since it was not a public utility but a superpower authority created by statute for a special purpose.

McIntyre, in ruling that Hydro is a public utility, said "the mere fact that the defendant is not subject to the provisions of the Public Utilities Act does not alter its essential character."

NO QCs FOR B.C. SAYS A-G

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald says B.C. lawyers "should not be in an expectant mood" for Queen's Counsel appointments, traditionally announced New Year's Day.

"I'm sending Christmas cards instead of QCs this year," Macdonald said Thursday.

Birds Banned From Nixon Parade Route

WASHINGTON (Reuter) Bird experts started spraying trees today along President Nixon's inauguration route here. A plastic substance will make sure birds do not drop any uninvited offerings on Nixon or the people lining the route.

The substance will give the birds a "hot foot" if they land on trees along the ceremonial route Nixon will take Jan. 20 to be formally sworn in for his second term as president.

In the past, government buildings and institutions have used firecrackers, supersonic howls, scarecrows and even stuffed owls to try to scare away birds.

Self-Medication Probe Planned

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Individuals must continue to have the right to self-medication for minor ailments, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said today, but the government will begin this spring a public education program related to the safety of self-medication with over-the-counter drugs.

As well, his department is "commissioning a major study into factors influencing consumer buying behavior in the drug field," he said in a prepared eight-page news release on criticisms against patent medicines made by the Quebec College of Pharmacists.

In the release, the minister commented on actions demanded recently by the college, which had called for a "massive cleanup" of food and drug legislation.

The college wanted prohibition of all drug advertising, he said, and this presently is under study by the health protection branch.

Lalonde also commented on claims made by the college that many of the patent medicines available are "dangerous."

"Drugs permitted in patent medicines are not unsafe under normal use conditions. . . . It is important to realize that the examples of danger raised by the Quebec pharmacists exist only in abuse situations over which regulation has only a limited effect."

The minister also ruled out requests by the pharmacists that all medicines should be sold only on prescription.

"A physician would have to be consulted every time the simplest of remedies was needed with the inevitable delays and increased costs," he said.

For example, he said that if aspirin was needed for a headache, its cost could rise to $8.29 from 29 cents. The additional cost would be for a doctor's visit at $5 to $6 and a pharmacist's dispensing fee of $2 to $3.

On Thursday, a spokesman in Lalonde's office said stringent controls on the prescribing by doctors of amphetamine-like drugs that come into effect Jan. 1 may be just the beginning.

He said that the government is already considering similar controls for barbituates and tranquilizer drugs, two other classes of drugs that many experts regard as overused and overprescribed.

'What's Up, Doc?'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) An airline passenger, sitting blank-faced and bored between flights, turns suddenly to stare into the smiling face of a tall carrot-chomping rabbit towering above him.

"Eh, what's up doc?" the rabbit asked.

This is the kind of scene that can be found at San Francisco International Airport almost any day — and which an enterprising young man hopes will soon be a common sight at airports everywhere.

The characters, hired by the airline to entertain its passengers, are the brainchildren of Bob Claus, president of Cartoon Characters, Inc., of San Jose, Calif.

He rents his cast of 13 Warner Brothers cartoon characters to airlines, claiming they relieve boredom and nervousness of airport waits and "unwrap people from all their problems."
